Central Provinces Press for Fiscal Debate

Premiers Ask More Revenue

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The central provinces told the federal government today it must give them the fiscal resources to carry out their responsibilities.

They made the demand at the first session of the constitutional conference as Prime Minister Trudeau vainly tried to steer the discussion to reform of the constitution.

But the prime minister said he is willing to rearrange the conference agenda if that is necessary.

The agenda was to be debated later today after all the opening statements were completed. There were five speakers at the first session: Mr. Trudeau and Premiers John Robarts of Ontario, Mr. Bertrand, G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia and Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick.

Mr. Trudeau told reporters there was "total unanimity" among the first four premiers to speak on language rights.

The prime minister went around the C-shaped conference table shaking hands with all premiers—except W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia—before the conference opened. Mr. Bennett was three minutes late and came in after Mr. Trudeau had started speaking.

PM WEARS CARNATION

Mr. Trudeau wore a dark suit and red carnation in his lapel. He was flanked at the start by Justice Minister John Turner and Paul Martin, government leader in the Senate.

Mr. Trudeau probably did his best job ever in reading a prepared text. Normally he has a great deal of difficulty giving a speech from paper.

Mr. Robarts said that if Ontario cannot get a more equitable apportionment of tax rev-

Bertrand Gets Trudeau Rebuke

(Times News Services)

OTTAWA — Premier Jean Jacques Bertrand of Quebec told the constitutional conference that the problem of Quebec autonomy is more important "than human rights or the linguistic rights of minorities".

The statement brought a strong rebuke from Prime Minister Trudeau who said after the opening session that he found it "a little bizarre" that Quebec did not give bilingualism top priority.

Mr. Trudeau said Premier Bertrand pretended to speak for all French-Canadians but has "obviously no mandate to speak for French-Canadians outside Quebec."

Premier Bertrand, in a tough opening statement, warned the conference that he did not come to Ottawa "to water down" the ideas of the late Premier Daniel Johnson.

He spoke almost entirely in French, breaking into English briefly near the end of his speech.

He said:

"While the style may change, it should be obvious that the substance of that policy cannot vary much. Men may come and go but the reality of Quebec endures."

CANADA TWO NATIONS

He said equating Canada's constitutional problems with a question of personal or linguistic rights would be "merely scratching the surface."

He added:

"If there is a crisis in Canada, it is not because our country is made up of individuals who speak different languages. It is because Canada is the home of two communities, two peoples, two nations between which relations need to be harmonized."

Mr. Bertrand said Canadian duality arises because French- and English-speaking Canadians have "different ways of approaching, feeling and reacting when confronted by events."

"A French-Canadian is not the same as an English-Canadian, differing only as to the tongue he speaks. He speaks differently because he is different."

Mr. Bertrand reaffirmed his faith in the federal system of government but said the constitutional system should "reconcile the free growth of Canada's two cultural communities."

He said "the iron rule of democracy" dictates that the Quebec government identify itself with Quebec's French-speaking majority.

CITES PROBLEMS

He said a French-speaking Quebecer sees the constitutional problem this way:

"The important thing for French-Canadians from Quebec is not to be allowed as individuals to speak their mother tongue even in regions of the country where it has little chance of being understood.

WAC Happy —There Is No Crisis

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia said today he is glad his colleagues now realize Canada isn't in a condition of crisis.

"There is none of this talk about crisis at the conference now," Mr. Bennett told reporters as he emerged from the opening session of the federal-provincial constitutional talks.

"Things are on a more settled basis now, and the conference is going on very nicely."

The British Columbia premier recalled that he had "pointed out last year that there was no crisis," when he came to the 1968 federal-provincial conference.

"They laughed at me when I said there was no crisis," he said. "Now they've got the message."

He was especially glad that the premiers of Quebec and Ontario had stopped talking about "a crisis atmosphere."

Sharp Orders China Talks

OTTAWA (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said today he had instructed the Canadian embassy in Stockholm to launch negotiations toward an exchange of diplomats with Communist China.

"Our embassy in Stockholm has been instructed to get in touch with the embassy of the People's Republic of China in order to convey the Canadian proposal that talks concerning relations between the two countries be held at a mutually convenient time and place in the near future," Sharp said in a statement to the House.

He said he hoped that "before long we shall have a reply from the Chinese government and that representatives of our two countries can then begin to discuss the question of recognition . . . and the exchange of embassies between Ottawa and Peking."

Sharp said the government would explore with Chinese officials the "whole range of Sino-Canadian relations."

He hoped the discussions would include the possibilities for "expanding and developing" existing relations in a number of areas.

"Even without diplomatic relations, we have been able to develop our trade, exchange correspondents between Ottawa and Peking and increase contacts between Canada and China in a number of fields in recent years."

Sharp said there would be "a number of questions" for officials to discuss with the Chinese.

"It is not only a question of working out a satisfactory basis for recognition and the exchange of embassies, but of reaching agreement on a number of details relating to the operations of a Canadian embassy in Peking and a Chinese embassy in Ottawa," he said.

Sharp's statement did not refer to Canada's existing relations with the government in Formosa.

Crippling Blizzard Hits Eastern U.S. States

NEW YORK (AP) — New York was crippled and cut off from its suburbs today in the wake of a storm that dumped 15 inches of snow, piled into drifts whipped by high winds.

The New York and American stock exchanges closed.

The Long Island Rail Road shut down, cutting off 90,000 commuters. The Penn Central and New Haven railroads drastically cut schedules, and buses were mired in huge traffic jams caused by stalled and deserted vehicles.

The State Thruway was closed from Albany to New York City —148 miles—for the first time in its history, and more than 1,000 cars were stranded on the Tappan Zee Bridge, a thruway span across the Hudson River at Tarrytown. The passengers took shelter locally.

Subways were running near normal. All public and parochial schools and colleges were closed, as were all branches of the public library.

Kennedy International, La Guardia and Newark airports were closed. More than 6,000 persons were stranded at Kennedy, where food supplies were being rapidly exhausted. Roads to the airport were blocked by stalled vehicles. One jetliner with 39 passengers was snowbound on a runway for nine hours Sunday before plows could free it.

Thirteen of New York City's 15 inches fell Sunday, a record for a single day.

Winds gusting to more than 40 miles an hour and temperatures in the 20s complicated the snow removal problem, as city officials declared a "snow emergency" and urged motorists to stay at home.

Northern New Jersey was equally crippled. Public schools in seven Northern New Jersey counties were closed, and many other areas reported partial closings.

TURNPIKE CLOSED

The New Jersey Turnpike was shut from New Brunswick to Newark, and other parkways were plagued by deserted autos.

Connecticut commuters had it no better. Canaan, in northwestern Connecticut, reported 35 inches of snow.

EARTH TREMOR SHOCKS ACCRA

ACCRA (Reuters) —Fifteen persons were taken to hospital Sunday night with shock and minor injuries after a short earthtremor briefly blacked out most of the Ghanian capital. The tremor, which lasted about three seconds, occured at 7:30 p.m.

Attendant Cries Wolf

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — Service station attendant Glen Keye was having a routine day Saturday until he lifted the trunk of a small foreign car to fill the tank and found himself looking at a snarling wolf.

After slamming the hood down he yelled to the car driver, Robert Campbell of Walkerton: "There's a wolf in your trunk."

Mr. Campbell explained he struck the wolf as it crossed the highway and thinking the animal was dead, tossed it into his trunk so he could collect the provincial bounty on the animal.

BYELECTION VOTING STEADY

Polls opened at 8 a.m. today as voting got under way in 188 polling divisions in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

Of the 48,494 registered voters in the riding, 2,051 live in the Sooke-Metchosin area. Voters will elect a member of Parliament for the long-time NDP constituency that has been without an MP since the death of Colin Cameron July 28.

By noon today various party headquarters at Nanaimo, Duncan and Sooke described the turnout as steadier than expected. Most party spokesmen estimated the turnout would be higher than in the June federal elections due to the interest sparked during the byelection campaign.

Language Rights Crucial And Misunderstood—PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau opened the federal-provincial constitutional conference today with a firm restatement of his belief that language rights are essential to Canadian unity.

"Our policy of bilingualism has been widely misunderstood," the prime minister said in his opening statement.

"It does not mean that every English-speaking Canadian must learn to speak French any more than it means that every French-speaking Canadian must learn to speak English.

"It means that every Canadian will have access to public education in either official language, and will be free to use either language in dealing with other public bodies, in all areas of the country where the size of the minority justifies it.

"Only when this has been achieved will all Canadians, of both languages, feel that the whole of Canada is their country."

Mr. Trudeau said both French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians must enjoy the fullest rights of citizenship. "Wherever they live, they must feel at home."

WILL NOT RETREAT

The federal government had come to recognize language rights as fundamental in Canada. There could be no retreat from that position.

Either language rights would be recognized throughout the country, or mutual suspicion and mistrust would push the country to the point of disintegration. "That is Canada's challenge, and together we must answer it," the prime minister said.

He acknowledged that extension of language rights across Canada could cause technical and financial problems. However, "we are ready to discuss these problems with the provinces, and to consider any proposals for assistance in solving them."

Before Parliament now is the federal government's official languages bill, which would establish bilingual districts where federal services would be available in both official languages. Action on the bill has been delayed pending the outcome of the current conference.

Mr. Trudeau noted that several provinces have adopted measures to extend language rights since last February's federal-provincial conference. The all-important matter of education comes under provincial jurisdiction.

MUST BE PROTECTED

"Now that we have taken the first steps in this direction, we cannot afford to hesitate or fall back," Mr. Trudeau said. "Language rights are too important to too many Canadians to be left without adequate protection in our law.

"We must place them beyond question and beyond attack by guaranteeing them to all Canadians in our revised constitution."

The prime minister said he knows that constitutional reform and language rights aren't the only problems demanding the government's attention.

The country had many economic and social problems crying for solution, and it had been suggested that the conference should deal with them and set constitutional issues aside for the present. But the time had passed for such stop-gap action. The underlying problems of Canadian nationhood had to be examined.

"Canadian unity, and federal-provincial co-operation, have been called in question too often for us to think that another temporary expedient will do. We must discuss the fundamental problems — the constitution, which defines the framework of Canadian unity and sets the rules of federal-provincial co-operation."

MAKES STRONG PLEA

Mr. Trudeau made a strong plea on behalf of the bill of rights that he wants to insert in a revamped Canadian constitution. There was no question of the federal government encroaching upon provincial jurisdiction, "since it is not a matter of transferring legislative powers from one government to another."

"It is only necessary that we be in agreement to restrict the power of all governments, so that they will no longer be free to prevent the exercise of individual rights which we would all agree to guarantee."

On the question of regional economic disparity, which some of the provinces are anxious to discuss, Mr. Trudeau said he, too, wants "to find more equitable ways of distributing opportunities throughout Canada, and we welcome a full discussion of the best constitutional means of achieving this goal."

No Justification for Restrictions

BERLIN (CP) — The three Western allies declared today there is no justification for East Germany to impose restrictions on surface routes to West Berlin. (See story Page 3.)

The electors are expected to fly to the Communist-encircled city in order to evade the new restrictions.

The United States, Britain and France noted in a joint statement that the assembly had met on three previous occasions in West Berlin.

"The three governments consequently hold that there is no justification for the East German announcement on Feb. 8," the statement said.

"This announcement is moreover inconsistent with the fact that the Soviet Union, not East Germany, is responsible for free and unhindered access to person and goods to Berlin. The three governments have in the past reminded the Soviet Union of this responsibility. Their position has not changed."

The statement said the West German decision to hold the presidential election in West Berlin was taken "after due consultation with the three powers within the framework of their responsibilities for Berlin."

ADN, the East German news agency, said Sunday the restrictions become effective Feb. 15. It made no mention of the air links to West Berlin, 110 miles inside East Germany, since the air lanes are controlled by the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, the four postwar occupation powers.

The ban affects the 1,036 delegates to the Federal Assembly, about 300 aides and assistants and all members of the West German armed forces. The assembly is to elect a successor to West German President Heinrich Luebke, who is retiring.

Representatives of the United States, Britain and France, whose occupation of West Berlin is still technically in force, were expected to issue a protest to the Soviet Union. A spokesman in Bonn said it would be "firm but low-key."

EAST BERLIN (Reuters) — Marshal Ivan Yakibovsky, supreme commander of the Warsaw pact forces and a first deputy Soviet defence minister, arrived here today on a surprise visit. The purpose of the visit was not announced, but a Soviet embassy spokesman said it was connected with "the current situation."

OIL SLICK MOVING TOWARDS LOS ANGELES

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (Reuters)—A giant oil slick moved slowly down the coast of California today as workers in the Sanat Barbara area used jetstreams of scalding water to clean coastal rocks.

Experts were divided on whether the oil would hit beaches in the Los Angeles area.

The oil came from a Union Oil Co. well six miles off Santa Barbara. The well, which leaked 21,000 gallons of oil a day for 12 days was sealed Saturday and company officials promised it would be closed permanently.

enues and it it were not to overtax its people, it would have to reduce educational, health and other programs.

If this happened, the face of the country would be changed a great deal more than by a rewritten constitution.

Mr. Robarts said there is no confrontation or crisis between Ottawa and the provinces. There was merely an exchange of views.

SEEK FISCAL PRIORITY

Some of the premiers have asked that fiscal matters be given precedence on the agenda.

Mr. Trudeau has indicated a willingness to accommodate them. He said agreement might have to be worked out over dinner tonight if there was not time at the conference table. Governor-General Michener will give a dinner for the premiers tonight.

The strongest support for the federal position on extending language rights came from New Brunswick's Premier Robichaud.

He told the conference his province accepts fully the consensus reached at last year's opening constitutional discussions, stating that French-speaking Canadians should have the same rights outside Quebec that English-speaking Canadians have within Quebec.

He also believed that the federal government's official languages bill deserves support in entirety from all Canadians.

Nova Scotia's Premier Smith told the conference the country's two main problems, language rights and regional disparities, do not have to wait for agreement on a new constitution.

Mr. Robarts told reporters the conference had opened amicably.

Premier Robichaud said he was "greatly pleased" by the start.

"From reading the newspapers, one wouldn't have thought the mood would be quite so conciliatory," he said.

Provincial Treasurer D. G. Steuart of Saskatchewan, his province's delegation leader, commented that "Quebec is just as worried as the rest of us about money."

He added that he was surprised Mr. Bertrand had not taken a stronger stand on language rights.

Undersea Gardens In 'Middle of Mess'

By ED GOULD

One Victoria business has more than a passing interest in the black tide of oil that has been washing on the beautiful beaches of Santa Barbara, Calif., in the last two weeks.

Peter Tredgett, general manager of Pacific Underseas Gardens Ltd., said today his firm has been concerned for marine life at a branch of their Victoria operation which "sits right in the middle of the mess" in Santa Barbara harbor.

He credits the presence of a huge task force of men recruited by Union Oil of Calif.—owners of the erupting undersea well—for the safety of the tourist attraction's exhibits.

"It was a lucky break for us that they were right on the spot and have ben using our gardens as a headquarters," he said.

The workmen are using bales of straw which soak up five times their own weight in the sticky, black crude oil. Tank trucks were also being utilized to drain oil right off the surface of the water. About 10,000 gallons had been siphoned off in the last two days, he said.

Mr. Tredgett said it was also a benefit to the safety of sea life that authorities had decided to use the soaking-up process rather than dumping huge quantities of detergent on the oil.

"The oil is a danger to bird life and to a certain extent to seals but detergents endanger all wild life," he said.

Tourism has dropped drastically in the area since the oil invasion began but there "has been no shortage of idle curiosity seekers," he said.

Grace Ends Visit

QUEBEC (CP) — Princess Grace of Monaco was surrounded by well-wishers today as she boarded a Quebec government jet for Philadelphia after a five-day visit to Quebec City's winter carnival. The princess flew to Philadelphia to visit her family before returning to the tiny principality of Monaco on the Mediterranean Sea.

"What they want is the opportunity to live together in French, to work in French, to build a society in their image and to be able to organize their community life so that it will reflect their culture.

"And this cannot be achieved unless the government of Quebec has powers proportionate to the responsibilities its population expects it to shoulder.

"Without Quebec there might still be French minorities, but French Canada would no longer exist."

GOODWILL NOT ENOUGH

Mr. Bertrand said the new constitution should establish "authentic federalism," meaning that distribution of powers should not be left to "the goodwill of a central authority."

The distribution of powers between the two orders of government should be based "on a written constitution, recognized and respected by all as the country's fundamental law."

"In other words, there has to be priority of the constitution over the two orders of governments, not priority of the central power over the federated states."

Mr. Bertrand invited Canadians "who care about their country's future" to obtain a copy of the Quebec government's working paper issued before the conference.

The document, which does not represent "the final position of the Quebec government," suggests that Canada become a republic with Quebec becoming a republic within a federal Canadian union.

DISCUSS DOCUMENT IDEAS

He asked that the document be read carefully, be discussed and commented on.

Mr. Bertrand said the present constitution "has not stood in the way of systematic and authoritarian federal encroachment upon provincial jurisdiction."

He said Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberal government "thinks it can meddle everywhere."

He listed the fields of federal meddling as:

Educational radio and television; cultural matters, urban affairs; offshore mineral rights; securities; higher education; university research; water, air and soil pollution; highway transportation; and "in foreign affairs even when they relate to education and other matters under provincial jurisdiction."

PLAY SECOND FIDDLE

Mr. Bertrand said the Trudeau government seems to think provincial governments "are, at best, administrative units expected always to play second fiddle to a rich, all-powerful and overbearing federal power."

The premier made one direct reference to the Trudeau government's proposed charter of human rights, saying: "We may need a bill of human rights, but I say that we also need a bill of provincial rights."

Mr. Bertrand said constitutional reform "offers the only permanent solution for the deep crisis afflicting Canada."

"Above all, it has become essential to give French Canada—of which Quebec is the mainstay—a deep conviction that it can find in the Canadian federation all the elements requisite for its own development."

He said "doubts have crept into the minds of many Quebecers," and "this questioning and uncertainty cannot last forever." He noted that "movements in Quebec have already come into being whose avowed purpose is to end the federal experiment."

Mr. Bertrand said he is "convinced that the task is not beyond the intellectual scope, the inventive ability, the strength of friendship inherent in Canadians of either culture."

WIRE BRIEFS

600 Stay Home

TORONTO (CP)—About 600 Ontario Hydro employees stayed off their jobs today, the smallest number since workers started a series rotating strikes against the publicly-owned electric commission Feb. 3. A company spokesman said indications are the Toronto area is the only one affected by today's strike.

Three Killed As Rock Crushes Car

VANCOUVER (CP — Heavy rain, winds up to 62 miles an hour and temperatures reaching 45 degrees during the weekend led to slides in southern British Columbia which closed five main highways and killed three persons.

Dave Carter, 19, and John Anthony Forrest, 20, both of Vancouver, and Gaye Pemberton, 16, of West Vancouver, were killed when a huge rock slammed onto their car at Porteau on the Squamish Highway, 20 miles north of here.

RCMP said rock was still coming down early today and closed the highway until a survey could be made in daylight.

Mountain storms and a mile of snow slides isolated occupants of three cars along Chekamus Canyon, 60 miles north of Vancouver, and a helicopter had to be used to airlift them to safety.

The 5,200-foot summit of the Southern Trans Canada Highway between Salmo and Creston in southeastern B.C. was punched open again Sunday after being blocked by snowslides most of the weekend.

On the same highway 130 miles east of Vancouver, traffic was halted Sunday morning by a slide. The road was later opened to a single lane.

Boy Scouts Plan Gorge Canoe Race

A canoe race from Gorge Bridge to Inner Harbor will officially start Boy Scout Week at 2 p.m. next Sunday.

The Weather and You

The weather quite often doesn't follow a pattern, as cold fronts and warm fronts play hopscotch all over the continent. And consequently, people are both surprised and inconvenienced, especially if they are travelling. New York City, Toronto and Chicago, for example, each can have some very different weather at the same time, although they are not very far apart.

One day in January I was in New York with a topcoat (it was 10 degrees above zero) in clear weather. Because I was headed for Toronto and expected cold weather there, I bought a stadium coat and then took off by jet. The temperature in Toronto, two hours later, much to my surprise and some disappointment, was just below freezing. No heavy coat was needed. My preparation for cold weather was unnecessary.

The next morning, with a Toronto temperature of 33 above, I took off for Chicago, expecting to melt in the big benny. But at Chicago the wind was whistling and it was cold. The temperature was down to 23 below! The heavy coat was very welcome.

The weather helps to make our continent a wonderful place to live—never monotonous, always exhilarating and often surprising.

GIANT 747 LEAVES GROUND ON FIRST FLIGHT

Nixon Visit Seen As Morale Booster

BERLIN (Reuters) — West Berlin, pawn in two decades of East-West confrontation, will get a boost for its morale when President Nixon visits here Feb. 27.

The president will come at a time when West Berlin is facing a new set of restrictions on its land access routes which some Berliners gloomily feel is just the latest move in a relentless Communist campaign to undermine the city.

His visit, a week before controversial West German presidential elections here, is seen as a clear demonstration of America's firm commitment to the troubled city.

The latest trouble came Sunday when East Germany clamped down on transit rights through its territory for all those taking part in the presidential elections March 5 and for West Germany army personnel.

The new restrictions were extensions to similar ones imposed last year banning members of the far right-wing National Democratic party and senior government officials from using land and rail routes across East German territory to West Berlin.

GUARANTEE ESSENTIALS

Free access to and from the city, 110-miles inside East Germany, is one of "three essentials" which the Western allies —Britain, France and the U.S. —have committed themselves to guarantee.

The two others are:

—The right of the three Allied powers which have special responsibilities in Berlin, to maintain troops in the city, at present estimated at 12,000.

—The maintenance of Berlin's viability and the freedom of its population.

Both East and West Germany Sunday accused each other of violating international law, one for holding the elections in the city, the other for introducing the access restrictions.

The charges illustrated the different interpretation of access rights and the status of West Berlin.

West Germany claims West Berlin is part of it economically, financially and administratively while East Germany and its socialist allies maintain the city is an independent political entity on East German territory and not part of West Germany.

SUMS UP POSITION

The Allied position was summed up clearly by President John F. Kennedy in 1961 when he said: "Berlin is not a part of East Germany, but a separate territory under the control of the Allied powers. Thus our rights there are clear and firmly rooted."

"We cannot and will not permit the Communists to drive us out of Berlin, either gradually or by force," he said.

Two years later, he told 1,000,000 cheering West Berliners, "I am a Berliner" which people here have never forgotten. It was the first time a U.S. president came to post-war Berlin.

Many Berliners feel it is time for the Allies to put their promises into action and take a firm stand against the gradual undermining of the Berliners' determination to survive and prosper in their isolated position.

High Pay Demands 'Exceed' Production

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians are demanding higher levels of income than they can really earn, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today.

"Our greatest man-made problem in Canada today is inflation," he said in an address at the opening of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association annual convention.

"Prices and wages are rising faster than productivity. Canadians generally are demanding levels of income that they cannot really earn. Result . . . the steady debasement of the Canadian dollar. Our financial house is being undermined by exaggerated claims on the part of all of us—all of us as consumers, in management and as labor."

One way to halt inflation was to reduce the protection which Canadian labor and industry enjoy against foreign competition.

Mr. Davis noted that under the Kennedy round of tariff cuts, the U.S. duty on Canadian lumber was eliminated and the duty on other wood products considerably reduced.

At the same time, some wood products manufacturers will have to adjust to new and more competitive conditions while others may shift to new lines or get out of business. "But this is where the federal government's new program of adjustment assistance comes in."

Mr. Davis said freer trade will work in the direction of specialization and longer production runs, as advocated by the Economic Council of Canada.

Big Jet 'Pilot's Dream'

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) —The huge Boeing 747 jet airliner designed to carry up to 490 passengers flew for the first time Sunday and but for a single flaw its pilot called the test trip "absolutely ideal".

"It's a pilot's dream. . . . It flies like an arrow," said pilot Jack Waddell, 45, as he stepped from the cockpit of the $20,000,000, 355-ton prototype of the new fleet of superjets.

The flaw—an improperly aligned wing flap—forced the jet to return to Paine Field here after one hour 15 minutes of a scheduled 2½-hour flight. The trouble was discovered 34 minutes into the flight.

The faulty flap—termed later by Waddell as a "minor discrepancy"—was discovered by Flight Engineer Jess Wallick at about the same time Waddell radioed feeling "a bump" during tests of the wing control system.

Waddell said he hopes the second flight can be held within a day or two.

RANGE 6,000 MILES

The 747 is about 2½ times larger than the biggest jetliners now in service, capable of flying 6,000 miles non-stop at a cruising speed of 625 miles an hour.

Its dimensions are massive—tipped on end it equals a 20-storey buliding — and its four giant jet engines are amazingly quiet and smoke-free.

Greater Use of Buses Urged To Solve Urban Car Problems

TORONTO (CP) — Federal government willingness to help solve urban transportation problems has been misinterpreted as intrusion into municipal or provincial affairs, J. W. Pickersgill, chairman of the Canadian transport commission said here today.

Most large cities owe their growth to "extra-urban" or "extra-provincial" transport, the former transport minister said at the first Canadian urban transportation conference sponsored by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

"An argument can certainly be made that the federal authorities should be willing to help solve urban transportation problems which are created or aggravated by transportation agencies which are under federal jurisdiction."

But such help should not be regarded as an intrusion "once the province or city has made its own basic decisions."

Railway line relocations, access to airports and the provision of crossings over natural harbors or waterways were examples of areas where federal help should be applied.

MATTER OF CONCREN

Mr. Pickersgill said the problem of transportation in large cities was a matter of national concern, but "by no stretch of the constitution is the solution of these strictly intra-urban problems a responsibility of the federal government."

He suggested a way should be found to stop the growth of Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver "before they reach the apparently unmanageable size of many American and some European cities."

He didn't think it likely that any other Canadian city, except Toronto and Montreal, would require a subway system. But cities such as Winnipeg, Vancouver and Ottawa could make use of "some form of public transit operating on partially separated rights-of-way."

Mr. Pickersgill advocated "intelligent adaptation" of the use of buses as the most promising approach to public transport, and added "bus operations or mass transit systems do not necessarily have to make money to be economical."

He said a hard look should be taken at amount of space used to move private cars, particularly at rush hours.

"One possibility might be to require special and much more expensive motor licences for private cars using expressways at rush hours."

Stressing the need for co-ordinated research into problems of urbanization, Mr. Pickersgill said about half the population live in cities of 10,000 or more.

"It would surely be unnatural if the government of their country was not concerned about their welfare."

Some Common Ground?

WHETHER or not Mr. Bennett saw Anthony Westell's interview with Prime Minister Trudeau in Saturday's issue of the Times, the latest report of his desire to debate federal and provincial jurisdictions at Ottawa falls readily in line with Mr. Trudeau's expressed wish. The British Columbia brief earlier had urged broader powers for the provinces than those specified in Section 92 of the BNA Act.

Mr. Trudeau has explained that he sees no point in the provincial premiers coming to the federal-provincial conference merely to demand more money from the central government. In fact he has said that if that is the main purpose of the gathering, and the premiers are not willing to discuss bilingualism, then they might as well pack up and go home. But apart from the essential topic of lingual equality, the Prime Minister says "I very much hope there will be a debate on the constitutional aspects of the money spending power."

He elaborated on the need to talk about principles rather than handouts: "Should the federal government use its spending power in the way it does? Should it have a larger spending power in order to lead the country into more social welfare legislation and regional development, or should it have a narrower one . . .? All these questions are up for debate. I want to see them debated."

On this basis, then, Mr. Bennett may supply a partial counter-balance to the three Prairie premiers who have said they will insist primarily on discussing money-sharing as a budgetary matter rather than a principle. He has other prime targets, of course, as outlined in the British Columbia brief released several weeks ago and republished last Thursday as an appendix to his budget speech. Mr. Bennett is too old a hand at these matters to anticipate any easy solution to such controversial questions. In fact, he said in his budget speech that the constitutional review "will likely require a good deal of study and deliberation before agreement will be reached" — a fairly obvious indication that he believes this will be one of many such meetings.

Mr. Bennett's observation that the federal government controls 80 per cent of the corporate income tax and 72 per cent of the personal income tax, and that it ought to withdraw completely from these revenue sources as well as from the collection of succession duties and turn them all over to the provinces, is a measure of the extremes to which he is willing to go to increase provincial revenues. It has been estimated that if Ottawa gave up all the revenue that the provinces are demanding it would be left with only 45 per cent of what it now receives, and would be unable to operate as a central government. Clearly, compromise will have to be the order of the day.

It should be no news to the provincial premiers that the people of this country are watching them as Canadians first and provincial voters second, and that their performance at the conference will be judged from this standpoint. Some premiers, including Mr. Bennett, have frequently acted on the opposite premise. But when it comes to a question of nationhood versus parochialism there can be only one answer.

The Trading Door Is Open

MOST ATTENTION GIVEN TO the preliminary report of the special Canadian mission to Latin America centred on the political questions it raised, specifically whether or not Canada should become a member of the Organization of American States. But the mission was equally concerned with trade and made a number of important recommendations on other subjects.

The five cabinet ministers and 25 senior government officials who made the month-long tour through nine Latin American countries found great opportunities for Canadian firms. They agreed however that it will be necessary to improve export credit financing for companies wishing to do business in the area and possibly increase government assistance for engineering and consulting firms operating there.

At the same time Canada should be seeking ways to assist Latin Americans to sell their goods here and thereby build up more credit and purchasing power. The report also suggests the federal Travel Bureau could assist Latin American countries to develop better tourist promotion operations here, which would lead both to Latin America acquiring more dollars and building understanding through social contact.

Only three per cent of Canada's total trade is with Latin America and the report concludes this is a "disappointingly low level, particularly in view of the potential that exists and in comparison with other countries overseas and with the trade of other countries with Latin America."

The report also points out that Canada and Latin America have many common economic interests, including Argentine wheat pricing and marketing, and mining policy in Chile, Peru and Mexico. It also lists 15 specific enterprises where it believes there are special opportunities for Canadian companies in Latin America.

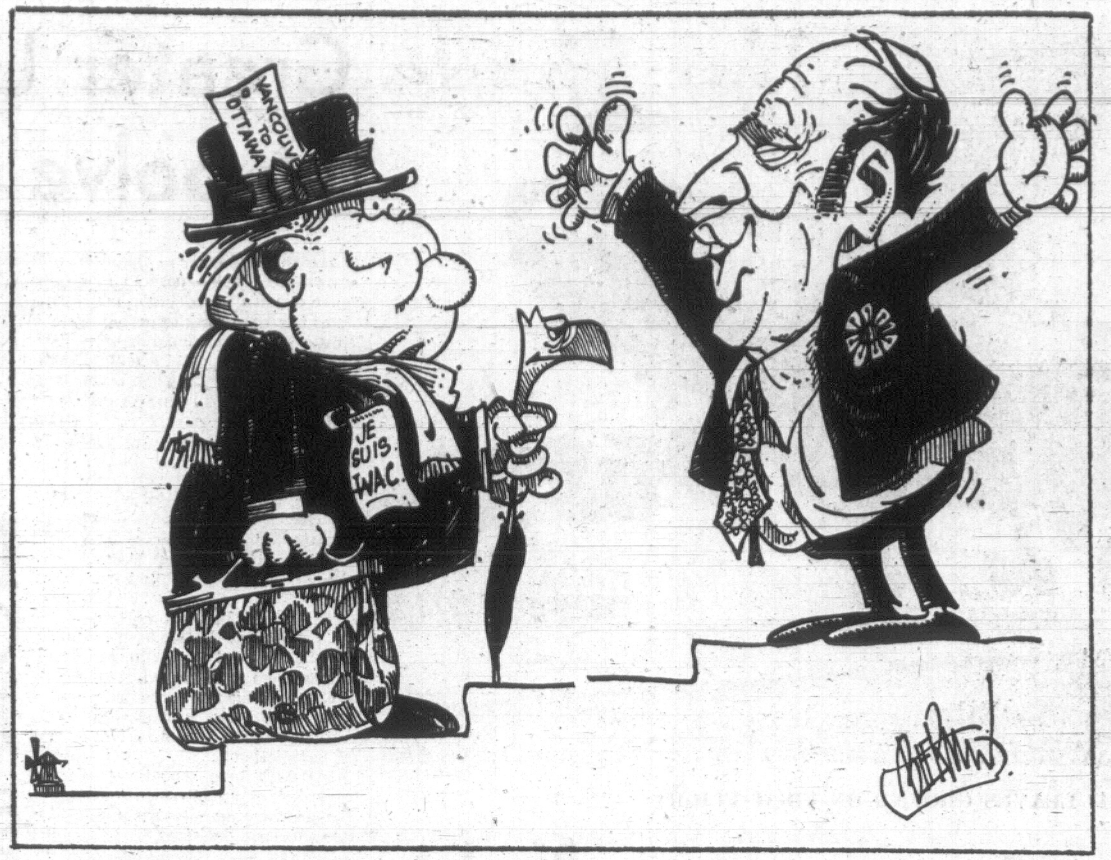
These are avenues that can be followed up without delay. If we proceed first to increase our trade and contacts with Latin America then some of the political problems, on which there have been differences of opinion, should fall into place more easily later.

A Trail Well Broken

THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF THE capital region board has now passed to Mayor Hugh Stephen, and it would not be proper to note the changeover without a reference to the man who guided the new political entity through its first three formative years and established a record of able service which has done much to get the regional concept off to an excellent start in this locality.

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich did an admirable job of trail-breaking for both the regional district and the hospital district which maintains a similar but separate existence. Since the operations of the regional boards dealt with some of the most essential needs of the community it was natural that board actions would on occasion arouse controversy. And while Mr. Curtis had his share of this aspect of the chairmanship, it is clear that he handled his assignment with fairness and competence in dealing both with the municipal governments and the provincial authorities.

Taken on as an additional job to the mayoralty of a thriving municipality, the regional work obviously demanded a large amount of time and effort. This was given unstintingly by Mayor Curtis. The people of this area may pride themselves on the success of the regional form of administration in its productive three years of existence, and in doing so they should willingly accord a large share of the credit where it is due.



". . . William Andrew Cecil Bennett . . . am I glad to see YOU . . . and whatever you want, the answer is 'NO' . . ."

UNITED NATIONS, NEW YORK

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

Nixon's Policy Style: Cautious Innovation

Frye

PRESIDENT Nixon's first steps in the field of foreign policy give promise of a "new deal," both in style and in substance. Nixon's foreign-policy style is emerging as cautious innovation — a willingness to break out of old ruts but an avoidance of precipitate or ill-considered change. The substance of the new administration's foreign policy is still very much in the formative stage. But some of the directions and priorities are becoming apparent.

The President is rectifying an imbalance of recent years between Asia and Europe. His projected trip to NATO capitals next March or April underlines an increased emphasis on Europe.

The shift is made possible, of course, by the fact that Nixon has inherited from the Johnson Administration a Vietnam peace conference, however sterile, and a somewhat de-escalated war. But the decision to capitalize on this state of affairs was his.

Nixon is approaching relations with the Soviet Union with much circumspection. Gone is President Johnson's air of eagerness for a rapprochment. Nixon is open to Soviet-American co-operation, but appears to be waiting for Moscow to make significant moves in his direction.

Diplomats, who often see international dealings in terms of a horsetrade, interpret this stance as an effort to "sell" a detente to the Soviet Union — something Johnson and Dean Rusk also attempted to do, but perhaps not at quite so high a price.

Nixon has implied, for example, that Soviet-American talks on missile control must await progress toward an easing of differences on political issues such as the Mideast. The new administration is, in effect, attempting to "re-sell" Washington's earlier agreement to the missle talks.

A Price for Talks

This tactic rests on the obvious assumption that Moscow wants the missile talks enough to pay a price for them. That assumption may be correct, but it is not supported by all the evidence of recent years. The United States urged the talks for a long time before the Soviet Union finally consented to take part.

On the Middle East, Nixon and his aides seem to be inching their way out of alignment with Israel, or at least out of the near-total alignment which characterized the previous administration.

If the United States Constitution is amended, as many have urged, to abolish the electoral college, thus (among other things) reducing the political importance of the Jewish vote in New York, the trend toward a more "even-handed" Mideast policy can be expected to continue, though still within the broad context of support of the security and continued existence of a Jewish national state in the Holy Land.

Were the Soviet Union to modify its all-out support of the Arabs, both great powers might become more even-handed. In the last analysis, it is Moscow which has pinned Washington so largely in Israel's camp — a fact which the Arab states might do well to consider.

One by-product of Nixon's new approach to the Mideast is a trend toward Franco-American reconciliation.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle has long urged Big Four action to knock Arab and Israeli heads together, and Nixon now has agreed to have his UN delegate sit down in a four-power forum.

The implications of this decision range well beyond the Mideast. It was because Washington resisted intimate Big Four co-operation that de Gaulle originally became outraged with the United States, a decade ago, and set out on an abrasively independent path.

That Nixon would like to mend this rift is suggested by the high priority he plans to give to a visit to France in the next six or eight weeks.

There are, of course, dangers on this path, too. To mend relations with de Gaulle in the waning years of his reign at the cost of reviving fears in NATO (and elsewhere) of a Big Four "directorate" would be a doubtful accomplishment.

Might Cut Knot

But perhaps this price need not be paid, if cards are played carefully; and in any event, de Gaulle's potential value as a friendlier ally is great. He might even be able to cut through some Gordian knots in the Vietnam peace negotiations.

The world scene may not be strikingly different, under Nixon, but some subtle changes already are beginning to germinate. They will force reappraisal of many old assumptions and introduce a welcome element of novelty and interest in the world picture.

By CHARLES BARTLETT

'Proper Length of a Sit-in Is 5 Minutes'

Bartlett

AN appeals court here has taken a meaningful step toward nailing down the prickly questions of what goes and what does not go on a college campus. In upholding the University of Denver's right to move swiftly last April to stop a student sit-in, the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals has enunciated a landmark challenge to the temporizing tactics with which officials in many other universities have met disruptions by the students. The court found nothing to "lend credence to the hypothesis that these students have a constitutionally protected right to close the doors of the university in order to enforce its demands." The appeal of the 39 students against their suspension was dismissed by the federal court.

This verdict marks the complete acceptance of the precipitous response by Maurice B. Mitchell, a spirited recruit to campus life from the business world, after a group of students launched a protest over a minor issue of student government. The disruption had barely begun when the students were officially expelled so that the city police could come in and take them off the campus. The incident ended before it had gathered momentum.

Tightening Attitudes

"The proper length of a sit-in is five minutes," Mitchell told a group of educators recently. "Anyone who tolerates interference with the operations of the university beyond that time is rationalizing against a background of fear that I don't understand."

The reactions to Mitchell's counteractivism illustrate a tightening attitude toward campus militancy. Student applications for the university are up 42 per cent this winter and money-raisers for Mitchell's mushrooming private institution have raised as much in the past six months as they did in the previous 12. Forty per cent of the university's student body comes from the East.

Mitchell had arrived at the university less than a year before the trouble flared. A veteran of many media enterprises, he had spent most of his career as an official of Encyclopedia Britannica and five years as its president. He accepted the invitation of the trustees of UD because he wanted to go where the action seemed to be.

He is a promising blend for university life at this juncture because he combines the toughness which he acquired in business with the empathy of a long commitment to liberalism. His distaste for being pushed or threatened is mixed with an anxiety to let the students be heard and a readiness to let the SDS attempt to enlarge its toe-hold in campus life.

Want Toothless Lions

Mitchell discerns many superior qualities in the modern young but he is ruthlessly blunt in exposing the curious vein of charlatanry which mars the spirit of protest. "Those kids want to be martyrs," he observes, "but they want to be thrown to toothless lions."

He warned the protest leaders last April that if they staged these sit-ins, they would be severely punished. "That's preferable to slavery," said one of the leaders. Mitchell dispatched a faculty leader who had been close to the protesters to calm them down. The man came back and reported no success. He told Mitchell, "You can't talk to anyone who thinks he's Jesus."

A lesson of the experience for Mitchell is that it is almost hopeless to try to negotiate one of these confrontations. Kids reach for non-negotiable issues and they say, "You won't listen to us," when they mean, "You won't give us what we want."

Mitchell believes that universities like Brandeis and Columbia have been drawn into serious conflicts because their officials paused while they tried to find a middle ground that doesn't really exist. "You can't compromise," he maintains, "while adversaries reach for your jugular."

The chancellor argues that the young militants are playing a tough game which is predicated upon their feeling that the university is a "sucker trap," a device developed by the principal components of the affluent society in order to perpetuate themselves. It is a game stimulated by newspaper accounts of student militancy in other places and by an anxiety to avoid the great sin of apathy.

The campus seems calm today but Mitchell knows the spring may bring another test. If it comes, he will greet it in the spirit of a man who does not intend to yield to threats.

Supercilious

Your editorial "A Vote for the Ladies" in your Jan. 31 issue must be one of the most supercilious you ever printed.

Because Miss LaMarsh has written a critical book, the entire female population will be suspect? Through all recorded history almost all exposes, leaks, intrigues and other assorted but like activities were instituted by men. Were they ostracized from appointments or election?

As for tossing off Miss LaMarsh and her "scribblings" so contemptuously, let us not forget that she is an able and intelligent person with a proven record of achievement. She must have her facts pretty straight as there is no rush to challenge them in the courts, and she is entitled to her opinions.

Perhaps the editorial writer sneers at her simply because she is a female and is one of those oppressive, dominating men who live in the laughable belief that they are superior to half the world's people because they are cast in the male form.—Miss Carole R. Grant, 777 Cook Street.

Teachers' Bargaining

Mr. J. R. Lamont, chairman of the B.C. School Trustees Association Economic Committee, and defeated candidate for re-election to the Castlegar School Board, has some odd comments on, and concepts of, teacher bargaining according to recent press reports. If teachers use trade union methods in salary bargaining, as Mr. Lamont says, I wish someone would tell us what the professional model for bargaining ought to be. Since we have no autonomy in setting fees like other professions, then we have to bargain with our employers. If the employer is unwilling to recognize bargaining rights, would it be an acceptable professional model to say, "Mr. Employer, you just give us what you think is right, and, as good, quiet professionals should, we'll accept your judgment"?

There are more important things for teachers than haggling with boards over basic bargaining rights. However, if some boards want to turn the clock back and reserve matters of teacher welfare to their own discretion, their primitive concept of how to handle teachers is bound to be met by an equally primitive response. Mr. Lamont is trying to have it both ways — force us into a trade union posture, and then say, "Look at the teachers, behaving like a trade union!"

The suggestion by Mr. Lamont that British immigrant teachers have reinforced our trade union orientation is ludicrous. British teachers are about the least union oriented in the world. — Tom Hutchison, President, B.C.T.F.

A Case for Rhodesia

What a pleasure at last to see some sense on the subject of Rhodesia: I refer to your quote on January 23 from the Calgary "Herald" under the above heading. Until Africans are prepared to accommodate minorities, who would want to start another Congo or Biafra!

Although pleasantly referred to in our school textbooks as the first Canadians, it would seem that our own native peoples, both Indian and Eskimo, are hardly at home in our Canada as yet, judging from what we read of them in your columns and elsewhere. It would be interesting to know what proportion each Canadian pays towards their rehabilitation compared with what is contributed by each Rhodesian to theirs.

I refer of course to Rhodesia before sanctions which only succeed in making things more difficult for everyone, African and European alike. Sanctions have never achieved a lasting settlement anywhere yet. — G. Gardner, 7090 Brentwood.

A Little Overdone

The morning of February 1, at 8:45, I went out and started the motor up, and left it after making sure all doors were locked. I went in the house for five minutes.

While inside I saw a police car from Victoria pull up. One officer was writing a ticket, the other police was trying the door, more or less forcing it to open. But he couldn't get it to open. I asked him how come I was getting a ten dollar ticket. I told him if the door was left opened, I could see the offence. He told me with a British accent it will cost me $10 to find out. I have moved here from Sault St. Marie three months ago, and find this a little overdoing it. I would appreciate hearing some comments on this from your readers. — Bill Aaron, 2070 Cadboro Bay.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times, Feb. 10, 1909.

At a special meeting of the school board, J. C. M. Keith, architect, went over plans of the proposed new school to be erected on the site purchased last year at Moss Streeet and Fairfield Road. The cost will be about $40,000, the funds for which are provided by the passage of the recent bylaw.

The plans call for a six-room building with an assembly hall. Two additional rooms could be added without altering the plans.

OTTAWA—The first time Marc Lalonde went to see Pierre Trudeau it was for advice.

Preparing to resume his studies after two years of working for youth movements, Mr. Lalonde was torn between the social sciences and law, so a mutual friend sent him to consult Mr. Trudeau who had studied both.

Mr. Lalonde also went on to study them both and now, nearly 20 years later, his job is to advise Mr. Trudeau.

As principal secretary to the Prime Minister, he is responsible for the over-all operation of Mr. Trudeau's office and advises on both policy and politics.

One of the fields in which he is most influential is constitutional policy and federal-provincial relations. When the provincial premiers join Mr. Trudeau this week under the massive chandeliers of the Confederation Room to resume their constitutional negotiations, he will not be far from the Prime Minister's shoulder.

He Has Great Influence

Mr. Lalonde is one of the best-known names and least-known men on Parliament Hill.

He is generally acknowledged to have great influence, not only with Mr. Trudeau but earlier when he was policy adviser to Prime Minister Lester Pearson. Former Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh has called him an eminence grise.

But his precise activities have remained a mystery; his name is linked with few particular events or policies and Mr. Lalonde refuses to claim credit for anything specific.

"All the good ideas come from ministers," he said with a broad smile. He argues that policies arise out of a team effort, so it would be presumptuous of him to beat his own drum.

Quebec Trouble-Shooter

He is best known as a trouble-shooter with regard to Quebec. For example, when Quebec threatened to disrupt the Belgian state visit of 1967 because Ottawa had signed a cultural agreement with Belgium, it was Mr. Lalonde who flew to Quebec City to patch things up.

More recently, he dealt with Claude Morin, Quebec's Deputy Minister of Intergovernmental Affairs, to hammer out a formula for Canadian representation at an educational conference in Kinshasa, the capital city of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, after both Ottawa and Quebec City received invitations. Their talks produced a compromise that seemed to satisfy both Ottawa and Quebec, at least as a stopgap.

"Morin is a tough man," says one source here. "He and Lalonde talk the same language in more ways than one. They're tough guys and they know their business."

Together with Mr. Trudeau and others, Mr. Lalonde has had a hand in shaping federal policy relating to the provinces since early 1966, a period during which Ottawa has developed a much better idea of what it wants.

Before the federal-provincial conference in the autumn of 1966, Ottawa seemed, like a fisherman, to be playing out line in response to a push for provincial autonomy spearheaded by Quebec.

Since then it has moved onto the offensive with proposals to get out of some joint programs and to entrench a bill of rights in the Constitution.

Mr. Lalonde's views on the Constitution are similar to those of Mr. Trudeau. "I see federalism as the way of the future; not as a vulgar compromise but really the form of government most adapted to the contemporary world, the world of tomorrow," he says.

At the Conservative thinkers' conference at Fredericton in 1964, he warned the Tories that the vocal Quebec intellectuals then denouncing Confederation did not represent a majority of the people or even the intellectuals of the province.

He predicted that French Canadians would prefer a platform of strong federalism to special status—a view that was borne out in the June election.

Suspicious of Ideology

There are other similarities. Like Mr. Trudeau, he is suspicious of ideology and nationalism. They were among seven intellectuals who in 1964 signed a manifesto calling on the Canadian people to "descend from the euphoria of all-embracing ideologies and come to grips with actual problems."

Mr. Lalonde has shunned party labels. In 1959-60 he was a special adviser to Conservative Justice Minister Davie Fulton; two years later he was a campaign worker for Liberal Paul Gerin-Lajoie, then Quebec's Education Minister.

"It has been a conscious decision to keep myself reasonably mobile," he has said.

Another view shared by Mr. Lalonde and Mr. Trudeau is that French Canadians must help make Canada work as a bilingual country by becoming involved in national affairs.

"It implies a struggle but that, I believe, is the very condition of life," Mr. Lalonde said in a 1967 television interview on the French CBC network.

Had to Be Discreet

It was this belief that led Mr. Lalonde into the movement to make Mr. Trudeau the Liberal leader.

He had to be discreet, because he was working for Prime Minister Pearson at the time but the people who were in the campaign with him agree that he was an influential figure among the central group of Trudeau-boosters.

Planning for the Trudeau candidacy began in the summer of 1967 when it was taken for granted that Mr. Pearson would soon step down, he recalls.

It was rather hypothetical—"along the lines of: you never know what could happen." But strenuous efforts were made to make Mr. Trudeau more prominent.

It was Mr. Lalonde who urged Mr. Trudeau to use a speech to the Canadian Bar Association in Quebec City in the fall of 1967 as a platform for his eye-catching Bill of Rights proposal.

The idea attracted interest across the country and helped mitigate Mr. Trudeau's image in Quebec as a defender of the constitutional status quo.

Mr. Lalonde's wife and four children still live in Montreal and he spends his weekends there. "It has to be pretty urgent before we call him on a weekend," says a co-worker.

Works Long Hours

During the week, he works long hours in shirt-sleeves in a spacious office decorated with reproductions of Canadian paintings and an electoral map of the country with colored pins showing which party holds each riding.

A tenth generation Canadian, Mr. Lalonde was born in 1929 at Ile Perrot not far from Montreal. His father was a farmer.

The family is believed to be of Norman descent and Mr. Lalonde attributes a bent toward skepticism and practicality to his Norman blood.

He graduated from the College St. Laurent in Montreal with a BA in 1950 and went to work for the Catholic Youth Movement for two years.

He then studied law at the University of Montreal and went on to Oxford where he studied political science and economics from 1955 to 1957, graduating with an MA. Returning to Canada, he taught economics and commercial law at the University of Montreal until he joined Mr. Fulton's office in 1959.

In 1960 he went back to Montreal where he took over the law practice dropped by Mr. Gerin-Lajoie who had just won a seat in the Quebec Legislature.

With Carter Commission

But he continued to teach and started to become involved in public affairs. He served as an assistant counsel to the Norris Commission on Great Lakes union violence, was an early staff member of the Carter Commission on taxation and a member of the Fowler Committee on broadcasting.

In the spring of 1966, he went to work on contract for the Privy Council as head of a task force on corporate disclosure and securities legislation and to advise on federal-provincial and constitutional affairs.

By November, the first task was completed but he stayed on part time to continue the second assignment.

Finally, in April of 1967 he became Mr. Pearson's full-time policy secretary with a broad mandate to advise the Prime Minister on everything on which he felt he had something to contribute.

Aided by a friendly manner and a flashing smile, he quickly established himself as an important figure in Ottawa officialdom. According to one associate, part of the secret of his success has been his ability to keep his views on particular issues out of the spotlight.

Fundamental Change Involved In Plan for Revised Senate

By ANTHONY WESTELL

Westell

OTTAWA — The federal plan for reform of the senate —which is before the constitutional conference as it resumes today — is in essence a proposal to create a new and powerful level of national government.

The provincial governments are being invited to nominate senators who will sit in the Upper House of Parliament as their ambassadors to Ottawa.

Through these ambassadors, the provincial premiers will be able to exercise an important influence, and sometimes a veto, on federal policies and legislation.

At Confederation, power and responsibility was divided between the federal and provincial governments. The division never worked easily in practice and has become steadily more difficult with the growth of government activity and the speed of communication.

The Pearson government recognized the problem of overlapping and conflicting jurisdictions and sought a solution — under the banner of Co-operative federalism by raising the federal-provincial conference almost to the status of a superior level of government.

Ministers and officials of the 11 governments meet, scores of times a year, usually in private, to make policy and administrative decisions binding on all and as unchangeable as treaties negotiated between sovereign countries.

But despite Lester Pearson's goodwill and efforts to accommodate the growing importance and aspirations of the provinces, relations between the provincial capitals and Ottawa are as bad now as they have ever been.

The provincial premiers entrenched in their capitals maintain a steady barrage of public criticism directed at the federal government. When they come to Ottawa as they have done today, they are usually breathing threats and creating around the conference an atmosphere of drama and crisis.

Whether the federal government merits all this criticism, or whether it is often a case of the premiers seeking a scapegoat for their own failings, does not much matter: it is clearly a divisive force.

The most important national debates are seldom taking place on Parliament Hill, which should be the focus of national government. They are conducted at long range by the federal and provincial governments, making accusative statements and angry rejoinders through the press, or on television.

●

When the heads of governments, or lesser ministers, actually meet to discuss their problems, it is too often behind closed doors which conceal the large measure of agreement reasonable men can usually find when they sit down on two sides of a bargaining table.

The Trudeau government with its plan for senate reform is now seeking to carry the policy of Co-operative Federalism beyond the stage of ad hoc conferences to formal institutions.

Question: "In a sense the Senate would become a sort of standing federal-provincial conference?"

Trudeau: "Exactly. You see the rationale behind it is to make sure that the debate does take place on Parliament Hill, and not in the press and not in occasional federal-provincial conferences; to make sure that there are provincial spokesmen on Parliament Hill. "We think this would be good for Canadian unity."

The theory is attractive. But it has been put forward almost in a casual way, with inadequate explanation, in the federal position paper for today's conference, the Constitution and the People of Canada.

It is a proposal to make a fundamental change in the structure of Canadian government, and it surely deserves exhaustive examination.

Federal ministers now seek to represent their provinces or regions, in the cabinet. Some of them resent the idea of rival spokesmen in the Senate.

They fear that provincial premiers would tend to nominate as their Senate ambassadors colorful and noisy politicians to be propagandists for the provincial cause. "Just imagine Flying Phil Gaglardi in the Senate," said a federal minister from B.C. with a shudder of distaste.

The federal position paper says optimistically: "For a revised senate, we would hope and expect that the government of Canada and the government of the provinces would engage in healthy competition to insure that the best men available are appointed . . ."

In practice of course, federal prime ministers have usually regarded appointments to the Senate as a handy form of patronage. Is there any reason to believe that provincial premiers, on many occasions, would not follow the same course, dispatching their worn-out ministers and political supporters to Ottawa?

The quality of politically nominated senators whether propagandist or pensioner, might not much matter if their power were to be confined to dealing with subjects of provincial concern.

The federal government, for example, thinks provinces have a legitimate interest in appointments to the Supreme Court and to head cultural agencies (and, for reasons less obvious, appointments of ambassadors).

It proposes to make such appointments subject to approval by the Senate, in which the provinces would have their ambassadors. If the senators made a mess of that kind of function, the damage would at least be limited.

But any attempt to make the Senate more effective, as Trudeau is now attempting, must include some provision to reduce the absolute power over Commons legislation which the upper house now enjoys.

It is alright to leave this veto power in the hands of senators who would not dream of using it, except in the most unusual circumstances, because they have been federally appointed and know their humble place on Parliament Hill.

But if senators are to be more vigorous, and less subject to federal authority, their power must be circumscribed. Therefore the federal plan is to reduce the Senate's power over legislation from veto to delay. If the Senate rejected a Commons bill, for example, the lower house could pass it again and insist on passage through the upper house.

Even so, a Senate of non-elected members, some of whom would be directly responsible to provincial premiers rather than to national interest or private conscience, would be set in position to delay the work of the elected Commons, at a time when most complaints about Parliament concern its slowness.

SENATOR PHIL?

Trudeau appeared to recognize the difficulties — and even to be doubtful about his own proposals, when he discussed them last week.

Arguing the value of the plan to the provinces, he said: "Supposing they have anything like 50 per cent or 40 per cent in the Senate, and supposing they gang up (with opposition senators) against the government they make a majority.

"I rather fear that is going to be hard to sell to the federalists. If the provincialists don't want it either, we certainly won't . . ."

Psychiatrist in Courtroom 'Acting as Judge and Jury'

By SEYMOUR L. HALLECK
Psychology Today

Psychiatric testimony in most criminal cases is based on legal myths about mental illness rather than medical fact. In day-to-day practice, the psychiatrist assumes that neither mental illness nor unconsciously determined behavior absolves one of responsibility.

The assumption that those we call mentally ill either regularly or even occasionally do not recognize the moral or legal implications of their behavior has no foundation in reality.

Out of hundreds of extremely disturbed patients I have examined only one or two who could be called unaware of the criminality of their acts. Psychiatric testimony describing the extent to which one knows he is doing wrong are based on value judgments rather than science or logic.

No Body of Fact

To be useful to the courts in an insanity trial the psychiatrist must make a judgment as to the responsibility of an offender for a particular act . . . Yet there is no body of fact or theory in the behavioral sciences which offers the psychiatrist any guide in this task.

Although there are some exceptions, it is generally true that the psychiatrist who is politically liberal, psychoanalytically oriented and deeply concerned with social justice will be more likely to find a given offender non-responsible than the psychiatrist who is more politically conservative, more biologically oriented and more concerned with individual rights and privileges.

Most psychiatrists today think of mental illness as a "social role" or as a word which describes abnormal behavior.

Yet the rules for assessing responsibility are based on assumptions that mental illness is an affliction, something superimposed upon an individual's personality.

Of all the witnesses called to give expert testimony, the psychiatrist is the only one asked to decide whether the defendant is responsible for his crime. The toxicologist, orthopedic surgeon, and the fingerprint or ballistics expert is strictly limited in his testimony to issues in his field of competence.

Only the psychiatrist is asked to testify and answer questions which go beyond his own training or competence.

In effect the psychiatrist is asked to act as judge and jury when he is asked to give an opinion on a person's guilt.

The M'Naughten and Durham rules on which insanity pleas are based, exist largely because our correctional system is preoccupied with punishment rather than rehabilitation.

The M'Naughten rule attempts to define the extent to which a mentally ill person knows the difference between right and wrong, while the Durham decision excuses criminals if their acts are the product of mental illness.

Not Applied Fairly

The insanity plea is not applied to all criminals fairly and that sending a ciminal to a hospital for the criminally insane is not necessarily a humane practice as popularly believed.

The insanity plea is only applied in spectacular cases involving unusual crimes or criminals who are socially or economically prominent. In many jurisdictions, for example, it would be quite unlikely that an uneducated Negro would plead insanity and even more unlikely that he would be found guilty by reasons of insanity.

A person found to be criminally insane and committed to an institution may be more in trouble than if he had been found guilty.

Most institutions for the insane are understaffed and one's chances for recovery are slim; time spent in a hospital is not applied to a future prison sentence. Therefore, the offender is deprived of his constitutional right to speedy trial and may spend more time in confinement than if he had been found guilty in the first place.

Changes Needed

Because no radical change in existing legal processes is likely, some directions for change are needed.

First, the psychiatrist should testify like other expert witnesses — limiting his testimony to the emotional state of the defendant without answering the impossible questions posed by M'Naughten or Durham. The judge or jury could then make up their own minds as to whether the offender possessed evil intent and should be punished.

Secondly there should be a revamping of institutions for the criminally insane whereby incompetent offenders could be provided enough help so that they would be well enough to be tried within a reasonable period of time.

If our system of correctional justice were fully devoted to protecting the community and to rehabilitating offenders, and were not so preoccupied with the goal of punishment, psychiatry and the law would not have to search for means of excusing insane offenders.

Couple Run Blockade Of Mohawk Indians

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — An unidentified Canadian couple must have thought their world had turned into a motorized television Western when they ran a bridge blockade of about 300 Mohawk Indians near here.

The Indians, continuing during the weekend their months-long protest over Canadian customs duties, blocked the Seaway International Bridge Sunday morning at the north end of Cornwall Island in the St. Lawrence River.

The couple drove their automobile through the Mohawks' lines. Three carloads of Indians jumped into their vehicles and gave chase, unaware that New York state police were waiting on the American side, at the bottom of the bridge's arch over the seaway.

State police confronted the Indians for a tense few minutes while the Canadians went through customs. Then more Indians blocked the couple on the other side of the toll booth.

Police forced that group back and the Canadians took off. The Indians sped behind them, and policemen pursued the pursuers onto four-lane Route 37 toward Massena.

Then, when the couple got a clear stretch of highway, they accelerated, authorities said, leaving the Indians behind in the snow.

The Mohawks of the St. Regis reserve, whose borders meander along both sides of the river separating Canada and the United States, claim the 1794 Jay Treaty entitles them to customs-free passage between the two counties.

But during the last several months, Canadian customs agents have been collecting duties on the bridge between Massena and Cornwall, Ont. The Indians have demonstrated, taking their fight to Ottawa, but generally have been unsuccessful.

Saturday, several hundred—some wearing hardhats and armbands and calling themselves Mohawk police — gathered around the Canadian customs house, which they have threatened to occupy. They dispersed soon after planting a sign that read, "You are on Indian land."

No arrests were made then or later during the weekend protests.

REFUSED TO PAY

The Indians attempted Sunday to send a truck loaded with food supplies to a reserve at Loon Lake in Northern Ontario. Canadian customs officials impounded the vehicle and its cargo when the Mohawks refused to pay the $5 duty.

The blockade was then set up after the Indians rebuffed an unidentified woman who offered to pay the duty. Indian leaders said it was a matter of principle, not finances.

After the chase incident, the hour-long blockade dispersed as a delegation led by Mike Mitchell met officials of the Canadian Bureau of Indian Affairs on another controversy.

Mitchell's group said they met to press their demands for self-government, including tax-free property, no police force and drastic revisions of the Canadian Indian Act.

After that meeting, with the winds picking up, the protesters dispersed, either to their reserve homes or the Longhouse meeting hall.

Duke of Westminster Backs Ulster Premier

BELFAST (CP) — The Duke of Westminster, whose vast properties include a substantial stake in Canada, is throwing his weight behind Prime Minister Terence O'Neill as election fever mounts in troubled Northern Ireland.

The duke, former member of the Commons in London, is campaigning for nomination of pro-O'Neill candidates as official representatives of the badly-split Unionist party, which has governed Northern Ireland for decades.

O'Neill, who called the Ulster election for Feb. 24, faces stiff opposition within his party from advocates of a sharply-toughened line towards groups seeking greater civil rights for Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority.

In his own constituency of Bannside, O'Neill likely will have to campaign against a radical opponent of the Catholics, Rev. Ian Paisley.

The 58-year-old Duke of Westminster represented an Ulster constituency in the Parliament in London for nine years before succeeding to his present title in February, 1967.

FORMS A COMMITTEE

He says O'Neill has proved "absolutely straight" as leader of largely self-governing Northern Ireland.

To implement his beliefs, the duke formed a pro-O'Neill committee which tonight backs Fred Gage, an ally of the prime minister, at a Unionist nomination meeting in the constituency of Enniskillen.

The Westminster committee suffered defeat Friday night when Capt. John Brooke, an O'Neill opponent and son of a former prime minister of Northern Ireland, won the Unionist nomination in Lisnaskea.

The real estate holdings of the duke — Lt.-Col. Lord Robert George Grosvenor until two years ago—include the 1,700-acre Annacis Island in British Columbia's Fraser River. The island has seen much factory development since it was purchased by the duke.

He also bought interests in a Victoria shopping centre and in development of the Vancouver waterfront.

Besides battling for Unionist nomination of O'Neill supporters, the duke has definite ideas about how he will act if nominees turn out to be opponents of the prime minister.

The duke said that as an individual he would give both financial and moral support to "unofficial Unionist candidates who support the prime minister."

Resume Relations?

JAKARTA (AP) — Cambodia's foreign minister said today President Nixon and the Cambodian chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, have exchanged letters concerning the possibility of restoring diplomatic relations between their countries.

The minister, Prince Norodom Phurissara, said Prince Sihanouk answered a letter from Nixon on the matter.

Cambodia severed diplomatic relations with the United States in May, 1965.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures declined 1½ cents on the board of trade today. All other grains and soybeans also trended lower. Trade was mixed but the pace was slow. The lack of export business and the strike of longshoremen on the east and Gulf of Mexico coasts, now in its eighth week, were major factors in the liquidation.

Wheat prices also came under selling pressure on the opening and as selling increased in the corn pit wheat liquidation picked up momentum. Prices were at nearly lows for the day on the close. Rye prices early in the session showed some relative strength but gave way under light selling near the close.

The bulk of the trade was in the hands of locals and commission houses, with some exporter buying by an international house.

Oats and barley were a light trade and prices were mostly steady on moderate domestic shipper buying for eastern feeders. Rye trade was confined to inter-month spreading.

Friday's volume: Flax, 707,000 bushels; rapeseed, 237,000; rye, 283,000.

MacMillans Cleared On Fraud Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto mining promoters George and Viola MacMillan today were acquitted of charges of defrauding the public through trading in the stock of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., a company they controlled in 1964.

Judge Harry Deyman, handing down his decision in county court, said he could not find that the market activity in Windfall stock, which rose to $1.01 from 56 cents in a single day in July, 1964, was caused by the action of the MacMillans.

"Such activity was just as likely to be caused by the earlier discovery by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., that same year, which caused activity among a number of companies with holdings in the area," Judge Deyman said.

He also said that he did not agree with the Crown's contention that the public was defrauded through the MacMillans' promotion of Windfall stock and their delay in making results of a drill core assay public.

"A press release sent out under the signature of G. A. MacMillan on July 7 regarding the property was no doubt factual," Judge Deyman said. "I can find nothing amounting to fraud in it."

Judge Deyman also said that he did not think Mr. MacMillan's decision to wait until the drill hole on the Windfall property was finished before releasing a drill report was wrong.

Crown counsel Rod Cormack said that the attorney-general's department must decide within 30 days whether to appeal the decision.

"But as far as I am concerned this is it — there will be no appeal," he said.

Windfall Oils held claims in the Timmins area of Northern Ontario, near where Texas Gulf Sulphur has since brought the Kidd Creef Copper Mine—one of the world's richest base metal deposits—into production.

Trading activity in Windfall shares was the subject of a royal commission investigation.

Mrs. MacMillan, 65, was convicted in 1967 of wash trading in the share of another company she controlled, Consolidated Golden Arrow Mines Ltd. She was given a nine months indeterminate sentence, but released after serving several weeks of it.

Wash trading is a term used to describe an attempt to affect the market price of a stock by creating a false impression of public activity in its shares.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Vancouver Booming

Vancouver Stock Exchange was booming along at a strong pace today, with 4,500,000 shares traded before noon.

Trading was running close to the record-breaking pace set on Jan. 27 when a total of 7,038,896 shares changed hands.

Mining issues were doing a terrific business with gains outnumbering losses by a wide margin.

Largo was the heaviest trader at 473,900 shares to gain .15 at .85. Buttle Lake added .20 at $9.70 and Bethex added .15 at $6.

Other gainers were Ace, up .55 to $2.75; Alwin, Consolidated Gem, Calico, Golden West, Madrona, National Nickel, Northwest Ventures, Paramount, Silver Standard, Trojan and Western Mines.

Among the losers were Calta and Silver Arrow.

Fields Stores added $2 at $27 and Pacific Western gained .37 at $16.87.

Stampede gained .25 to $15 in the oils and Allied Roxanna added .05 at $2.70.

Final volume was 5,909,000 shares compared with 5,713,000 Friday.

In industrials, Versafood gained 3 to 27, B.C. Sugar 2¾ to 54¾, Shully's Industries 2½ to 21 and Erie Diversified 2⅜ to 21. Atco fell 3¾ to 19¼ and Universal Sections 1⅝ to 21⅜.

Canadian Superior Oil lost ⅞ to 62⅝ and French Pete 25 cents to $8.70. Great Plains Development was up ¾ to 34¾.

AT MONTREAL the market turned downward in active early afternoon trading, with banks leading the decline.

The Royal Bank was down ⅝ to 23, the Bank of Nova Scotia ⅜ to 24¼ and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ⅜ to 21⅛.

Aquitaine fell ⅜ to 18¼, Calgary Power ½ to 26 and CAE Industries ¼ to 10.

Great Lakes Paper advanced ⅜ to 26¼, Alcan ⅜ to 32⅝, Canadian Pacific ⅝ to 81⅞, Cominco ½ to 40⅜.

In the industrial section of the Canadian Stock Exchange, St. Lawrence Diversified Lands, an active issue, was up 25 cents to 3.30. Wabasso was up 1¼ to 16¼.

Volume for both markets at 1 p.m. was 1,400,900 shares, compared with 1,241,500 at the same time Friday.

AT LONDON the market resumed its downward trend.

Marking-down among leading industrials resulted in falls ranging to 2s by EMI, Rank and Unilever. Reed and Bowater fell and Hollinger and Power Corp. also were down.

However, Canadian Pacific added three points to 236 on the Montreal-Toronto advance.

SNOW CLOSES N.Y. EXCHANGE

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York and American Stock Exchanges were closed today because of the heavy snowfall.

All commodity markets were also closed because of the weather.

Experts Must Check Repairs to Turbines

LONDON (CP) — Sir Basil Smallpiece, chairman of the Cunard Steam-Ship Co. told reporters Sunday the company will not acept the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth II unless an independent expert is allowed to check repair work on the ship's turbines.

John Brown Engineering Ltd. of Clydebank, which made the turbines, has said it will not allow such a check.

During the trial acceptance run of the QE2 in December, Cunard said it refused to accept delivery of the $72,000,000 vessel because of turbine difficulties and 86 unfinished cabins. The maiden cruise of the ship, originally scheduled for Jan. 19, was postponed.

Sir Basil said that without his own expert's report, he "dare not take the risk" of accepting the luxury cruise vessel.

Sir Basil plans to meet Technology Minister Anthony Wedgwood-Benn tonight to seek government support for the investigation.

Before seeing the minister, the Cunard chief faced a showdown meeting with the engine-makers chairman, Sir George Gardner and Anthony Hepper, chairman of Upper Clyde ship-builders who built the liner.

Hepper said Sunday that John Brown had the best experts possible and felt that if a commercial competitor were brought in for the investigation, it would be damaging to their company. But Sir Basil said not all experts involved agree fully with the John Brown diagnosis of what basically caused the engine trouble which had forced cancellation of four planned cruises.

U.S. to Probe TV, Radio Ownership

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Federal Communications Commission announced Saturday that it will make a study of the ownership of television and radio stations by giant corporations—and simultaneously awarded licences to three such corporations without holding hearings.

The study will deal with "all possible social, economic and political aspects" of broadcast ownership by conglomerate corporations, the commission said in a press release. Generally, such a corporation is a mix of firms that have neither a buying nor a selling relation to each other.

STUDY 'IRONIC'

Chaiman Rosel H. Hyde and four colleagues—Robert T. Bartley, Kenneth A. Cox, Nicholas Johnson and H. Rex Lee—voted for the study, which also will deal with ownership by firms "with large-scale business interests." Commissioners James J. Wadsworth and Robert E. Lee, dissented.

Terming the order for a study "ironic," Johnson said that the major position on ownership "is now so bankrupt that past errors must serve as the structural braces for actions in the public interest."

The licence assignments, which involve transfers from previous holders:

In Los Angeles, KBIG AM and FM radio stations to the Bonneville International Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon).

In Columbus, Ga., WTVM-TV, and in Chattanooga, Tenn., WTVC-TV, both to FUQUA Industries, a conglomerate which is aiming for sales in 1969 of 500 million and currently is investigating possible mergers with 25 companies.

Laurentide

Laurentide Financial Corporation Ltd. had consolidated net earnings for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1968, of $1.65 million; up from $994,350 in the corresponding period of 1967.

Directors also announced that a payment on account of dividend arrears on preferred shares will be made March 17, totalling more than $784,000, equal to 50 per cent of the arrears.

Laurentide also confirmed the purchase of 335,081 common shares of Union Acceptance Corporation, 70.7 per cent of the voting stock. Price paid was $4.1 million, equivalent of $12.50 a share.

Great Plains

Great Plains Development Co. of Canada Ltd. had a net income in 1968 of $3.3 million or $1.04 a share, the company said in its annual report.

Net income in 1967 was $3.27 million.

Crude oil sales accounted for 62 per cent of the record gross income of $9.1 million; other sales were in natural gas and gas liquids and sulphur.

The company invested $3 million in exploration. Land holdings increased by 987,000 acres, mostly in the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Great plains holds or has under option about 1.5 million acres at Wollaston Lake in northern Saskatchewan.

ATCO Industries

ATCO Industries Ltd. of Calgary made profits of $1.49 million during the year ended Sept. 31, 1968, a decrease of $200,000 from the same period of 1967.

Sales for the period were $42.1 million up from $36.3 million a year earlier.

ATCO president R. D. Southern said all major Canadian divisions showed improved sales and profits during 1968 but the earnings drop was attributed to losses by an Australian subsidiary, Worldwide Camps Inc.

Maclean TV Bid

Maclean-Hunter Ltd. has applied to the Canadian Radio-Television Commission to complete its takeover of radio station CFCN and television station CFCN-TV in Calgary.

Donald G. Campbell, vice-president of the publishing firm's broadcasting arm, told a public hearing of the CRTC that purchase of the radio and TV stations was arranged in 1966 and approved by the Board of Broadcast Governors, predecessor to the CRTC.

The deal had called for an immediate takeover of 75 per cent of the assets.

Maclean-Hunter was applying now to purchase the remaining 25 per cent, 22,400 common shares of the radio station and 21,288 common shares of the TV station.

Twin Oils Merger

about the merger of New Richfield Petroleum Ltd. and Twin Oils Ltd. have received approval by the companies.

The new Calgary-based company, to be called Twin Richfield Oils Ltd., will have assets of about $1.2 million made up primarily of 320,000 barrels of recoverable oil and 409 million cubic feet of natural gas reserves in the Medicine Hat area.

The transactions involve a reorganization of New Richfield shares of which 750,000 will be issued to R. J. Elias, president of Twin Oils, along with $120,000 in cash in return for his interest in Twin Oils. He will hold control of the new company.

Pacific Air Routes Guide Laid Down

By RICHARD HALLORAN

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Nixon set down guidelines Friday for his review of the controversial trans Pacific air route case.

In effect, the president told the airlines, members of Congress, lobbyists, and other interested parties to cease pressuring the White House while the review is being completed.

They will govern the reexamination of the case begun Jan. 24, when the new president rescinded President Johnson's awards of lucrative new air routes across the Pacific to the Orient and Australia.

The memorandum noted that as the president's jurisdiction is based on his foreign policy responsibilities, he does not intend to remit the case to the Civil Aeronautics Board for further proceedings. The president, it would appear, intends to make the decision himself.

DOMESTIC AUTHORITY

The CAB has no authority in making international awards but has complete authority over domestic routes, including those to Hawaii that are at issue in this case.

Ellsworth's memo said that the president would consider only changes made on the recommendation of the secretary of state, the secretary of defense, and his foreign policy and national security advisers.

It said that any new decisions would be based on considerations of foreign policy and national security.

Finally, the memo said the president would not receive communications from any source on the trans Pacific case other than those from the secretaries of state and defense and his other foreign affairs advisers.

Since the president intervened in the case, the White House has been inundated with communications and calls from the interested parties.

House Mortgage Interest Rates To Stay Steep

VANCOUVER (CP) — Continued high mortgage rates, rising costs of building materials and inflation in all sectors is the outlook for the housing industry this year, the National Home Builders' Association was told.

The forecast of high interest rates were given by J. S. B. Pemberton, of Montreal, financial vice-president of the Sun Life Assurance Co.

He told delegates to the association's annual convention he saw no sign of appreciable decline in the year ahead.

CHAIRMAN of Seattle-based Air West Air Lines, Nick Bez died Thursday at the age of 73. His firm, with a feeder in Alberta, serves as a regional carrier and was target last summer of takeover by Howard Hughes, who offered $80 million.

Wall Street Mood Has Wary, Bearish Feeling

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A negative, bearish mood seems to be enveloping some sections of Wall Street. If not all-pervading, it is nevertheless significant.

This, in itself, is hardly noteworthy, because such moods have been known to change by the minute, hour, day, season. What is worth paying attention to is the news that accounts for the mood.

Most fundamentally important is the campaign by the Nixon administration to slow the rate of inflationary expansion, meaning that a lot of glamor stocks that showed big profits when sales were easy are going to find selling a bit more difficult.

In addition, as money becomes tighter there is less of it to borrow and spend and invest.

Meanwhile, the big mutual funds, which have a big impact on prices, have been publicizing their view in recent weeks that cash might be just as good an investment, at the moment, as stocks.

This doesn't mean the funds have accurately assessed conditions. It should be remembered, though, that concerted action by funds and other institutional investors tends to produce the market foreseen.

Partially forgotten by the public, but not by seasoned financial men, is the potentially dangerous condition of world monetary affairs. There is much cynicism today about the relative value of one currency to another.

1968 BAD YEAR

Twice last year monetary crises rocked the world. The dollar was attacked by speculators in March, and in November there was a withdrawal from French francs. Recurrences could mean a drop in trade and therefore of profits.

The general health of the market, aside from outside influences, also is being questioned daily. The paper jam has not been cleared, speculation is rampant and the regulatory climate is stern.

The number of "fails," meaning the failure of a selling broker to deliver stocks by the fifth business day to a buying broker, actually rose in December. Although January's fails decreased, brokerage house record keeping remains dangerously confused.

The high degree of speculation has in recent days brought warnings from both the American and Vancouver stock exchanges. An official of the latter called some speculation "stupid." The American exchange banned certain speculative practices.

Biggest U.S. Tanker Readies for Arctic Run

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. has received a major subcontract in the rebuilding of the United States' largest tanker for a Northwest Passage voyage to Alaska.

The company said the contract with Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. calls for restructing a 122-foot section of the tanker Manhattan's hull.

The project involves an addition of some 2,500 tons of steel to the hull section in preparation for the first commercial transit of the Arctic passage.

The section to be rebuilt in Newport News is aft of the icebreaker bow to be built by Sun Shipbuilding under the prime contract. The 940-foot-long Manhattan will be sent through the northwest passage to Alaska's Prudhoe Bay oil fields under a contract by Humble Oil and Refining Co.

The purpose for the Manhattan's new task is to explore the Northwest Passage for possible use by tankers linking newly-discovered oil fields of Alaska's North Slope and the refining-marketing centres of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

The ship will carry about 100 scientists.

Thus far, only icebreakers and nuclear submarines have made the crossing between the Pacific and Atlantic near the North Pole.

LENDING TRUTH RULES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board has issued regulations requiring businesses to disclose the total interest and service costs charged to customers buying on credit.

The regulations, which go into effect July 1, are designed to prevent gouging on credit purchases by requiring the seller to put in writing exactly how much interest and other charges the customes will have to pay over the cost of the item.

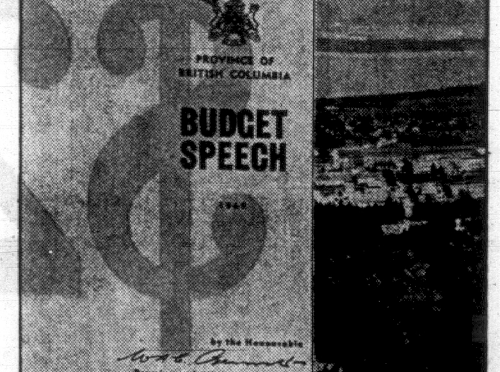
The most dynamic budget for Canada's most dynamic province!



A balanced budget with increased benefits for all British Columbia citizens-but no increase in taxes!

When a business is run successfully and keeps growing, the shareholders can look forward to increased dividends. The British Columbia Government believes in this principle of free enterprise, and it passes on the benefits of British Columbia's dynamic growth in the form of increased services or "dividends" to British Columbia's people.

The 1969/1970 British Columbia budget — the first billion-dollar budget in British Columbia's history — provides a blueprint for the province's future expansion and details how and where British Columbians will benefit in the new fiscal year.

The budget shows that everyone in British Columbia benefits from British Columbia's 17 years of continuous Government experience with its dynamic development, its long-range planning and pay-as-you-go, debt-free management.

Anne of Green Gables Will Captivate Tokyo

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Canada's beloved Anne of Green Gables will be "a travelling gal" in the next two years.

Forbes

According to Jack McAndrew, director of publicity and public relations for Confederation Centre at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, arrangements have now been completed and contracts negotiated with world fair officials in Japan for 30 performances at Osaka in late May and early June, 1970.

A London, England, production, directed by Charlottetown's artistic director Alan Lund will go into rehearsal in late February of this year for an Easter opening.

Lund was the original director-choreographer who brought the Donald Harron-Norman Campbell adaption to the stage at the Charlottetown Festival's inaugural 1965 season.

So it is that Anne, known in book form since early in this century, will now "come alive" for thousands around the world.

In Canada, no modern mini-skirted miss comes anywhere near to over-shadowing Anne's popularity.

* * *

During a tour across the country in 1967, under auspices of Festival Canada, she captured the hearts of 75,600 people in 11 weeks and established a fantastic 96 per cent capacity audience record.

Last year, her fourth at the Charlottetown Festival, Anne maintained an 85 per cent of capacity record. She returns there for a fifth season this summer and no doubt will again reign as box office champion.

The original Lucy Maud Montgomery novel on which the musical is based is almost as familiar to the Japanese as it is to Canadians. It's been required reading for generations of Japanese school girls under the title "Red-Headed Anne."

Every girl student in that country knows Anne. So do their mothers and grandmothers.

* * *

I remember some years ago when I was in Japan, seeing well-worn copies of Anne of Green Gables on Jimbo-cho, the street of the second-hand books.

This street had an interesting history. During the disastrous earthquake of 1923 much of Tokyo was demolished. When mopping up commenced it was discovered one of the few places left intact was Jimbo-cho.

Schools re-opened in makeshift quarters after the earthquake were able to acquire text books from the second-hand shops to continue teaching schedules.

The Japanese, who were (and are) great readers, took it as an omen that they must continue their love of the written word.

In those little shops with their sliding bamboo walls and tatami (woven mat) covered floors, I found most of the classics as well as modern writings from practically every country. Among them were books banned in the western world.

These shops were crowded with Japanese of all ages. The books (hard covers, paperbacks, magazines and pamphlets) seemed to fascinate them. To a point where some buyers got no further than the street before they squatted on their heels and started to read.

* * *

Indeed, in the two months I was in that country, I came to the conclusion that the Japanese—especially the men—must be the most prolific readers in the world. Wherever I looked, in streetcars, the underground, the trains, at the sides of the roads, in narrow lanes and in the parks, they were squatted with reading material in their hands.

Getting back to our Anne, Jack McAndrew tells me that coupled with the Osaka engagement in 1970, festival executive producer Bob Dubberley is investigating the possibilities of a tour of New Zealand and Australia and of Canada, prior to the world fair.

TRANSFERRED from jail-to-house arrest, former foreign minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan still plans a hunger strike in protest against the state of emergency declared by President Mohammad Ayub Khan during the war with India in 1965. However, it is reported that the emergency may be lifted in a few days as a prelude to reconciliation talks to begin on Feb. 17.

Indians Elated Over Fund

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia Sunday welcomed creation by the provincial government of a $25,000,000 fund for Indians and urged that an Indian advisory board be set up to recommend the best ways of spending it.

Guy Williams said the fund could advance B.C. Indians by five years over Indians in other provinces. "We would not want to administer the money personally until we had enough experienced Indians to do the job thoroughly but eventually this might be possible."

OLDEST INDUSTRY

16 Dead in Bombay Rioting

From AP-Reuters

BOMBAY (CP) — With at least 16 persons dead, 30 injured and 2,000 arrested, the Indian army was ordered to stand by in north Bombay today after four days of riots.

Police have fired repeatedly on mobs attacking police stations, looting stores and markets and setting fires to cars, buses and houses in the 10-square-mile riot area.

The riots were touched off by demands of the right-wing Shiv Sena organization for a self-governing state for the Marathi-speaking people who make up 90 per cent of the population of northwestern India.

Police said among those arrested were Shiv Sena founder Bal Thackeray and 40 municipal councillors who belong to the organization.

The riots in Bombay began after Thackeray announced his party would block the entry of all federal ministers into the city until the autonomy issue was settled.

An afternoon curfew was imposed on large areas of Bombay. The rioting erupted soon after a night-long curfew was lifted at dawn today. One of the persons killed today was shot as he was about to throw an acid bomb, police said.

Three police stations were set on fire during the night and police had to put out the flames themselves as firemen were unable to get through, police said.

Acid bombs were thrown at police and others from rooftops. All Bombay commercial markets were closed.

By early afternoon, police said they had isolated the riots to a one square mile area.

There were also street fights Sunday between rival political partisans during elections in two states in northeast India. Five persons including a candidate were reported killed.

The elections were held to set up state governments that collapsed in political crises last year and brought on federal rule from New Delhi.

The heaviest clashes were in Bihar state, where police fired on crowds in Gyaya and Muzaffarapur, killing four and injuring 27.

Selek Chand Sangal of the government Congress party, running for the Uttar Pradesh State assembly, was killed in a shoot-out between Congress party supporters and members of a landowner-dominated party called Bharatiya Kranti Dal.

In West Bengal state, more than 60 persons were reported injured in at least 100 minor clashes.

Mountain Hike Fatal for Boy

SEATTLE (AP)—Dale Greenback, 15, of suburban Bellevue died Sunday morning of exposure after becoming lost in heavy timber and deep snow on Cougar Mountain.

The King County coroner's office said the youth's body was found in a hollow log about 1,500 feet from a farm house. The youth's dog was still alive and curled up near the body, four miles from where Greenback was last seen Saturday afternoon by a hiking companion.

Loggers Face 2 to 3 Weeks More Idleness

Logging operations may resume in two or three weeks but only if there is lots of rain, warm weather and no more snow, company officials said today.

Duncan Manpower Centre manager Bob Robinson said his office has been quiet.

"The companies will call in their own men when the woods are open again," he said. "In the meantime they are all waiting it out at home."

B.C. Forest Products Ltd., Cowichan logging division, said a Friday snowfall of 18 inches set back an opening date at Caycuse "by at least two or three weeks." Limited operations had been planned within a week.

SOME HAULING

Log hauler Curly Marshall of Port Alberni said a limited amount of hauling is being done by his firm. Roads are being bulldozed preparatory to full operation in two or three weeks "if the weather gets warm and it rains a lot."

It rained heavily Saturday and skies were overcast with rain predicted for today.

A spokesman for Associated Falling Contractors of Nanaimo echoed the comment.

"A lot of snow has got to go first," he said.

Limited falling was being done at Beaver Cove, Nanaimo Lakes and Nitinat for Crown Zellerbach.

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. continue to use helicopters to dust snow from trees and report a limited amount of falling is being done in various areas in the southern Island.

Sidney Due for City Status In Year if Growth Continues

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The town—with an estimated population of 4,000—will top the 5,000 mark by the end of the year if home and apartment construction continues at its present pace, officials say.

The minimum population for city status under the Municipal Act is 5,000. The change can be initiated by council.

Homes worth $1,500,000 are under construction.

Another $2,000,000 in home and apartment construction is expected to be under way within the next six months.

Most of the open areas within the town are earmarked for development.

'MOST ACTIVE'

Planning director Tony Roberts said the Capital Region Planning Board is well aware of the rapid changes in Sidney.

WOOLLAM
. . . co-owner, instructor

"In relation to size and population, Sidney is the most active community on south Vancouver Island today. It's mushrooming like never before."

Some developments being considered by council and expected to be approved within the next two months are:

A B.C. Lands application to subdivide 22 acres of land into 225 home sites.

The property is bounded by Ardwell to the north, Calvin to the south, Patricia Bay Highway on the west, and Resthaven drive to the east.

An application by Eric Porter to establish a 100 home subdivision on property bounded by Canora Road, Weiler Avenue, Ocean Avenue and Patricia Bay.

TWO MORE COMING

Applications to construct two other apartments are expected to be submitted to council in the near future. One of these would be on Henry Avenue.

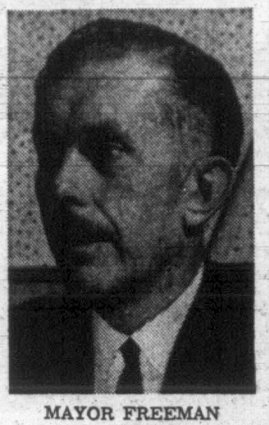
A proposal to develop a large marina on waterfront property north of Beacon Avenue is also awaiting approval.

Mayor Arthur Freeman indicated that several other major developments are pending.

More than 50 homes are under construction in existing subdivisions and 15 others are expected to start soon.

Bill Seward, newly-appointed building inspector and supervisor of public works, said vacant lots in existing built up areas are being snapped up.

"We are also getting an increasing number of inquiries for property for commercial and light industrail development," he said. "There is a demand for business offices."



MAYOR FREEMAN
. . . development-plus

There is some concern about the sewerage system which is in danger of being overloaded due to infiltration of drainage water.

Mayor Freeman said $60,000 will be spent this year to overcome the problem.

"This is only the first stage of a program to update the system," he said.

Some Sidney and North Saanich Chambers of Commerce are concerned over the slowness of the business community to expand and increase retail outlets.

Commercial development is not keeping pace with the expanding population," One Chamber official said. "If local businessmen don't act quickly, outsiders will step in and take over. We are not providing enough services."

CRASH VICTIM FROM WASH.

QUALICUM BEACH (CP) — Police have identified a woman killed Friday in a head-on crash four miles north of here as Mrs. Ruth Neilsen of Anacortes, Wash.

Mrs. Neilsen's husband William is in hospital at Nanaimo with head cuts and other injuries. He is in fair condition.

California Man Discovers Way to Hold False Teeth

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — A new discovery called Acryline is big news. Users say it fits plates so beautifully they can't believe it. Acryline uses a startling new vacuum principle. It flows on plates and forms an air tight seal. Users say this feels akin to natural teeth. This wonderful feeling lasts up to six months before a new application is necessary. Acryline is available at all drug counters.

Young Firm Buys Maple Bay Inn To Establish 'Awareness Centre'

By ED GOULD

MAPLE BAY—Unica Training Services Ltd., which offers management-personnel development courses to individuals and employees of more than 15 major western Canadian and U.S. firms, has established headquarters at Maple Bay Inn.

Ray Woollam, co-owner of Unica and senior instructor of the course, said this site was chosen over many others because of the beauty and serenity of its surroundings and easy access to major coastal cities.

A three-year-old firm, Unica has been operating here for several months but a decision was made recently to buy the hotel and establish an "awareness centre." The former owner was Jack Henson of Victoria.

The hotel will continue to function as usual with dining room, beverage room and banquet facilities.

Mr. Woollam, a graduate of the University of Maine, said nine-day sessions with 15 men to a group have already begun and a seven-day program for women—mostly the wives of Unica graduates or their friends—has also started.

COMPANY-PAID

The groups live in the hotel for the full period of the course which is in most instances paid for by the company involved.

A five-day session will be offered soon to 17 to 19-year-olds and three-hour evening lectures in communication and self-understanding will be available to people in the area.

The reason for the difference in time required by the various groups is because, "man is so highly intellectualized it takes two days longer for him to break down his barriers than for his wife. It takes her two days longer than the kids who glom onto this like they already knew it."

Companies like Crown Zellerbach (Canada) Ltd, Finning Tractor and Equipment Co. Ltd., Scott Paper Ltd., B.C. Forest Products and other major firms have been using the Unica courses for three years, Mr. Woollam said.

PLANNING

He said the trend in management is toward planning and organization and away from trying to "cram people into the plan." He doesn't believe either in the "image held by the man in the street of the big, bad corporation that wants all its little employees to conform.

"Management wants people who are in tune, but functioning out of choice," he said. "Management wants a man who can work together for a task, not a boss. The man in the grey flannel suit doesn't exist anymore because bright, young college kids won't involve themselves with firms that retain an old-fashioned, pyramidal, papal structure."

Mr. Woollam, who has led some 80 encounter-type groups like this in BC. and on the Prairies, is assisted by Jim Ward of Salt Spring Island. A former newspaperman and school teacher, Mr. Ward was provincial executive director of the Canadian Mental Health Association for six years.

Brent Simmons and other Canadian and U.S. instructors will also be involved in these group relationship training courses which operate without agenda and apparent structure.

Wings' Top Line Fires at Record

Howe, Big M, Delvecchio 21 Short of Unit Mark

FRANK MAHOVLICH
. . . fires three goals

By The Canadian Press

Centre Alex Delvecchio, left winger Frank Mahovlich and right winger Gordie Howe, of Detroit Red Wings, appear en route to setting a National Hockey League record for the most goals in one season by a line.

Mahovlich scored three goals Sunday and Delvecchio and Howe added one each as the Red Wings blanked Los Angeles Kings 5-0. The five goals lifted the line's total to 84 this season, tops in the league.

The NHL record is 105 by Montreal Canadiens' Maurice Richard, Toe Blake and Elmer Lach in the 1944-45 season. With 21 games remaining, the Detroit threesome stands an excellent chance of breaking that record.

In other games Sunday, Toronto Maple Leafs downed Chicago Black Hawks 5-3, Montreal and St. Louis Blues tied 4-4, Philadelphia Flyers and New York Rangers played to a 3-3 deadlock, Minnesota North Stars took Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 and Oakland Seals held Boston Bruins to a 3-3 tie.

The three goals for Mahovlich Sunday increased his output to 36—just 12 short of his season-high of 48 set with Toronto during the 1960-61 campaign. Howe has 29 and Delvecchio 19.

POSTS THIRD SHUTOUT

Roy Edwards, handling only 19 Los Angeles shots, was credited with his third shutout of the season in goal for Detroit and his second in four games.

The victory moved the fourth-place Red Wings five points ahead of Toronto and seven ahead of Chicago in the scramble for the final playoff position in the Eastern Division.

A three-goal outburst in the last 10 minutes helped New York gain a tie before 5,723 Madison Square Garden patrons and stay one point ahead of Detroit.

STORM HITS AREA

Simmons started the game for New York because regular goaltender Ed Giacomin and two other players could not reach the arena because of a severe snowstorm which also reduced the size of the crowd.

Philadelphia goals were scored by Jean-Guy Gendron, Don Blackburn and Andre Lacroix.

The start of the game was delayed two hours as it took the Flyers nine hours to travel from Philadelphia to New York by train because of the heavy snow.

Toronto ended a six-game winless streak and broke a tie for fifth-place with the slumping Black Hawks. Dave Keon, Larry Mickey, Paul Henderson, Tim Horton and Bill Sutherland scored for the Leafs.

Bobby Hull, Paul Shmyr and J. P. LeBlanc were Hawk goal scorers.

Third-period goals by Ken Hodge and Derek Sanderson enabled the Bruins to tie Oakland.

ALSO BATTLE STORM

The Seals got goals from Earl Ingarfield, Mike Laughton and Gerry Ehman. Boston scorers were Derek Sanderson, Ken Hodge, his 31st, and Wayne Cashman.

CFL to Review Blackout Issue

By The Canadian Press

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Football League, assailed in the Senate for its television blackout policies, begins a week of annual meetings here today with the problem of cable TV high on its closely guarded agenda.

Today and Tuesday, the general managers of the nine CFL teams meet to discuss matters referred to them by league executives during the last year.

They will also work out the 1969 pre-season schedule and hope to reach agreement on the 1969 regular season schedule. Some clubs have been complaining that lack of earlier agreement has held up the printing of tickets.

Wednesday, the CFL meetings break up into Eastern and Western conference meetings and here the sale of home television agreements—the property of the conferences separately—will be decided.

The 1968 contract, which brought nearly $500,000 to the Eastern Conference and more than $300,000 to the West, expired on Grey Cup day.

CFL MEETS THURSDAY

The regular annual meeting of the CFL is scheduled to begin Thursday with various reports, including that of the rules committee, breaking off during the afternoon for the annual Canadian college draft. The CFL annual meeting is expected to continue through Friday morning.

One of the items expected to be cleaned up is a report by Commissioner Jake Gaudaur on player awards.

The uproar on television blackout policies—the CFL blacks out all home games for a 75-mile radius of the park concerned—came on the eve of the CFL meetings.

Senator Keith Davey, former league commissioner, advocated an end to "the ludicrous and antiquated system of blackouts."

Any loss in gate receipts, he said, could be made up by "expensive television sponsors' revenue."

Gaudaur replied that "there is no doubt whatsoever that an elimination of the television blackout of home games would kill the CFL."

Senator Davey hit a nerve when he pointed out that cable TV, which picks up a feed outside the blackout area and sends the program back into the blackout area by cable, is circumventing the blackout.

"That makes as much sense as banks undertaking to allow robbers to take their money so they wouldn't have to resort to stealing it," Gaudaur said.

Smale Captures Provincial Title

KIMBERLEY (CP) — Kevin Smale of Prince George Sunday won the men's curling championship of British Columbia, dumping Ted Harris of Ladner in two straight games, 9-6 and 10-9.

Smale, 1968 interior champ, came from behind to win the deciding game of the best-of-three final as he scored the key points with a steal of three in the 10th end for a 9-7 lead.

Harris, 1969 Coast champion, tied it 9-9 in the 11th end. Smale drew perfectly to the four-foot ring in the last end for a point and the championship. He will represent B.C. at the Canadian championships at Oshawa, Ont., March 3-8.

In the earlier match, Smale's rink took an early lead by taking advantage of a slip in the hack by Harris. Smale stole two points in the second and controlled play the rest of the contest.

On Saturday, Smale moved into the B.C. final by defeating Eric Bisgrove of Kimberley 8-6 for his 11th win of 12 playoff games. His only loss during the week-long competition was a 14-6 defeat by Bisgrove during A event semifinals.

Smale moved into the interior final by edging Don Scherk's Prince Rupert squad 6-5 while Bisgrove earned his spot with an 8-7, come-from-behind win over veteran Roy Vinthers of Kamloops.

Broken Leg Suffered By San Diego Player

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver Canucks managed a win and a tie in two out-of-town Western Hockey League games during the weekend, but first-place Portland Buckaroos split a pair with bottom-of-the-league squads and preserved a five-point margin over second-place Vancouver.

Canucks got a tie-breaking goal Saturday as a San Diego player suffered a broken leg and went on to beat the Gulls 5-3 before 12,246 fans. Sunday, Vancouver pulled a 1-1 tie out of the fire midway through the last period at San Diego before a crowd of 7,136.

In a pair of home games, Buckaroos beat fifth-place Phoenix 7-1 Saturday and were edged by last-place Denver 2-1 on Sunday. In the only other weekend game, Seattle Totems whipped Phoenix Roadrunners 5-1 at Seattle before 4,447 spectators Sunday.

Nick Harbaruk got credit for Vancouver's winning goal Saturday when Dave Richardson, in a back-checking attempt, slid into the goal post, obstructing San Diego netminder Bob Champoux. The puck went unnoticed into the goal and Richardson suffered a broken leg.

Portland scored five times on power plays Saturday against Phoenix before 7,176, equalling a WHL record. Norm Johnson scored a pair and singles came from Andy Hebenton, Larry Larry Leach, Bill Saunders, Art Jones and Dick Van Impe.

Hatton Leads Motor Event

Dave Hatton piloted his MGA to first place and fast-time of 56.17 seconds Sunday in the first autocross of the Victoria Motor Sports Club season.

Two drivers damaged their cars badly after losing control in the first timed run over the difficult three-quarters of a mile course.

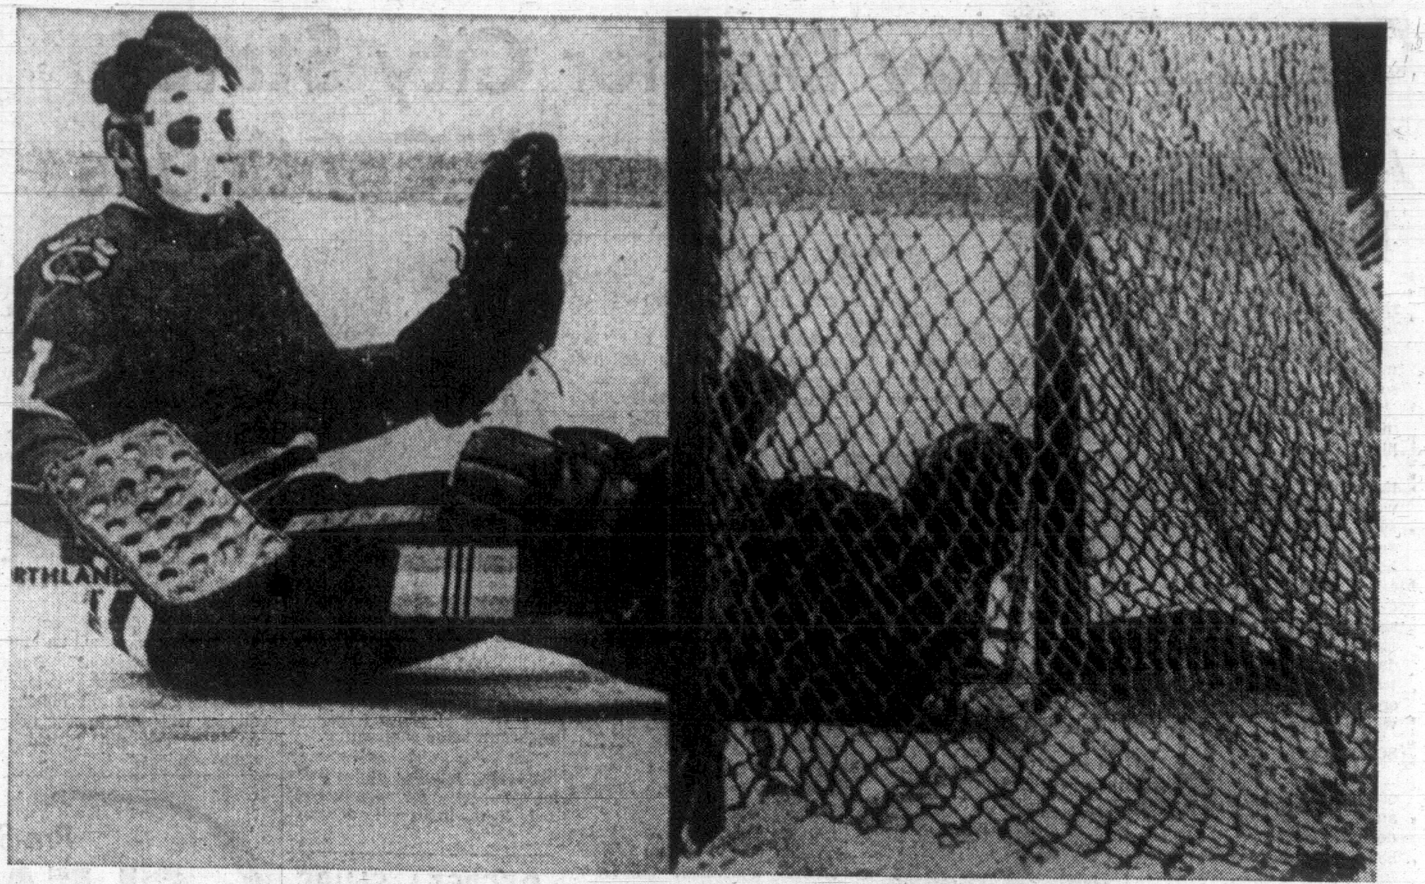
Large special: 1. John Storr (106:74).



ONE OF LIFE'S EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

BUFFEY HOSPITALIZED AFTER HIT BY HARRIS

TED HARRIS
. . . missed target

ST. LOUIS (AP) — National Hockey League referee Vern Buffey was taken to hospital Sunday night for X-rays and observation after he was accidentally body-checked during the Montreal-St. Louis gahe's opening minutes.

The game was delayed about half an hour until Scotty Morrison, NHL referee-in-chief who was viewing the game, suited up and took Buffey's place on the ice.

Buffey was carried from the ice on a stretcher and rushed to hospital. A Blues spokesman said the injury appeared to be to his neck and chest, but the extent was not known.

Buffey was hit by Ted Harris of the Canadiens, who was chasing St. Louis's Red Berenson. Harris threw a check just as Berenson sidestepped and Harris struck Buffey.

Jack Lundquist Collects All-Events Tenpin Title

John Lundquist, Bert Thirlwell, Rick Toller and the trundling tandem of Bill Holness and Dave Kirby collected the titles Sunday when pins stopped falling at Mayfair Lanes in the 29th annual city handicap bowling championships staged by the Victoria Tenpin Association.

Lundquist collected the coveted all-events handicap crown as he fired a 550, three-game series in the team event, 557 in doubles, 613 in singles and added a handicap of 216 for a winning total of 1,936.

Thirlwell jumped away to a fast start and cruised to the singles championship. Working with a 75 handicap, Bert opened with 246 effort and continued with 203 and 182 games to wind up with a 706 total, nipping Don Shaw (655-45—700) by six pins.

WINS BACON TROPHY

Toller took possession of the Jack Bacon Memorial Trophy by capturing the scratch all-events crown. He spilled the pins for a 1,733 total with series of 579 (team), 602 (doubles) and 552 (singles).

Craig Lawson posted a 255 game for the high single of the weekend and Shaw cracked the top three-game tally with 655.

Kirby (620) and Holness (536) combined efforts to nail down the doubles title, finishing with a total tally of 1,321.

Hoop Victory

University of Victoria Vikings scrambled effectively for points in the second half to overcome a two-point deficit and fashion an 84-70 victory over Mount Angel College at Uvic Saturday night to sweep a two-game series with the Oregon visitors.

Wayne Hits Old Form; Judy Wins Three Titles

WAYNE MACDONNEL
. . . hits old form

Wayne Macdonnell halted the victory streak of Bruce Rollick at Cordova Bay Community Hall Sunday as he tripped the Canadian open champion in the men's singles final of the Vancouver Island badminton championships.

Macdonnell, the many-time national king who took a series of thumpings from Rollick last season, displayed his old touch of pin-point accuracy as he battled from behind in the first game and finished with an 18-15, 15-10 triumph over the power-hitting Rollick.

Wayne, one of the greatest retrievers in the Canadian shuttle act, was also keeping the bird in play with remarkable consistency in the men's doubles final as he teamed with Rolf Paterson to outlast Bert Fergus and Rollick in a 15-7, 14-17, 15-9 struggle.

DEFEATS NILSSON

Judy Rollick was considerably more successful than husband Bruce. The former Victorian cruised to an 11-6, 11-7 won over Mimi Nilsson on the women's singles final and later partnered Mrs. Nilsson for a victory in the women's doubles final. They earned a 15-7, 15-3 decision over Barbara Nash and Sandra Kolb.

Mrs. Rollick emerged as the big winner of titles during the finals, which were all between Vancouver shuttle-swatters.

Judy and Bruce added the mixed doubles trophy to their collection by clipping national champions Rolf Paterson and Mrs. Nilsson in a 10-15, 15-8, 15-6 final.

DAYSMITH UPSET

Biggest upset of the tourney came in Saturday's semi-finals when Mrs. Nilsson tripped another ex-Victorian, top-ranked Alison Daysmith, in straight games.

The Cordova Bay pair of Les Wilson and Jack Lequesne took the veterans' men's doubles title with a win over Vancouver rivals Jim Bardsley and Art Jeffries.

In other veterans events, Vancouverites Jean Bardsley and Claire Lovett downed Seattle's Gladys Mallory and Joyce Jones in women's doubles before Mrs. Jones partnered clubmate Dick Ferrel for a win over Mr. and Mrs. Barsdley in mixed doubles.

HANDICAP RESULTS

Women's Doubles—Sally Wood and Ann Barr beat Joyce Tuey and Vonnie Bryant 15-8, 15-3.

Men's Doubles — Dave Sorensen and Dan Lyle beat Frank Brix and Ron Brousseau 15-7, 15-10.

Mixed Doubles—Jean Dewey and Martin Woods beat Val and Ken Kent 15-9, 15-12.

Takes Hoop Title

St. Georges of Vancouver defeated hosting University School 66-59 in the final Saturday to win the B.C. independent schools boys' basketball championship.

Casper Prevails In Hope Classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper forged from behind in the final round Sunday to capture the $122,000 Bob Hope desert classic at the par 36-36—72 Indian Wells Country Club.

A last-round six-under-par 66 for a 90-hole score of 345—15 under par—was three shots in front of Dave Hill.

George Knudson of Toronto, who entered the final round three strokes off the pace, shot a 71 Sunday. He finished at 351 for a tie with five others for fifth and won $3,175.

Al Balding, also of Toronto, finished at 363 and won $166.

Dance Team Averts U.S. Sweep Hopes

OAKLAND (AP)—Canada emerged from the North American figure skating championships with one first placing, two seconds and two thirds, but the United States wound up with three championships—both singles and the pairs.

Bruce Lennie and Donna Taylor of Toronto, comparative newcomers as a team, placed themselves high up on the list of contenders for the world title next month when they won the pairs dance title Saturday night and prevented an American sweep.

An unpopular decision — at least with the crowd—came Saturday night when another Toronto skater, Jay Humphry, lost the men's title to Tim Wood, a 21-year-old law student from Cleveland.

FAVORED TWO OTHERS

The crowd clearly favored Humphry and John Misha Petkevich of Great Falls, Mont., who was third.

The other two events in the three-day competition went to the U.S.—a narrow victory by a 1.4-point in the ladies singles by Janet Lynn over Karen Magnussen of Vancouver and Cindy and Ronald Kauffman's victory in pairs.

Van Buskirk Misses, Desrosiers Connects

VANCOUVER (CP) — Flashy Neil Knight of Seattle pounded his way to the British Columbia Golden Boy Award Saturday night by out-punching Frankie Scott of Vancouver in the featherweight division.

Knight's decision over Scott, former Canadian 119-pound champion and Pan-American and British Empire Games contender, earned him the award over 10 champions in other weight classes.

(Times News Services)

RECORDS fell in Saskatoon and in Davos Switzerland, as speed skaters had their fling . . . At Davos, Kees Verkerk the Olympic champion from Holland, set a world record of 2:02.0 in the 1,500-metre event at an international meet . . . Two other Dutch skaters followed with other record-breaking runs . . . Ans Schut lowered the women's 3,000-metre standard to 4:50.4 and Elly Van de Brom chopped one second off the world mark in taking the women's 1,000 in 1:30.0.

At Saskatoon, Winnipeg skaters set four Canadian records while claiming seven of the 12 Canadian championships at stake . . . The record-breakers were Cheryl Rey, Sylvia Burka, Cathy Priestner and Gayle Gordon . . . Winnipeg's Doreen McCannell and Bob Hodges of Edmonton captured the women's and men's championship . . . Victoria skaters Rhonda Burton, 13, and Don Smith, 15, were unplaced in their events.

Cougars' Third Target A Most Obvious Goal

By ERNIE FEDORUK

One target is secure, a second appears a virtual certainty. With time running out, Victoria coach Doug Anderson is prepared to set up yet another goal for his Cougars to shoot at in the B.C. Junior Hockey League: "First place."

The third target remained in good focus Saturday after Cougars defeated Kelowna Buckaroos 8-4 before the season's second largest turnout (3,177) at Memorial Arena.

"If we win five of our last six games," Anderson reported casually, "I don't think anyone can stop us from taking first place."

Cougars still trail Penticton Broncos by one point. The leaders also have a game in hand over second-place Victoria, but Anderson figures a five-out-of-six finish "would be hard to beat."

A reasonable assumption.

GOALS A-COMING

Anderson also set a 200-goal production mark at the start of the campaign. The Cats, who have popped in 26 goals while winning their last three games, have counted 187. In view of past successes, it seems they will manage 13 in their remaining six games, including the last three on the road.

Slick Grant Evans, winger Scott Munro and defenceman Gerry Bond each scored twice while Bruce Cowick and Shayne Webster added the singles for Victoria.

Evans' scoring shots were his 39th and 40th of the season. He also picked up a pair of assists to run his individual point total to 71, 16 behind Penticton's front-running Ed Hays.

LOOSE CLEARING

Cougars out-shot the Bucks 42-37, and the four-goal sum actually flattered the Kelowna squad. Defensive miscues opened the door for three of Kelowna's four goals.

Otherwise, it was Victoria's game almost from the start. Cougars skated strongly and checked hard. They also proved opportunists on attack, scoring four while enjoying a man advantage through penalties.

Kelowna drew nine minors and a five-minute major to Bassett for fighting with Victoria's Murray Kennett. Cougars' count was one major and five minors.

CHECKED STRONGLY

Cougars' strongest feature was in the checking department. They leaned strongly on their rivals, and the tactic kept Buckaroos untracked most of the way.

Bond and John Van Horlick played well on defence while Evans, Dave Williams (with three assists) and Cowick (a goal, two assists) were strong up front.

There was one sad note interjected into Victoria's victory.

Goaltender Ed Forslund, who served as backup to Ron Grahame on Saturday, was advised that his father passed away suddenly in Vernon.

TOPPING own world indoor pole-vault record Saturday was Californian Bob Seagren (above), who added quarter inch to mark when he cleared 17 feet, six inches in meet at Los Angeles. Another meet highlight was 2:06.3 clocking for Australian Ralph Doubell in 1,000-yard run. It was second-fastest time ever for distance on indoor track.

O'Keefes Fade In Second Half

Victoria O'Keefes floundered in the last half Saturday and Vancouver's Eintracht club took the opportunity to post a 2-1 victory over the defending Pacific Coast Soccer League champions at Macdonald Park.

Victoria's already thread-bare playoff chances were shredded further before 300 fans as Eintracht profited from two goal-mouth chances in the second half.

O'Keefes are now tied for fifth with North Shore, each holding 12 points.

New Westminister Labatts hold the fourth and final playoff spot with a one-point advantage over Victoria but the mainland squad has six games in hand.

O'Keefes have managed only three points in their last seven games and haven't collected a victory since a 4-1 decision over Eintracht on Dec. 1.

Ike MacKay scored his seventh goal of the season at 10 minutes to give O'Keefes an early lead. Due to a combination of asthma and 'flu, MacKay didn't start in the second and O'Keefes began to lose possession of the ball more often.

Lajos Vicek, formerly with the now-defunct professional Vancouver Royals, deflected an attempted clearance by Victoria's Ray Telford into the net to tie the game in the second half.

MUCKLER TO MEMPHIS

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — John Muckler, removed as coach of Minnesota North Stars Jan. 19, has been named general manager of the National Hockey League club's Memphis farm team in the Central League.

North Island Curlers Grab All Four Berths

COURTENAY — North Island rinks captured all four tickets to the Pacific Coast Curling Association's mixed final following an eight-rink, double-loss zone playoff at the Comox Valley club.

The southern representatives—three Esquimalt rinks and one from Victoria—failed to win a game.

First to reach the coast final were rinks skipped by Vern Thompson (Bunny Anderson, Ken and Dianne White) of Nanaimo and Chuck Perry (Mary Davies, Bob Carscadden and Ollie Acorn) of Comox. Thompson downed Ted Callbeck of Victoria 10-8 on the first draw, and then clinched the berth with an 8-7 nod over clubmate Harry Whittam.

Jim Marasco of Port Alberni, supported by Eleanor Gulstene, Ken and Olive Coomber, and the Whittam foursome—which included Jessie Whittam, Frank Jedrejczyk and Faye Dorman—captured the other berths.

Callbeck and Esquimalt foursomes skipped by Gord Hooey, Pat Marshall and Bill Fussey were the south's representatives.

Zone champions from the lower mainland and the Fraser Valley will join the Island representatives in the coast finals at Campbell River next weekend. The coast champions will meet the Interior winners in a best-of-three playoff for the provincial crown, also at Campbell River.

Tie Seals Coffin For Westminster

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New Westminster Royals were eliminated from playoff contention in the British Columbia Junior Hockey League Sunday when they were held to a 5-5 tie by Kelowna Buckaroos before 300 fans in New Westminster.

Result left the last-place Royals with 23 points, 13 fewer than fourth-place Kelowna, with only five games to play.

In Saturday games, league-leading Penticton Broncos downed fifth-place Kamloops Rockets 6-3 defore a crowd of 600 in Kamloops.

It was a rough game Sunday in New Westminster. Kelowna's Larry Lenarduzzi was taken to hospital with concussion after he fell heavily on his head while being checked by Royals' Al Reid.

Lenarduzzi is expected to be released from hospital today.

CAUGHT TRIPPING

Pat McMahon of the Bucks faces possible league action after being caught in the act of tripping New Westminster's Ron Fines in the third period. Refereee Barry Ballance gave him a minor for tripping, followed by a misconduct for swearing and then a game misconduct for breaking his stick and throwing it at the New Westminster bench.

Uvic Rugby Squads Chalk Up Shutouts

University of Victoria squads had it all their own way Saturday as play resumed in the Victoria Rugby Union following a seven-week layoff.

SHOEMAKER EXPECTING TO RETURN THIS WEEK

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Bill Shoemaker, his broken right leg apparently healed, said today he'll be back on the track racing again this week—weather permitting.

The veteran jockey has been out more than a year with the break. Now, he says, he's ready to accept two mounts a day, but will ride only if the track is fast.

"I feel great now," said the Shoe. "The leg has healed and I'm ready to go. I've worked horses five and six furlongs and the leg doesn't hurt a bit."

NEW DATSUN 1600
at DAVID MOTORS LTD.
the more-for-your-money car

96 hp, 100 mph, 30-35 mpg
Now you have a choice of three Datsun 1600s: the sporty new 2-door, a deluxe 4-door and deluxe family wagon.
In its price class, only Datsun 1600 gives you a high-performance 1600 cc overhead cam engine that's good for 96 HP and 100 MPH. It means great pick up and all-day cruising at 70 MPH. And all the time you'll get 30 - 35 miles per gallon with either 4-on-the-floor stick shift or the 3-speed automatic.

engineered for safety
The new Datsun 1600 is probably the safest economy car you can own. It has a specially designed impact-absorbing body and great road-holding with an all-independent suspension system. Safety features include: Disc brakes up front, now with the double protection of twin master cylinders, collapsible steering column, headrests, belt/shoulder harnesses, 4 headlights, padded dash and interior fittings, and more.

quiet and comfortable
The Datsun 1600 has "windows up" ventilation. Fresh air streams in through adjustable ventilators on the dash, circulates, and stale air is automatically extracted through rear vents. The instant-acting heater/defroster keeps you warm and your windows clear through the coldest winters.
There are more than 150 Datsun dealers coast-to-coast and $1,000,000 in parts to back you.

Maplettes Take Advice In Time to Trip Legion

Victoria Maplettes finally followed strategy plans by coach Jack Lusk Sunday and collected a big dividend—a berth in the playoff final of the Inter-City Senior Women's Basketball League.

Maplettes settled down in the final 10 minutes at Central Junior High School to overcome a seven-point deficit and down Mount Pleasant Legion 67-55 in the deciding game of the best-of-three semi-final.

The Vancouver club had knotted the series Saturday night by nipping the Victorians in a 48-47 heart-thumper.

"I told them before the game," Lusk said after Sunday's triumph, "that if they couldn't defend, they couldn't win."

After struggling to a 31-27 lead in the opening half, Maplettes apparently forgot their coach's solid advice. The Legion lassies went to town in the next 10 minutes and scampered out in front by seven points.

Luck then reviewed the defensive strategy during a time out and that was all Maplettes needed. They held Mount Pleasant to one field basket in the last quarter and cruised to a comfortable 12-point victory.

Mary Coutts fired 26 points and Diana Brozuk contributed 13 for Victoria, which also got 10 points each from Arlene Wallwin and Sylvia Campbell.

WON ON FOUL SHOTS

Victoria was behind in Saturday's game until finally going ahead at 42-40 with four minutes remaining. It was 46-46 with a minute left and the game finished with foul-shooting heroics.

Diana Brozuk dropped one of two free tosses to send Maplettes ahead by one but Janice Robinson dropped two clutch foul shots with about 30 seconds on the clock to give Mount Pleasant the one-point win.

Maplettes will be at home next Saturday for the first game of the best-of-three final against Vancouver Molsons. Site of the game has yet to be arranged.

MAPLETTES (47)—Irene Smith, Arlene Wallwin 14, Mary Coutts 13, Marg Foreman, Sylvia Campbell, Doreen Lusk 6, Diana Brozuk 7, Marilyn Johnson 4, Gail Bonner, Angie Radanovich 3, Renate Krueger.

Taras Hryb, Lefebvre Capture Junior Titles

Taras Hryb, 17-year-old ace from Oak Bay high school who was competing with the Victoria YMCA team, was the standout of the meet as he won the 178-pound crown. Hryb appeared in five bouts and won them all by falls in less than three minutes.

Terry Lefebvre of CFB Esquimalt took the 123-pound title and two Victoria Y athletes earned seconds, Jagit Dhanowa in the 106-pound class and Dave Dennison in the 148-pound division.

FINALS DELAYED

Hryb was also a winner in the provincial novice championships, which were started at the Victoria Y the previous weekend.

Because of the large number of entries, which required a total of 170 bouts, officials of the novice meet were unable to finish the tournament in one day. Several finals were postponed and were run off Saturday in conjunction with the junior meet.

Results of B.C. novice championships:

Shores Shatter Chinook Dream

Dreams of another national championship have turned into a nightmare of disappointment for the Victoria Chinooks.

Chinooks, who had opened their sixth campaign in the Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League with what appeared their best-ever collection of talent, were bounced out of the playoff chase Saturday night at Central Junior High School.

With their backs to the wall in the second game of their best-of-three league semi-final against North Shore, Chinooks went down to a 58-57 defeat when Bill Russell fired a basket for the Mountaineers with about 40 seconds remaining after the game had been deadlocked for the 11th time.

Mountaineers, who had clipped the Victorians on the mainland in another one-point thriller — 59-58 — in the opening game of the playoff, now face Killarney Community Centre in the league and provincial final.

It was a heartbreaking setback for the Chinooks who, in their first five years, won the inter-city circuit's regular-season title four times and reached the Canadian junior final three times, winning the national crown in 1965.

Hopes were high of another shot at the national championship when this season opened. Coach Moe Turner had the tallest club in Chinook history and he had an impressive array of talent that promised to give the club its greatest-ever depth and scoring power.

WON FIFTH CROWN

Perhaps it was a case of too many stars. Although the Chinooks won their fifth league championship, they never quite developed into a solid unit with the spirited teamwork and consistency that marked their efforts the previous winter. All men were capable of performing as regulars, but this time the club too often failed to get the expected lift when players went from the bench to replace off-form starters.

Saturday's battle was a toss-up most of the way. The lead changed hands 18 times and, as in most close basketball games, calls by the referees hurt the losers and the officials certainly couldn't be accused of favoring the home club.

Over the route, North Shore had 23 shots from the foul line and cashed 13 of them while Victoria connected on nine of 15 free-throw attempts.

However, the Chinooks had their chances and they weren't offering any alibis. They were twice ahead by six points in the first half and they grabbed the lead for the last time with a little more than a minute remaining when Bill Carlson hit two baskets to make it 57-55.

BLACK TOP SNIPER

Mountaineers were equal to the challenge. They pulled even at 57-57 and dropped the curtain on the Chinooks with Russell's basket.

Russ Black topped the North Shore snipers with 18 points. Lou Klassen, who swished 10 of 11 foul shots, had 12 and starry Ed Richmond netted 11.

Carlson, finding the range to score 12 points in the second half, was the Chinook point leader with 14. Drew Schroeder collected 10 in an outstanding two-way effort and Dave Wirtanen turned in a strong defensive game for Victoria.

NORTH SHORE (59) — Rico Hove, Ed Richmond 11, Ted Black 2, Lou Klassen 12, Bill Russell 6, Bill Turner 4, Keith Margetson 6, Russ Black 18.

CHINOOKS (57) — John Rouanzoin 4, Chris Hall 5, Drew Schroeder 10, Al Glover 6, Dan Wade, Bill Carlson 14, Glen Moffat 5, Barry Turner, Dave Wirtanen 6, Mike O'Connor 4, Rod Fields 3, Dave Baade.

ROINE RINK IN FINAL AGAINST CITY SENIORS

TRAIL—Gordie Moore was packing Victoria's last chance of a provincial curling title this season when his Victoria Curling Club rink opened a best-of-three series today against the Prince George foursome of Hans Roine for the British Columbia seniors' championship.

Roine won the British Columbia Curling Association crown here Sunday when he defeated Salmon Arm's Phil Fraser 9-7 in an extra-end final.

Otto Gill, of Trail, was the victim in both of Sunday's semi-finals, losing 9-7 to Fraser in the "A" event and 7-5 to Roine in the "B" section.

Moore, who earlier won the Pacific Coast Curling Association title, was facing Roine in afternoon and evening draws today. If a third game is required to decide the B.C. representative for the Canadian final, it will be played Tuesday.

Nixons Romp Past Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Victoria Nixons climbed into first place in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Hockey League Sunday as they trounced Nanaimo 14-2.

Nixons, who had been tied with Powell River, can clinch first place with a victory at Esquimalt Sports Centre Tuesday night, when they tackle Esquimalt at 6.

League scoring leader Dale McLachlan paced Victoria to the Sunday triumph, collecting two goals and six assists for an eight-point outing.

Calonas Win Tourney

Vancouver Calonas downed Uvic Vikettes 15-3, 15-8 in the final of an invitational women's volleyball tournament at University of Victoria Saturday.

Calonas gained the final with 10 straight wins in the round-robin portion of the six-team tourney. UBC and Vikettes tied for second spot with seven victories, followed by Mt. Pleasant of Vancouver (three wins), Mt. Angel College of Oregon (two wins) and North Vancouver YM-YWCA (one win).

UBC downed Vikettes 11-6, 11-7 to qualify for the other final berth but had to step aside because of travel commitments.

Drink Allegation Slammed

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister Leslie Rowntree says that Dr. Morton Shulman threatened to "get" him two days before the NDP member for Toronto-High Park shouted "the minister is drunk" in the legislature last week.

Mr. Rowntree said in an interview that Dr. Shulman said he would "make me pay" for refusing to answer a question in the legislature.

Dr. Shulman shouted the accusation while the minister was rising presumably to end debate on Dr. Shulman's private member's bill which would increase the powers of the Ontario Water Resources Commission in dealing with sources of pollution.

HINTS AT REPRISAL

Premier John Robarts, who was not in the legislature at the time, later declined to comment on Dr. Shulman's accusation.

Mr. Rowntree said he would take "steps" I regard are appropriate in due course" over the statement.

"I'm not going to debase myself into a frontal debate of this nature.

Dr. Shulman's outburst came after Mr. Rowntree had got up to speak when Fred Young (NDP—Yorkview) finished speaking on the bill.

"It is not my normal practice to comment on the speech," Mr. Rountree said, "but I do not think I have ever heard a . . ."

As Mr. Rowntree tried to continue, Speaker Fred Cass ruled him out of order. Then Dr. Shulman yelled from his seat:

CONTINUE SPEAKING

Mr. Rowntree continued to speak, but was called to order by Mr. Cass.

"Order," Mr. Cass shouted. "The honorable minister will adjourn the house. We will be done for the week."

Mr. Young said earlier that the Ontario government lacked the courage to tackle the job eliminating pollution of the province's water resources.

Dr. Shulman has been an outspoken critic of the Progressive Conservative government since he entered politics after his dismissal as chief coroner for Metropolitan Toronto. As coroner and later as a leading spokesman for the NDP in the legislature, he has carried on a long feud with Health Minister Dr. Matthew Dymond.

A millionaire, he became rich by his stock market dealings and wrote a best-selling book on the subject entitled How to Make a Million.

SMALL SUM

The United States paid $295 an acre for the Virgin Islands and now land there can be bought at as much as $30,000 an acre.

Maths Lecture Open to Public

A lecture in popular form this evening will introduce members of the University Extension Association of Victoria to an increasingly important developemnt in mathematics — combinatorial topology.

This is an area of the subject which finds application in widely different fields from classical geometry and sailors' knots to the design of computers and telephone switching networks.

The lecture will be presented by Dr. Lowell A. Hinrichs, chairman of the departmental committee on graduate studies and associate professor of mathematics at the University of Victoria.

An authority in the field to which he has contributed an impressive number of papers, Dr. Hinrichs has chosen for his title The Seven Bridges of Koningsberg. The lecture, starting at 8:15 p.m. in Room 168, Elliott Building, is open to the public.

Trygve Lie Spurned; Korean War Followed

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Two former UN officials have concluded that the Korean War might have been averted if the Western powers had heeded Trygve Lie's appeals early in 1950 to seat Communist China in the world organization.

They say that Peking's entry would have opened the way for a renewal of East-West talks and under such circumstances "it is hard to believe that the North Korean attack on South Korea would then have been permitted to occur at all."

The two are Andrew W. Cordier, now acting president of Columbia University, and Wilder Foote, a research associate in Columbia's School of International Affairs.

Their comments appear in the introduction and supplementary notes in the first volume of a series entitled Public Papers of the Secretaries-General of the United Nations which they are editing. Volume I contains the papers of the first secretary-general, Lie.

Cordier served as executive assistant to Lie as well as to his successor, Dag Hammarskjold, and was intimately acquainted with their day-to-day activities. Foote was press spokesman for Lie and Hammarskjold.

BLAME COLD WAR

They blame the Cold War primarily for Lie's inability to win over the two votes needed in the Security Council in 1950 to seat the Peking government. The 11-country body was split down the middle, five recognizing Peking and five recognizing Taipei. The 11th member was Nationalist China.

India, Britain, Norway, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union were pro-Peking; the United States, France, Egypt, Ecuador and Cuba were against. Lie tried vainly to influence France, Egypt and Ecuador. Both France and the United States had ruled out the use of the veto, so only seven votes would have been required.

They also believe that much of the violence in the Middle East might never have happened if the United Nations had accepted a private proposal by Lie in 1948 for a UN military force to implement the Palestine partition plan. They blame U.S. "vacillation" for failure of the Lie proposal.

Tories Show Popularity Gain in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — The opposition Conservative party has strengthened its popularity lead over the governing Labor party since a tough-line speech by party leader Edward Heath two weeks ago demanding tougher curbs on colored immigration, according to an opinion poll released this week.

The Conservatives have a 27-per-cent lead over the government, compared with 16-per-cent lead last month, the Opinion Research centre said.

Labor, which gained 48.7 per cent of the vote in the last general election in 1966, slumped to 32 per cent in the latest popularity rating. The Conservatives, who received 41.4 per cent in the last election, rose to 55 per cent.

Scanty Budget Trims Road Work

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Saanich council and senior engineering staff scanned 81 suggested public works projects in a six-hour bus tour Saturday which would cost $1.5 million if implemented.

The money—that amount of money—isn't available, so much of the work will be set aside for consideration next year.

The tour, an annual affair, wound through 71 miles in the municipality including a trip to the Hartland Road garbage dump.

This dump, at the end of Hartland Road and just outside the municipal boundary, is the only one following the no-burning and covering regulations of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

It is operated by Victoria Disposal Company, a private business.

DISPOSAL COSTS

Opinion among those at the site was favorable of the new method of disposal, which is costing Saanich, Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt an estimated extra $50,000 this year.

The road leading to the dump itself is something like a logging road—narrow, two vehicles having difficulty in passing, winding, steep in places, surface often broken and with potholes.

But a complete rebuilding job would cost hundreds of thousands of dollars for a road primarily used only by garbage trucks.

Two major road building projects which are not expected to gain approval this year are widening Lansdowne to four lanes between the city boundary and Foul Bay and similar widening on Carey from Douglas to Tillicum.

Cost of these two projects is $466,000.

Many of the suggested projects included on the tour were relatively small in cost ranging up to $10,000 each.

One road which will be repaired is San Juan Avenue, which has almost completely broken up after the severe cold. Expenditure of $19,000 was approved in 1967 but the work wasn't carried out.

Municipal engineer Neville Life has already recommended a road construction budget of $1.2 million, but the provisional budget allows only $300,000.

The same thing happened in the previous year—there isn't enough tax money to do all the recommended road work.

Uvic Lectures Drawing Many Notables Here

A prairie professor will discuss Chinese expansion into Africa Thursday in a continuing series of public lectures at the University of Victoria.

Prof. Carl Gustav Widstrand, of the University of Manitoba, will speak at 12:30 in Room 168 of the Elliott Building.

Two weeks later, on Feb. 27, Dr. Eugene Forsey of the Canadian Labor Congress will lecture on reform of the Canadian constitution, asking "What and How Much?"

His lecture will also be held at 12:30 in 168 Elliott.

The gymnasium has been put aside March 4 to accommodate the audience expected for Alan Watts, a California popularist of the Zen faith.

Author of several widely-read books on religion and the way to a happy life, Mr. Watts will speak on "Zen and Psychedelic Experiences."

Other speakers in the series are Rev. Lester Kinsolving on abortion, March 13 at 12:30 in Room 144 of the MacLaurin Building; Pierre Berton on April 10; and a tentative talk by Education Minister Donald Brothers.

NEW HEART was given to Christine Corhn (left) in Cincinnati Saturday and doctors today said she is in satisfactory condition following the transplant from William Becker, 7 (right) who was killed in a car accident. Christine, born with a malformed heart, was described as in terminal condition before the transplant.

White Cross Centre Seeking New Home

The White Cross Centre, a six-room, two-storey building at 2316 Lee, will soon be replaced as the Rotary Club of Victoria sponsors a car raffle to raise funds for a new building.

Last week the club raised $2,000 in the first week of the drive, D. A. Nash said Saturday.

The centre is at present used by the Canadian Mental Health Association as a haven for former mental hospital patients who are attempting to rejoin society.

It provides social and recreational services to about 120 patients every year. Each day, over 20 persons visit the centre to talk, work on handicraft projects or just sit quietly. Activities include dancing, bowling and parties.

Supervisor Mary Rowles said the CMHA would like to have a new building with more space, lots of light and no stairs.

A site for the proposed building has not yet been chosen, but officials are hoping it can be built near the Jubilee Hospital.

Zoning Bylaw Alterations To Be Sought

Oak Bay council will hold a public hearing Feb. 17 on three zoning alterations for apartment construction and a parking lot.

Bylaws for the changes received preliminary reading last week. The hearing will begin at 7:30 p.m.

One of them is to rezone four lots at Chaucer and Oak Bay Avenue for apartment construction. Three-storey frame buildings up to 35 feet in height are permitted in the area.

The second bylaw will extend an apartment zone on Foul Bay Road near Granite for future development.

The third bylaw will extend the school zone at Oak Bay senior high for expansion of the parking lot and change a site at 2085 Avondale from kindergarten zoning back to single family residence.

GOING UP is the new provincial government vocational school which will serve southern Vancouver Island. Construction on the $2,285,000 school began late last year in Saanich municipality, near the Wilkinson Road jail. Present construction, by C. J. Oliver, Ltd., is the first stage of what will be a $4.5 million school. Included in first stage is a single-storey workshop and classroom building occupying 125,800 square feet, about one city block. Three outbuildings of about 5,800 square feet, and services, roads and landscaping make up the rest of the project, first announced six years ago by the provincial government. School has long been sought by local school boards and trade unions. The large school structure will feature mezzanine-style classrooms and series of workshops for variety of trades.

First Patients By Mid-Summer In New Hospital

By PETE LOUDON

The new $6 million 170-bed Eric Martin Institute for treatment of mental illnesses will be completed by the end of next month.

But it may be mid-summer before it admits its first patients, it was indicated today. The delay would be required for staffing, (psychiatric nurses are in short supply) for furnishing and inspections.

It was also learned, in interviews with provincial and municipal hospital officials, the new Victoria institution will fill its beds gradually.

Patients now in the 43-bed Bay Pavilion at Royal Jubilee Hospital are expected to be the first to be transferred. But there are no plans to bring patients from Essondale even though their families may reside on Vancouver Island.

Provincial public works department reported today there is a committment from the contractor to complete the project on Lee Avenue by April 1, but there is hope for an earlier date.

"Essentially the work is all done and about all that remains is the cleaning up," said a department spokesman.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark recently announced that negotiations for handing the administration of the mental hospital to Royal Jubilee are in their final stages.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, Royal Jubilee executive director, today said he could not report on progress of these talks, although an announcement might be possible within a week or 10 days.

He said no decisions had yet been reached on staffing of the new hospital, and this will "depend on who is going to be running it."

A spokesman for the provincial mental health department said he thought staffing would be up to the hospital.

SHORT TERM

He agreed the Eric Martin Institute would be geared for short-term treatment of mental illnesses which would preclude transfer here of cases now being treated at Essondale.

The new centre would take over Bay Pavilion patients and would incorporate the provincial mental health centre on Fort Street which concentrates on out-patient treatment. Therapy work shops would be part of the new operation as well as a program of home care and co-operation with the Canadian Mental Health Association volunteer program.

The department spokesman said that although the hospital would be available in about a month, inspections and equipment installations would delay its use probably until the middle of summer.

The availablity of 43 beds in the present Bay Pavilion at that time would be of assistance to Royal Jubilee in reducing current waiting lists, most doctors hope.

Rape Charge Hearing Set

Two 19-year-olds charged with raping a 17-year-old girl Saturday were remanded today in magistrate's court to March 4 for a preliminary hearing.

Bail was set at $3,000 each for Alexander Jacob, 3745 Tillicum, and Alvin Strandlund, 510 Dunedin. They were represented by lawyers Robert Price and Alan Bigelow.

Scientists to Leave For Japan March 17

By W. RALPH THOMAS

Canada's second major oceanographic research project planned this year will begin March 17 when the research vessel Endeavour departs for Japan with a group of marine scientists.

Oceanographers and marine biologists from the federal fisheries research department, the University of Oregon and the University of Tokyo will participate in a three-week research program en route to Japan before attending an oceanography conference April 8 in Tokyo.

Dr. Geoff Robins, of the federal fisheries biological station in Nanaimo, told the Times today it will be "primarily a biological oceanography trip."

"The extent of the area of coverage chosen for this cruise has been determined by the need to appreciate real conditions and also from the need to examine waters entering the Gulf of Alaska from the west," he said.

CAUSE CHANGES

"Regarding the latter point, the general flow of water from the coast of Asia across the Pacific is believed to carry with it plankton organisms which cause changes in the standing stock of plankton in oceanic areas more directly associated with Canadian interests."

He said the scientists are scheduled to arrive in Tokyo April 6 and will participate in the annual meeting of the Oceanographic Society of Japan.

They will leave Tokyo April 11 and arrive in Hakodate, Japan, April 13 where they will attend a symposium entitled "North Pacific Fisheries and Oceanography."

Dr. T. R. Parsons of the Nanaimo biological station, who heads the project, will give a special lecture at the symposium.

Following the conferences, the Endeavour will leave Japan on April 15 and carry out further research before arriving back in Esquimalt May 10.

The 11 marine scientists, including a microbiologist and a marine chemist, will concentrate on zooplankton and chemical samples during the 11,000-mile cruise.

On Jan. 30 the federal government announced the Canadian research ship Hudson will circumnavigate the Americas next fall, making extensive chemical, biological and geophysical studies along its route.

Repainting Starts On Streets

After the whitewash comes the painting.

City crews were repainting traffic lines on Fort Street today in the wake of one of the longest snowy periods in the city's history.

White markings on many streets were all but obliterated by a combination of icy conditions and abrasive sand used to keep traffic moving.

Traffic engineer David Campbell said lines on one-way streets will be repainted first.

Spokesmen for Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and the provincial department of highways said they are awaiting slightly improved weather conditions before repainting.

Archivist Chairman Of Governors

Willard E. Ireland, provincial librarian and archivist, has been elected chairman of the University of Victoria's board of governors.

Vice-chairman of the board for the past three years, Mr. Ireland was chosen administrative head at the board's January meeting. His appointment was officially released this morning.

Chancellor Richard B. Wilson, said it marks the beginning of a policy to separate the functions of chancellor and board chairman.

Mr. Wilson held both posts last year, but stipulated the chairmanship for 1969 should be given another board member.

The board of governors is the financial governing body of the university.

SPOKESMAN

The chancellor will continue to be the official spokesman for the board, and the university's ceremonial head. The chairman will preside over board meetings, with responsibilities in committee work and other administrative functions.

Lloyd G. McKenzie, a Victoria lawyer and member of the board, was elected vice-chairman.

Mr. Ireland previously held the position of vice-chairman since it was introduced three years ago. He was appointed to the board when Uvic became a university in 1963, after serving for 12 years on the Victoria College Council.

He has been provincial archivist since 1940 and holds degrees in history from the University of B.C. and University of Toronto. He attended Victoria College in 1928 and 1929.

'Write Ottawa' To Protest Vatican Move

Oak Bay clergyman Alex Calder urged his parishioners Sunday to write Ottawa opposing recognition of the Vatican through formal Canadian diplomatic mission.

"I cannot see a single thing for this and I can see so much against it," Mr. Calder told the early morning congregation at Oak Bay United Church.

He was referring to an exchange of ambassadors as proposed by Prime Minister Trudeau, who recently visited Pope Paul in Rome.

Recognition of the Catholic state would be a dividing influence rather than help to unite Canadians, Rev. Calder said.

He said he could not see whether the proposal is a political move or "a straw in the wind," but he felt that existing Canadian diplomatic representation in Rome is adequate for all citizens.

EQUALITY

"I'm neither anti-Roman nor anti-Catholic, but I hate to see any church given private or privileged position. We should all be equal."

He said: "Canadians must live together. An envoy at the Vatican would do much to divide the country."

Mr. Calder had first referred to his position as a minister in the province of B.C., a person with rights limited by statute, living where there is complete division of church and state.

Although the Vatican is granted the status of an independent state it is so small—just over 100 acres and around 1,000 persons—that it performs few functions of a state, existing in the role of a "propaganda centre" for the Roman Catholic Church, the minister said.

He recommended that people write to their member of Parliament and the prime minister or leader of the opposition, or both, saying, "I am opposed."

"I am concerned about this erosion of our liberty, and we lose it simply by doing nothing."

Sportsfest Next Year

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan announced today the provincial government will sponsor an annual British Columbia Festival of Sport starting in 1970.

The event will be held the last 10 days of May, bridging both the Victoria Day and the United States Memorial Day holidays.

Mr. Kiernan said all communities in B.C. will be encouraged to participate.

He said it is hoped the event will develop into a cultural one as well.

The department of travel industry will organize the festival, assisted by members of the British Columbia Sports Federation, municipal councils, chambers of commerce and tourist organizations in all communities.

Man Admits Endangering His Child

A man who pleaded guilty today to endangering his child by leaving him in a cardboard box at the rear of a city hotel was remanded a week for sentence.

Allen H. Bourns, 2535 Blanshard, left his three-year-old son, Brian, outside the hotel Jan. 25 while he went inside to have a few drinks, police said.

The temperature was 26 degrees and there was a 25-mph wind.

The box, about two feet high by 18 inches square, was closed and the child appeared cold and frightened. He was then taken inside the beer parlor to identify his father.

Bourns told police he was caring for the boy for the day while his wife was shopping. He had already been to another beer parlor where the boy was left in the hallway.

Police said the box could have easily rolled or have been knocked from the stairs to an alley where traffic was passing.

A pre-sentence report is being prepared.

Servants Knock Two-Policy Pay

Cabinet Salaries Compared

The British Columbia government has two wage policies—one for the cabinet and the other for civil servants.

This charge was made today by E. P. O'Connor, of Vancouver, general secretary of the British Columbia Government Employees' Association.

He was commenting on Friday's provincial budget which set aside $10 million for "fun and games" (in various funds) and $6.5 million for "bread and butter" for government employees.

Last April, the association filed salary appeals based on comparable wages with similar positions within industry and public service in B.C.

The cabinet rejected the appeals later, stating that it agreed with comparability with an average of the wages paid by other provincial governments in the country.

"The government is obviously playing the role of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," said Mr. O'Connor.

"If they are honest and believe in their policy, why do they pay the premier and cabinet ministers wages and indemnities substantially higher than the average of wages and indemnities paid in other provinces?"

43 PER CENT SPREAD

The average salary paid to premiers (excluding B.C. and Quebec) is $13,987.50, while Premier Bennett gets $20,000, a differential of 43 per cent, he said.

(Quebec was excluded because its figures were not available to the association.)

The average salary paid to cabinet ministers in other provinces (excluding B.C. and Quebec) is $11.300, whereas in B.C. it is $17,500.

Janitors employed by cities, school boards and hospitals are paid an average of $469 a month. The government rate is $400, or $428 with a 7 per cent raise.

Orderlies in outside hospitals receive a maximum of $526 a month. Government orderlies get $448. Adding 7 per cent brings this to $479.

Practical nurses in outside hospitals get $398, the government pays $330, adding 7 per cent brings this to $353.

"Can anyone other than the government doubt the justification of government employees unfortunate position in the light of these facts," asked Mr. O'Connor.

DENIED MUCH

"They are denied bargaining rights, reference of disputes to the Mediation Commission and also are denied the right to strike."

"Average pay of premiers in all provinces, other than Quebec and B.C., is $22,437.50, whereas our premier enjoys $28,000, a differential of 25 per cent.

Mr. O'Connor said public employees wonder if the provisions of Bill 33, the Mediation Act which prohibits strikes by civil servants, were "designed primarily to act as an enforcer of their cheap labor policy."

He said the $6.5 million for civil service wage adjustments represents about 7 per cent of the payroll of the classified service.

SAVED FOR POSTERITY are delicate ceramic, fairy tale tiles around fireplace in historic Fernwood House. Mrs. Reg Porter, of 3874 Cedar Hill Road, rushed to buy them when she heard demolition was slated. Some Victorians trespassed Sunday and helped themselves to the souvenirs. An entire fireplace with marble mantel was spirited away. Now there is hope 109-year-old home may be saved.

Home Demolition Delayed But Thieves Don't Wait

By DON VIPOND

Demolition of historic Fernwood House—scheduled for today—has been stayed briefly while local historians scramble to see if the 109-year-old manor can be saved.

Meanwhile bits and pieces of the 15-room fieldstone mansion are already disappearing—by sale and theft.

Since 1860, Fernwood has watched over Victoria's growth from a hilltop at Oak Bay junction. Built by Benjamin William Pearse, a Devonshire civil engineer who later became surveyor-general for B.C., it now stands on a 3.5-acre site for a 200-unit apartment project.

City police got a call Sunday evening reporting a crowd of about 30 people in the vacant building. They later reported an entire fireplace, including a marble mantel, had been removed.

ALREADY SOLD

Fireplaces, some with decorative tile, are among showpiece items in the house. Some of the tiles and a few other items have already been sold by the demolition contractor.

The apartment project is being undertaken by Reeson Investments Ltd. but principal in the firm, Gordon Reeson, is visiting in the U.S. Until he can be reached for a final decision, the demolition contractor has agreed to hold off.

H. C. Charlesworth, president of the Greater Victoria Historic Buildings Foundation, said today Fernwood is "a very special little building," part of Victoria for 109 years, timeless in its design and a handsome classical example of good construction.

UP TO HIM

Its fate lies entirely in Mr. Reeson's hands, he said, but it is possible the developer is not aware of Fernwood's historic significance.

Mr. Charlesworth, who is an architect, said the apartment project's architect and the demolition contractor have co-operated in getting the work stopped until Mr. Reeson can be reached for a final decision.

The foundation tries to steer a course between the need for development in a community and the desire to preserve its historic buildings, said Mr. Charlesworth. It limits its efforts to just a few of the more important structures but Fernwood is one of them.

Victoria's Mayor Hugh Stephen said today it was regrettable but the city was powerless to do anything about saving Fernwood.

WOULD HAVE REMAINED

The tragedy is that a few years ago a development firm proposed a garden apartment project on the site which would have incorporated Fernwood, restored it and had it serve as a sort of recreation centre, said the mayor.

While the area is zoned for apartments, a garden apartment development required a zoning amendment and public opposition at a hearing led to delays and the developers pulling out.

Neighbors were told at that time that the zoning has permitted apartment construction since 1956 and something not as attractive might some day be built on the site. But they were adamant.

The house and site were acquired by adjacent St. Margaret's School in 1958 but Fernwood and about four acres were later sold to help finance development of the school. The historic house was on the market for at least two years with a price tag close to $250,000.

Mayor Stephen said the provincial government should grant municipalities power to declare buildings of historic importance and articipate financially in buying them.

Trustees Meet On Kuper Fund Distribution

The fund, about $5,000, is the surplus from a public campaign almost two years ago to pay for the Kuper Island fife and drum band's trip to Expo 67 in Montreal.

Interest earned by the surplus last year was used on five awards for outstanding Indian students on lower Vancouver Island.

They were chosen on the basis of all-round activity and received a medal, $10 in cash and a $35 bank account.

Next Monday's meeting at S. J. Willis School will include a financial report, decision on this year's awards and will provide an opportunity to hear from any donor.

RONALD BALKWILL

Gorge 'Veteran' Close at Hand When Kayak Flipped Man, Wife

Ronald Balkwill — an "old hand" on the Gorge waters — knew exactly what was going to happen Sunday as he watched a young couple in a kayak.

When the little boat overturned, the 14-year-old Tillicum school student wasted no time in diving into the frigid water to help avert a possible drowning.

Ronald, of 3019 Albina, helped Mrs. Zalinger to the wharf while her husband made it to the rocks.

Esquimalt police said all three were treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for shock and discharged.

Ronald said he was standing on a wharf on the Saanich side of the Gorge Bridge talking to two friends when he saw the kayak heading toward the swift current.

"I told my friends they were going to flip as soon as they hit the current sideways," he said. "They had to—I've flipped over myself before."

When they turned over he took off his coat, shirt and boots, dove in and helped Mrs. Zalinger.

Temperature of the water, about 10 feet deep in places, was about 35 degrees.

Over the years there have been numerous boat accidents, some of them fatal, near the bridge where a treacherous current can pull an unsuspecting boater into the rapids.

Puss Gives Pooch New Leather Leash

By PENNY SAVER

Pussums left Friday. Most of my readers will remember Pussums—the pampered cat who came to live with us while her master and mistress went away. I had deep forebodings about Pussums but they all proved unfounded. For one thing, the snow kept her in line. At first she thought it was great, and went into an orgy of flake-chasing. Then she discovered it was everywhere. That wasn't so nice and she retreated indoors. Almost immediately her personality improved. Before she had tolerated the dog—now she treated him with great gentleness and respect. Before she had sat only on my lap—now she would curl up with anyone who would sit still, and she would even condescend to be picked up. By the time her stay had ended, Pussums and the Savers were so fond of each other that we would have gladly adopted her outright—but her "parents" needed her more.

I was surprised Saturday to hear a familiar meow at the front door. "Oh no," I thought, "don't tell me the little scamp has run away." But when I opened the door, my fears were relieved. Dear Pussums had one paw on a gift-wrapped package and standing behind her was her mistress. "Pussums wants to give your dog a parting gift," she said with a laugh, and indeed Pussum's gift is sorely needed by our pooch. It was a leash — just the sort an energetic adolescent dog needs. This leash is made of plaited leather. It is strong and just a little stretchy. The end is made of many strands of leather, plaited in such a way as to make a round, firm hand-grip. In addition to this, the leash Pussums chose has several thongs making a loop at the end that can be slipped around the wrist for added security. After a bit of teasing on my part, Pussum's mistress told me that these leashes, which are hand-made, are $3.95, $4.25 or $4.75.

Hearts for Long-Hairs

While I am on the subject of leather, I would like to tell my readers about some leather hair-clips. These are particularly relevant at this time of the year because the leather is made into the shape of a heart. The heart-shaped piece of leather forms a curved area for the hair and is held in place by a long brass pin. Three colors are available, red, green and a goldish-yellow. These leather hair-clips would make a wonderful Valentine gift for a long-haired Valentine. They are $3 each. There is, however, a limited supply at the moment as the local craftsman who makes them is up to his ears in work of a more academic nature.

If you would like to know where to find the items in this column, please call 382-3131.

Lowman

This is the sixth week of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan. It is a time of danger for you who are following it. This is why. By now most of you have lost enough weight to begin to have the feeling of success, of having won the race. Don't let it go to your head—or waist and hips!

It is only natural to become a little careless about your diet and to take more liberties with it when you are beginning to enjoy your clothes again and are receiving so many compliments. However, I hope you will not stop just short of the finish line. You have only two more weeks to go.

NEW HAIRDO

In order to emphasize to yourself the extent of your potentialities for loveliness, have a permanent now if you need one. Do not wait until you have reached your ideal weight. Have a new hairdo, too, and experiment with makeup. These will give you a preview of the new you and spur you on to continue. Many of you started late so that this is not the sixth week for you. I think this idea would be helpful even sooner in the game to many of you.

Early in this series I urged you to give your complexion and hair special attention during this eight weeks. If you have neglected your hair, begin now. A few weeks can make a big difference.

Oily and dry hair both profit by daily brushing and scalp massage. There is one exception. If your hair is thinning dermatologists recommend that you brush as little as possible. Stimulate circulation in the scalp with massage only. Brushes with natural bristles are best.

BRUSH HAIR

When you brush your hair, begin at the scalp and sweep the brush out to the ends. It will be restful and will increase circulation if you lie across a bed on your tummy, head hanging down, while you brush. Scalp stimulation seems to normalize the action of the little oil glands. That is why it is helpful to both dry and oily hair.

When massaging, spread your fingers over your head and move the hands in a rotary motion. Do not move the fingers. Make the scalp move. Change the position of the hands until you have covered your entire head.

Shampoo the hair often if it is oily and much less if it is dry. Use cream shampoos and rinses on dry locks and plain castile soap shampoos on those which are oily. Also, there are conditioning shampoos for every kind of hair. You might try one of these.

It is late, but not too late to join the thousands of other women in this adventure of self-improvement. There is also time to fit the figure into Easter clothes. You can start your eight-week program right now.

If you would like to have my complete course in a booklet, plus a unique chart on which you can plot your progress and see your beauty line rise as your weight drops, you may want my "Bip Kit." If so, send 25 cents, plus 15 cents for postage and handling, and your printed name and address. Send your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Only Crows Need Crows Feet!

If your eyes are aged by lines running out at all angles chances are you also endure mouth lines and other distressing wrinkles all over your face. What you need is the anti-wrinkle lotion called 2nd Debut. It exclusively contains CEF 600, the Wiesbaden Discovery that carries healthful moisture into and under the skin, pushing lines, wrinkles and crows feet out and making the skin smooth again. Results are not only astonishing but fast. In less than a week you will see the difference. Only 2nd Debut contains CEF 600 in single strength and CEF 1200 double strength. Ask for 2nd Debut by name at drug and department stores.

Shopping Mood Remains And Notion Sales Soar

By GUY PAULEY

When total retail sales figures for the year just ended are in, they should reach at least $1.8 billion, a record, reports the National Notion Association (NNA). The figure represents an average of $2.25 on each sale.

"In spite of higher taxes and rising food costs, personal income is still on the increase and women continue in a shopping mood," said Eugene Weiss, NNA's president, at the group's trade show here.

Exhibitors numbered close to 200 representing makers of everything from sewing goods and closet accessories to sunglasses and beach accessories, travel incidentals and hair goods.

Many of the new items are keyed to new fashions, like the sunglasses with aviator goggle shapes or wraparounds like goggles worn by welders.

New are knitted tote bags that look like the 1930s, "his" and "her" karate type robes in terry cloth, sashed with white and with huge pockets; a hair dryer that fits easily into an overnight case or tote bag, and a "beauty" pillow shaped like a "C" to cushion jaw and temple, "discourage double chin" and at the same time make sleeping in hair rollers comfortable.

Old Knitting Projects Revived

Mac Lean

Just recently, I was traveling on the Rapido from Montreal to Toronto, and on my way to the dining car, I was pleasantly surprised to see at least six ladies knitting! This is an excellent way to pass the time—one lady was working on a very complicated Irish fisherman pattern, and was hoping to accomplish quite a bit during the five hours the journey takes.

I myself had taken along to work, a piece of needlepoint that I had begun about three years before. Don't ask me why, but suddenly my interest was renewed! I suppose it was because I was moving into a new house in January, and I could envision the piece finished and on a lovely footstool that I had picked up at an auction.

The needlepoint is a very simple stitch, one that a beginner can do. I had worked the design myself, but there are many in the stores that have the design already worked, and all you have to do is to fill in the background. It made a very pleasant change from knitting.

Over coffee the other morning, I was discussing with friends their various knitting projects that they had begun and for some reason or other had lost interest in. With a little prodding I got them to get the wool and pieces out, and to take another look to see what could be done.

Fortunately, one could finish her sweater, as the pattern was included in the bundle. It's amazing how interest can be revived and the knitting finished in double quick time. Do you have something like this tucked away in a closet waiting to be finished?

The other person was not so lucky, she had run out of wool and could not get the same dye lot. It was a child's cardigan, the back and front were finished and almost one sleeve.

My suggestion was that she unpick the sleeve, and use that wool for the button and buttonhole bands.

She was able to purchase the same wool in the same color, in a dye lot that almost matched. By using it for the sleeves, the difference in color was hard to detect. If she had finished the sleeve with a different dye lot, it would have been most noticeable, there would have been a definite line.

This week's pattern is a simple, easy beginner pattern of toque, scarf and mitts. Knitted in garter-stitch and a simple one-row pattern stitch in a knitting worsted weight of yarn, these are great for the collegiate crowd. They can knit them themselves in the school colors!

To order Leaflet No. 6853, send 35c in coin or money order (no stamps or personal cheques, please). Your order must be accompanied with a 6c stamped, self-addressed, long envelope. Send to May E. Mac Lean, "Knit and Chat," care of Victoria Daily Times. Please be sure to state pattern number when ordering.

Sex Manual Not The Answer for All

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When two young people wrote to say that they wanted to get a book on SEX IN MARRIAGE and study it together, you said, "Studying a subject is sure to stimulate one's curiosity and interest; furthermore there is no point in studying the violin if you have to wait two years to practice.'

A humorous quip—but it makes no sense.

I assume that you think studying about sex will lead to irresponsible experimentation. That is not necessarily so. It is CURIOSITY about sex, based on ignorance, which is more apt to cause youth to try it out, rather than genuine education about it. It is the darkly forbidden — that which has been kept hidden, which is stimulating, rather than enlightenment.

Parents can no longer keep their children ignorant about sex. Our real task is to see to it that it is presented in a mature, wholesome manner. — Sincerely, R.S.H, Dept of Education, The American Institute of Family Relations, Los Angeles, Calif.

DEAR R.S.H.: I do not advocate "keeping children ignorant about sex." I think children (and adults, as well) should know all they NEED to know about sex. But I STILL say that a pair of high school sophomores who are "in love," going steady, and plan to be married "in a few years" do not need to sit down together and study a sex manual on the techniques of marital relations.

DEAR ABBY: How does a person stop exchanging Christmas gifts with folks he's exchanged gifts with for years, but hardly ever sees? I don't mean relatives. I mean people who are "friends" but not that close anymore.

I don't want their gifts, and would rather not have to send them anything, but naturally I don't want any hurt feelings. — HARTFORD.

DEAR HARTFORD: Around Thanksgiving time, write them a note and tell them you are "thankful" for friends with whom you can be perfectly frank. Explain that this year you are "trimming" your Christmas gift list, and are sending cards; and unless they are very unreasonable, they will appreciate your good sense and will reciprocate accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: I was glad to see that you told those 8th graders that "popularity" wasn't everything. I wish I had learned that earlier.

I started out as a homely wallflower who thought being "popular" was the most wonderful thing a girl could be. I started to smoke at 14 to prove I was "grown up." By 16 I had a reputation for being "easy" — and I earned it. I quit school at 17, and married a guy I had known four days. By 18 I was divorced, had a child, and was having affairs with married men. Wow, was I popular!

Abby, just keep telling girls to be GOOD. Popularity isn't all it's cracked up to be. Don't use my name. I'm trying to straighten myself out.—ONCE POPULAR.

THE FABRIC DOCTOR HAS THE ANSWERS

QUESTION:

Does drycleaning wear out clothes?—Mrs. K. W.

Dear Mrs. K. W.: Extensive research has disproven the old wives tale that drycleaning wears out clothes. Abrasion in wear is what does it. Pressing dirty garments can damage the fibres. Microscopic studies of typical soil, such as dust and sand, show each particle has many jagged edges. These press against the fibres. If you press them into the cloth, you aid in their cutting action and imbed them further. The longer the soil remains in the fabric, the more damage it will do. Actually clean clothes last longer.

Curls Come in Minutes

ENCINO, Calif. (AP) — Stringy-haired little girls, following in the fashionable footsteps of their mod mommies, are becoming curly haired cuties in minutes. The trick? False hair pieces, of course.

"Little girls love to copy their mothers," says Bernie Safire, 35, who sells miniature tresses at his children's beauty salon in this Los Angles suburb.

Long, long braids or a shiny new pony tail that won't straggle like her real hair costs $10 each. For $16.50 Shirley Temple curls are available. The tiny tresses are made of adult European hair.

Safire, a beautician for 12 years, opened the children's shop as an experiment, attaching it to his adult salon. He says he now coifs about 100 tots a week, ages ranging from 2 to 11. Several regular customers are the children of movie stars from nearby Hollywood.

Equipment and Patient Comforts Provided As Part of Hospital Auxiliary's Program

Treasurer Mrs. Amy Deas announced total recipts amounted to $7,994.79 when the Woman's Auxiliary of the Royal Jubilee Hospital held its annual meeting in the nurses' residence recently.

From proceeds raised, she said, the hospital had been given six special chairs for the eye ward, two conversion ex-omat processors, Christmas cheer for every patient in the hospital at that time, silver spoons for every baby in the maternity ward at the year-end holiday. In addition, the two sunrooms in the Richmond Pavilion had been completely refurnished.

Total disbursements had amounted to $2,703.45. The reserve fund, the treasurer reported, had a Government of Canada bond valued at $6,500.

Miss Edna Wallace, recording secretary, reported that money had been raised by the sale of cradle-photos, the rental of television sets to patients, the sale of baby clothes knitted by auxiliary members, and the sale of books in the Richmond Pavilion. Funds were also augmented by a "pay as you pull" raffle, a coffee party, a bridge tea, and a gift bar.

In her report, Miss Wallace noted that members had given many hours of service in the transportation of patients receiving radio therapy at the hospital, and in the preparation of dressings in the central supply department.

Honor guests at the meeting included Dr. A. C. Pickles, hospital administrator; Rev. Angus Cameron of Lundavra, hospital board member Mrs. W. A. Trenholme, Mrs. W. Blair and Mrs. J. R. Hamilton, both of the Florence Nightingale Chapter IODE.

Retiring president, Mrs. J. C. B. Keane, expressed thanks for the co-operation of hospital administrators, student nurses who had assisted in money-raising projects, and all auxiliary members.

All new officers were elected by acclamation. They are: President, Mrs. W. G. Thorpe; first vice-president, Mrs. R. R. Hopkins; second, Mrs. R. Woollatt; recording secretary, Miss Edna E. Wallace; treasurer, Mrs. C. C. Riach; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. C. B. Keane, and membership secretary, Mrs. I. B. Rigby.

Mother of Student Rebel Finds Workable Formula

By DOROTHY RICH

Being the parent of a student rebel isn't bad—it's good. That's the opinion of the mother of a sophomore high school rebel son in a Washington, D.C., suburb. The story of the mother, who asks that her name be withheld, is not like the usual horror-filled tales of student rebellion.

Her son wears his hair long, dresses in blue jeans—no neckties—helps put out an underground school newspaper, and takes part in those student demonstrations.

He also washes behind his ears, does most of his school work, takes out the household garbage, and irons his own white shirts—when he infrequently wears them.

I asked his mother for her secrets.

"My boy understands I'm in sympathy with him, but that I also have responsibilities as a parent.

"I like these idealistic youngsters who envision a better world. When I was young, I wanted to change things, too. But rather than openly protest about something like smoking regulations, I sneaked into the john and smoked when no one was looking.

"I'm a product of the depression when almost everybody didn't have enough of anything. Personally, I have a lot less faith than my son in any one person's ability to change the world, but I don't knock his ideas.

"I insist, however, that he stay responsible and constructive. I have to know where he's going and when he's coming back. If his plans change, I expect him to phone. If he doesn't do this, he may be confined to the neighborhood for a week.

"To be eligible to learn how to drive a car, he's going to have to earn enough money to pay for the auto insurance. I think this will help teach him responsibility in handling a car.

"I listen a lot to his complaints about school, but nevertheless I expect that he'll do his homework. It's simple: I've just always told him that it's up to him to get it done.

"For social life he may invite kids over or go to their houses to talk and listen to protest music. At our place, I sit in the kitchen and they wander in and talk. The other parents do the same. Some adult is always around.

"As for the hair, as long as it's clean I've stopped worrying about it. It's a symbolic gesture of protest against the way adults do things. Now that businessmen are beginning to wear their hair long, those kids will soon be back in crew cuts.

"I'm not looking for the school to clamp down on my boy. The principal did send home a letter complaining about obscene language in the underground paper, and I agree with him. I'd like to hear more about how the school feels."

International Survey Throws Out Theory That Women Are Bad Drivers

By JOHN A. CALLCOTT

GENEVA (UPI)—Women drive just as well if not better than men.

It may come as a blow to male pride, but the verdict was reached by a panel of experts surveyed by the World Health Organization (WHO).

"There are good drivers and bad drivers and sex has nothing to do with it," said world grand prix racing champion Graham Hill.

"Women are less apt to react according to their impulses than men and, as a group, are probably better drivers than men in so far as they can maintain their self-control better," said Dr. Harold Fenner, of the American Medical Association's committee on automotive safety.

Other remarks which should take the sneer out of the expression "women drivers":

● "Women with enough experience in driving don't drive any worse than men. In fact, they are generally more prudent." Groenendijk, secretary-general of the International Road Transport Union.

● "Statistics show women have more accidents than men but fewer involving serious physical injuries. Good driving is not related to sex. Although women are perhaps more emotional, they don't possess that drive for power which often becomes aggressiveness in male drivers." Robert Pansard, secretary-general of the Road Accident Prevention Society in France.

● "In all walks of life, and this includes driving an automobile, women are usually equal to men regardless of what some husbands may think. Women are usually more prudent than men. Out of 12,526 accidents in Hungary in 1967 where the responsibility was the drivers, only 783 were caused by women drivers." Lt.-Col. Dr. Andras Demeter, chief of the road transport department in the Hungarian interior ministry.

● "There is no sex difference in driving ability." Dr. Harry W. Case, director of the Institute of Transportation

Women

Editor: Pat Dufour

On other aspects of driving, and Traffic Engineering, University of California.

the experts all agreed that there should be no age limit for driving.

"Some people of 70 are perfectly fit to drive. Others far younger are not," he said.

The experts agreed that doctors should advise their patients whether or not they can drive in safety.

"It is up to each doctor to call a patient's attention to the fact that his state of health doesn't allow him to drive safely," Groenendijk said.

Dr. Case said making drivers undergo a medical examination may be a violation of individual rights. Demeter said Hungary, however, does require such examinations and between 400 and 500 driving licences are withdrawn each year because the results of a medical test are unsatisfactory.

Five out of the seven experts favored speed limits according to whether the road is in a built-up area or in the country.

Dr. Case and Hill objected to limits.

"I do not favor fixed speed limits," Case said. "I think each individual driver should use his own judgment and be prudent and reasonable."

Workshop on Speeches Held at Recent Meeting

The Victoria Toastmistress Club No. 90 held a workshop on speech-making when it met recently.

Mrs. V. Pipes outlined speech organization and Mrs. O. Campbell, LTCL, lectured on delivery, explaining the value of breath control and posture.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Sybil McCulloch. She summarized the over-all effectiveness of speech. Mrs. McCulloch, the regional supervisor for the Pacific Northwest, reported on the councils of the region which reach as far north as Nome and as far south as Seattle. A map was used to illustrate her talk.

A forum formed by Mrs. V. Pipes, Mrs. S. Creed and Mrs. McCulloch headed groups of members who evaluated a speech "The Neck of the Chicken," given by Miss Donalda Lentz, and another speech "The Great Cover-Up," made by Mrs. A. Brady.

Mrs. Creed was timer, Mrs. D. Bains gave the inspiration and Mrs. D. Gibbins, the closing thought.

It was announced that a speech contest will be held at the next meeting, to be held Tuesday, February 18 at 8 p.m. in the Empress Hotel's Princess Louise Room. The meeting will be open to visitors.

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merril advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peaches-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion-beautifying cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a supply.

Bertrand Pegs Political Hopes On Conference

By DAVE BAZAY

OTTAWA (CP) — Political leadership in French Canada is at issue in the constitutional conference opening today.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec, interim leader of the Union Nationale party, is virtually going on trial within both his party and his province.

The Union Nationale, which is to decide next month whether to hold a leadership convention, is counting on the televised conference for some guidance.

Some questions that concern Union Nationale politicians are:

—Has Mr. Bertrand got what it takes? Does he have the political stature to be premier?

—How will the 52-year-old country lawyer look after three days in the artificial sun of television?

APPEARS TENSE ON TV

As a medium, television's message has not been cheerful so far for Mr. Bertrand, who tends to become crispy-voiced, tense and awkward before the cameras.

Television may be a one-sided way to look at qualities of a political leader, but in Quebec politics the medium is more significant than ever.

The separatists, for example, have hitched their high hopes to a former television star, Rene Levesque, a popular broadcaster before he entered politics.

A Bertrand aide once remarked:

FOCUS ON LEADERSHIP

The televised conference also has a bearing on the broader question of leadership in French Canada.

Who, for example, will be the star of the conference on French-language television. Mr. Bertrand or Prime Minister Trudeau?

The question is relevant since French-speaking Canadians occupy the posts of Quebec premier and Canadian prime minister for the first time since TV cameras entered the conference room.

Who will French-speaking viewers see as their leader—Pierre Elliott Trudeau fighting to extend French-language rights across the land or Jean-Jacques Bertrand battling to fortify Quebec with greater powers as "homeland of the French-Canadian nation?"

At stake is Quebec's claim to speak for French Canada.

Israel Raps Down On Arab Inciters

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel expelled six Arab youths and a teacher from the occupied West Bank Sunday, charging they participated in or incited anti-Israeli demonstrations last week.

Today, seven convicted Arab saboteurs began serving jail sentences ranging from 15 years to life for planting grenades in the Jewish sector of Jerusalem. The grenades wounded nine Israelis last August, touching off an anti-Arab riot by Jewish youths.

About 200 Arab youths demonstrated in East Jerusalem today, chanting the name of Al Fatah commandos and of the Al Fatah commandos an dof the Palestine Liberation Organization. They called for a merchants strike but were largely ignored before police dispersed them and arrested 10.

MANY SCHOOLS CLOSED

There were other expressions of Arab opposition to the occupation. Schools were closed in Nablus, Jenin, Tulkarm, Ramallah and El Bireh. About 80 women staged a sitdown strike in El Bireh's old mosque. Moslem and private schools were closed in East Jerusalem.

Sixty Lebanon schools run by the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine refugees were idle today when teachers went on indefinite strike for better pay and working hours.

A spokesman for the strikers said that about 900 teachers were involved.

There are about 30,000 Palestinian refugee students enrolled at the schools.

Amman radio reported a possibly significant concession from Iraq. It said Iraqi Information Minister Abdullah Sallum Samarrai told a news conference the Arabs should no longer advocate throwing the Jews into the sea or exterminating them. He said Iraq favors "establishment of a democratic Palestinian Arab state of Arabs and Jews" as a move toward settlement of Middle East problems.

But Samarrai also repeated that this government rejects any peaceful setlement based on the UN Security Council resolution of November, 1967, because "It tends to liquidate the Palestine problem in Israel's favor."

Nixon Bids For Support Of Negroes

By DON OBERDORFER

WASHINGTON (WP) — Expressing concern because many black Americans do not consider him their friend, President Nixon pledged himself last week to try to win their support by his actions in the White House.

In one facet of this effort, he stated a clear and seemingly simple standard of performance in judging "freedom of choice" plans by which southern school boards propose to eliminate racial segregation.

The subjects of race and of schools, both of which have engaged the attention of the new administration in its first two weeks, were among the domestic high points of Mr. Nixon's second news conference in the White House.

When a reporter asked the president about "distrust" among blacks, who gave him only 12 per cent of their votes last fall as estimated by a post-election Gallup Poll, Mr. Nixon responded in a serious, deliberate tone and with a hint of wistfulness.

"I am concerned about this problem," he said, noting that his own task force on education had told him many black citizens do not consider him a friend.

"I can only say that, by my actions as president, I hope to rectify that," he said.

Carrier in Turkey

ISTANBUL Turkey (Reuters) — The aircraft carrier Forrestal and five destroyers of the U.S. 6th Fleet arrived here today amid strict security precautions aimed at preventing a repeat of demonstrations in which a student died in July, 1968.

Atlantic Winds Waft TV Heated Premiers

"It's very warm in here," complained Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland after Premier Jacques Bertrand of Quebec concluded his opening statement. The conference was only 90 minutes old at that point.

He suggested opening the doors of the conference room, remarking "I might be swept away in the draft."

After the brief pause in deliberations while doors were opened, Mr. Trudeau called the premiers to order with thanks to Mr. Smallwood for his initiative for bringing "the winds of the Atlantic sweeping in."

WILLIAMSON
. . . for bilingualism

Western Students Picket Premiers

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight Western students who favor bilingualism and a lone-wolf, English-speaking separatist greeted the provincial premiers today with a barrage of placards as they arrived at Parliament Hill's West Block for the opening of the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

The students, all attending Carleton University here, maintained a lonely vigil as they carried their signs back and forth in sunny 15-degree weather.

The first premiers to arrive, Manitoba's Walter Weir and John Robarts of Ontario, took no notice of them.

One of their signs read: "Weir—Undertaker of Our Confederation." Mr. Weir is an undertaker by profession.

One of the students, Stephen Bigsby of Victoria, said he and his comrades think the Western premiers "should be more understanding" on the issue of bilingualism and help their people to understand what it is all about, instead of confusing the issue.

The lone wolf, Allan Whitney of Ottawa, carried a picket that said: "Don't Fight History. Face English Fact." He said Quebec should separate from Canada, unless it wants to accept English as the country's only official language.

Mr. Bigsby said the western premiers can afford to be broad-minded on the language issue because English isn't threatened in the West. "It certainly isn't threatened in Victoria."

Another student, Paul Williamson of Victoria, said: "It appears the West is trying to deal Canada away for a few fiscal advantages."

Fearing Named By Merchants

LADYSMITH — Ron Fearing has been elected president of the newly-formed Ladysmith Merchants' Association.

Peter Kanakin and Bob Geering are vice-presidents; Art Heaven, secretary-treasurer; Ray Knight, membership; John MacNaughton, publicity; and Pat Ryan, town council co-ordinator.

Mr. Fearing said the purpose of the association is to establish a voice regarding parking and urban renewal in the village and to stimulate downtown area clean-up, paint-up campaigns.

Two Choices Face Canada Over Quebec

Speaking at a teach-in on French Canada at the University of Windsor, the leader of Parti Quebecois said Quebec has two choices—a slow and "incredibly silly" disintregation, or opting out of Canada through a majority vote.

In a blistering attack on the federal government Mr. Levesque poured scorn on "half-baked medicare, the so-called two-per-cent social progress tax" and the "just society." He said these had become so confused nobody understands them.

He said Canada is slipping more and more under United States domination through lack of initiative.

Quebec pays $3,000,000,000 a year into federal coffers and is rewarded with waste and quibblings, he said.

Mr. Levesque rejected special status for Quebec as "two countries playing at being one." In any case, special status would never emerge from federal-provincial negotiations.

Mr. Levesque's separatist views followed pleas for federalism, special status and a new look for Canada's traditional institutions.

Group Seeks Bilingualism But Rivals Back Cabinet

EDMONTON (CP) — A telegram signed by 9,000 Alberta residents condemning Premier Harry Strom's objection to bilingualism prompted a second telegram today from supporters of the freshman Alberta premier.

The second telegram was hastily organized after plans were made public for the telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau, calling Mr. Strom's objection to French becoming a second official language an "irresponsible repudiation."

Mel Hurtig of Edmonton said the telegram will be delivered to Mr. Trudeau early today, opening day of the federal-provincial constitutional conference.

He said residents of more than 25 Alberta centres are represented by the 9,000 names, and are from various political, ethnic and religious backgrounds.

Early reports indicated support for the Strom telegram was less than 1,000 names. Contents of the second telegram were not available.

Mr. Hurtig, Alberta Liberal party policy chairman, said many in Alberta "regret the image of Alberta which is being projected to the rest of Canada" by Mr. Strom's stand.

CONCERN FOR UNITY

The telegram said there is an "immediate and great concern" for Canadian unity. "We believe in one Canada, bilingual and multi-cultural."

"We feel that French-speaking Canadians are entitled to the same respect in English-speaking Canada as are Engish-speaking Canadians (given) in Quebec. . . ."

Persons of other languages and cultures who have come to Canada are respected, and "their contribution to Canadian society is consistent with English-French bilingualism."

Orvis Kennedy, president of the Alberta Social Credit League, which last Dec. 7 chose Mr. Strom to succeed retired premier E. C. Manning, said today he did not know who was organizing the second telegram and it was not a league effort.

Mr. Hurtig said his "non-partisan" telegram originated at a provincial Liberal meeting called to endorse federal medical care and Ottawa's official languages bill. But later the move encompassed Progressive Conservatives, New Democrats, university students, businessmen and ethnic groups.

Teams were set up early Sunday to phone individuals who were asked to phone 10 others. Ednrosement was running at 70 per cent, he said. A spokesman for Mr. Hurtig later quoted a telegraph company spokesman as saying that signatures on the rival telegram were one to 10 in favor of the Hurtig telegram.

The spokesman agreed the rival project had had a fraction of the time to organize.

March Falls Short; $26,000 Is Raised

Only $26,000—half of what was expected—was collected in this year's controversy-ridden Mothers' March for the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation.

"I don't think there is much possibility of making last year's total," said Ray St. Dennis, executive secretary of the foundation today, although some up-Island communities have yet to report. Last year, $38,000 was collected in the Victoria area.

He called the $26,000 figure a "real shame" and attributed the failure of the march to "areas we didn't even get to canvass, because of a shortage of mothers."

"We're going to get this whole thing cleared up so that next year we can perhaps offer more programs," he said.

TO MEET MOTHERS

He is meeting next week with district mothers and team captains to explain the controversy which exploded on the eve of the march.

At that time accusations were made by a former Lions club official that salaries paid Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation officials were too high and programs were slipping.

Mr. St. Dennis said representatives of the Lions clubs in Victoria would meet this week to discuss the controversy and decide if any action should be taken.

BLAMES FEW

He said "a few people" disrupted the success of the march and impugned the reputations of Lions and Kinsmen.

"It will be up to the clubs to set the situation right and inform the public of what happened," he said.

In the meantime Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation programs will continue uninterrupted thanks to help from the provincial body of the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation.

Unqualified Masons Hide Behind License

A Victoria masonry contractor said today B.C. municipalities are granting "licences to steal" to unqualified persons posing as tradesmen.

"Anyone at all can get a licence for $15 or $20 without proof of ability and the recent cold spell proved the folly of this," said Harry Ormiston, chairman of the masonry section of the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C.

He said he heard many complaints about faulty fireplaces when supplementary heat was sought during the cold spell.

Several months ago, masonry contractors were unable to convince local municipalities that tradesmen's licences should be issued only to qualified tradesmen or persons hiring qualified men.

He said the only municipality in B.C. which insists on proof of qualification is Prince George, "the only enlightened municipality in the province."

Mr. Ormiston said the public constantly reads of people being bilked by someone coming to the door and saying, "I'm a licensed bricklayer or contractor," and the person assumed this meant he is qualified.

Pass

Opening lead—♣K

Jim: "A spade opening would produce a two-spade or one no-trump response from North. South would be inclined to pass either bid. He would make either contract if he played the heart suit so as to pick up East's jack; otherwise he would be set."

Oswald: "Of course some people open one spade and rebid to two hearts over the no-trump response. That sequence would probably get a three- or four-heart bid by North."

Jim: "Yes, indeed. The club opening works out beautifully. South rebids to one heart over partner's one diamond. North raises to two hearts and South plays the hand there."

Oswald: "The play of the hand in hearts is instructive. South should not lead trumps. He could win the club lead or duck as a starter but the moment he obtained the lead it would be up to him to go after the diamond suit."

Jim: "A diamond lead from his own hand would be ducked by West and North's queen would be gobbled up by East's king. A second diamond lead from his hand would be won by West's ace and dummy's jack would become good."

Oswald: "South would surely make two hearts and would get an overtrick unless the defence was very good."

Jim: "Let's get back to the bidding for a moment. We have seen South rebid one heart. This is automatic in expert circles. The reason is that a one-spade bid may shut out the heart suit. A one-heart call brings in the heart suit and leaves spades available at the one level in case North has four cards in that suit."

IN OAK BAY A LOVELY OLD HOME

This gracious home was built to endure and grace many generations; the present owners (of 22 years) have maintained it in modern shape and repair.

There are FOUR SPACIOUS BEDROOMS and 3½ BATHROOMS (one en suite).

The large living room will charm you—and the SEPARATE DINING ROOM has a fireplace — (there are three fireplaces in all—)

Also, a small, intimate den adjoins a most delightful sunroom from which you overlook the most gorgeous "Wisteria"—maybe the oldest and best in Victoria—?

The family-sized kitchen has cupboards galore and plenty of space for more.

A recreation room in the basement too — and rooms and rooms for whatever you want—!

The wiring, plumbing is 1969 and the "Rolls Royce" of all hot water oil heating systems.

A double garage—a double lot—a perfect family home—BUT, you could have an elegant DUPLEX, if you want. Please call MRS. BAXTER 385-3435 anytime. The price is $42,500 — clear title. Let's arrange terms.

THIS HOUSE WAS ERECTED IN 1930 TO THE ORDER OF A PROMINENT INDUSTRIALIST AND WAS DESIGNED (ENGLISH TUDOR) BY 2 OF THE LEADING ARCHITECTS OF THE DAY, P. LEONARD JAMES AND HUBERT SAVAGE. ALL LUMBER WAS SPECIALLY STORED AND DRIED FOR A FEW YEARS BEFORE CONSTRUCTION COMMENCED. THE PRESENT OWNER, UPON ACQUIRING THE PROPERTY APPROXIMATELY ELEVEN YEARS AGO, EMBARKED UPON A COMPLETE RENOVATION PROGRAM UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF ONE OF THIS PROVINCES WELL KNOWN ARCHITECTS. THE WORK HAS BEEN CARRIED OUT IN A VERY SYMPATHETIC MANNER AND AT COLOSSAL EXPENSE. THE RESULT IS AN OPULENT AND LUXURIOUS RESIDENCE, THE STYLE AND CONDITION OF WHICH IS UNSURPASSED IN BRITISH COLUMBIA. THE DRAWING ROOM IS HANDSOME WITH A BEAUTIFULLY MOULDED CEILING; THE RECEPTION HALL IS PANELLED IN HEAVY OAK; THE SMALL LIBRARY HAS A MIRRORED WALL; BEAUTIFUL MORNING OR CARD ROOM; WELL PROPORTIONED DINING ROOM; GOOD DOMESTIC OFFICES AND STAFF ACCOMMODATION COMPLETE THE MAIN FLOOR.

Oak panelled staircase leads to three outstanding bedrooms and bathrooms; two other bedrooms. Oil hot water heating; heated garage for two large cars; full basement with excellent storage facilities.

THE BEAUTIFULLY LANDSCAPED GROUNDS, EXTENDING TO 2¼ ACRES AND AFFORDING 220 FEET OF WATERFRONTAGE, INCLUDE HEATED AND FILTERED SWIMMING POOL; HEATED GREENHOUSE AND SPRINKLER SYSTEM. THIS PROPERTY IS IN IMPECCABLE TASTE THROUGHOUT AND IN IMMACULATE CONDITION.

LUXURY — SECLUSION
LOVELY WOODED LOT

On a QUIET CUL-DE-SAC, surrounded by high-class homes, this terrific home has both EYE APPEAL OUTSIDE AND WARMTH OF LIVING inside with an amazing number of LUXURY FEATURES added. The 24 foot living room with a raised WHITE ROCK FIREPLACE and luxurious thick carpeting opens to a HUGE SUNDECK and overlooks a WOODSY, easy to keep lot, (no neighbours in view), the cozy FAMILY SIZE DINING ROOM adjoins the living room and is alongside a beautiful (HOUSEWIFE'S DELIGHT) kitchen with ample, WALNUT CABINETS and a big walnut panelled BREAKFAST AREA as well as a UTILITY ROOM with washer and dryer connections. A balcony type exit serves as a service entrance. The entrance hall has real CHARACTER, with polished pebble floor and leads to two lovely bedrooms, one with full BATHROOM EN-SUITE, as well as another warm vanity bathroom just off the lovely VINYL-PANELLED and carpeted hallway, the lower level (above garden) has a fantastically BEAUTIFUL RUMPUS ROOM with expensive ranch-type decoration and raised heatilator fireplace opening to a SECLUDED PATIO with rock wall. Adjoining the rumpus room is an additional guest area with LUXURY BAR (quilted wall), immediately across the hall is a BEAUTIFUL DEN (or extra bedroom) with big closets, an EXTRA, FULL VANITY BATHROOM and just a few steps further is an almost finished large room with an ENTIRE WALL of closets (this would make a 4TH BEDROOM)—A DOUBLE DRIVE-IN GARAGE, with workshop area and still more closets has double, vinyl-type lift-up doors. The curved driveway is blacktopped and has a large (out-of-sight) PARKING AREA for trailer or boat. Many extra features (too lengthy to describe) will be delightful for you to inspect (sorry, NO DRIVE-BY'S OR SUB-LISTINGS possible, by request of owners. Takes about $12,500 to handle or approx. $17,900 Mtge. at 6¾ per cent could be assumed, if you have cash to mortgage.

UBC Sweeps Collegiate Yacht Honors

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

University of British Columbia's sailing team swept the slate, winning all six of their races to top the Pacific Northwest Inter-Collegiate Conference meet at the weekend.

The students, competing in a seven-team, round-robin tourney, sailed 12 races Saturday and nine Sunday on an Esquimalt Harbor course in 420 dinghies.

Second-place University of Washington had five wins, followed by University of Victoria (four), Western Washington College at Bellingham (three), Simon Fraser University (two), Royal Roads (one) and Reed College, Portland (zero).

Winds varied Saturday between zero and 20 knots, with a 15-knot steady southeast breeze prevailing on Sunday.

WOODWARDS WIN

Royal Victoria Yacht Club ran three frostbite championships in Cadboro Bay over the weekend, and two of their titles were won by the Woodward family.

Jack Woodward took the Senior Men's El Toro title, while 15-year-old Dennis Woodward topped a field of 10 to win the junior El Toro division. (The oldest Woodward son, Mike, spent the weekend on the committee boat for the university regatta, along with Bryan Glover, Tom Gilbert and Ron Love.)

Norman Marcus won the Davidson championship, after front-runner Sid Halls (with four firsts) hit the finish line mark in the last race. Men's senior El Toro racing was also very close, with one point separating each of the first four boats going into the last race.

Results:

EL TORO JUNIOR: (10 boats, 5 races) 1, Dennis Woodward, 9¼ pts; 2, Mike Martindale, 16¾ pts; 3, Anna Rochfort, 24 pts; 4, Doug Kidd, 25 pts; 5, Al McGillivray, 26 pts.

EL TORO SENIOR MEN: (8 boats, 5 races) 1, Jack Woodward, 9¼ pts; 2, Lysle Russell, 13¾ pts; 3, Jim Williams, 19¾ pts; 4, Ray Jefferson, 19¾ pts.

DAVIDSONS: (14 boats, 5 races) 1, Norman Marcus, 10¾ pts; 2, Humphrey Golby, 16 pts; 3, Sid Halls, 18 pts; 4, Rocky Rochfort, 22 pts.
OOD: Shirley Jefferson.

New Dickens Crusade Seen As Aged Need

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Canada's old-age pensioners need a Charles Dickens to fight for them, Mrs. Clara Maunsell told the Victoria branch of the Dickens Fellowship Saturday.

The Victoria poet and teacher said Dickens was "ever the champion of the aged and unfortunate and he would have had much to say of a prosperous country like ours in which pensioners cannot find homes.

"We need another Dickens to stir up public opinion and compel our politicians to do something for these forgotten people who helped to build Canada."

TOASTS MEMORY

Mrs. Maunsell was giving the toast to The Immortal Memory at a dinner in the Century Inn honoring the 157th anniversary of Dickens' birth.

Dickens, she said, was a great reporter who wrote vividly of good and evil as he saw it. He picked his characters from life and he lived and suffered with them.

INSPIRED AUDIENCE

"In those days when there was no TV, no radio, no cars nor Reader's Digests, Dickens was an absolute wizard," Mrs. Maunsell said.

"By simply using his voice and the words he had written, he could make these characters walk the platform on which he stood."

He travelled the unlisted schools of England, disguised as "a parent," in order to discover how shamefully unwanted children were treated in 19th-century England.

He concentrated these horrors in Mr. Squeers, the cruel, avaricious principal of Dotheboys Hall, Yorkshire, who fed his students as little as possible and beat them as often as possible.

Girl Mauled When Cougar Startled

HOUSTON Tex. (AP) — The mother of a four-year-old girl said the University of Houston cougar mascot attacked her daughter Saturday when the youngster ran after a red ball within the animal's reach.

Thomasena Propes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Propes of Houston, was bitten on the throat by the cougar and scratched under the left eye, her mother said.

The 100-pound animal was on a chain leash in front of its small house on campus when the incident happened, Mrs. Propes said.

Thomasena received six stitches at the university clinic and was able to go home.

A university spokesman said the incident "will be brought to the attention of proper authorities at the university and if anything can be done to make the cougar safer we'll do it."

Rembrandts Attracting Thousands

A total of 53,698 persons has visited the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts since the Rembrandt and His Pupils exhibition opened Jan. 9.

Museum officials said the exhibition's popularity is ranking with such previous successes as Van Gogh and Picasso.

The exhibition, organized by Director David Giles Carter, consists of 120 works from public and private collections in The Netherlands, France, Great Britain, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, the United States and Canada.

50 Monster Rockets Found

SAIGON (AP) — Fifty monster rockets that one American adviser said could "raise hell" in Saigon have been found only one day's travel from the capital. They were part of one of the biggest enemy rocket stockpiles uncovered in the war.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said it was the first capture of 240-millimetre rockets, warheads of which are twice the size and nearly seven times as powerful as the Russian 122-millimetre and Chinese 107-millimetre missiles regularly used by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

"It's not anything like we've seen before," said an American officer. "Someone fabricated this, and it is not a mass produced item like you'd find in a Moscow parade."

RANGE LIMITED

Military spokesmen said the warheads probably had been improvised at arms factories in Cambodia and were hauled into South Vietnam on bicycles. Seventy bicycles were found with the rockets.

They speculated the big rockets were to be fired from crude launchers that would limit them to a range of one to four miles.

South Vietnamese marines found the new type rockets in a 30-ton munitions cache in 34 caves in War Zone C, 60 miles north of Saigon and 18 miles from the Cambodian border.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the find definitely helped to "neutralize the enemy's offensive capability" for an attack on Saigon during the holiday season before and after the lunar new year Feb. 17.

The spokesman said the heavy weapons and ammunition, new and still in protective wrappers, were enough to equip two full North Vietnamese regiments of 3,000 men each.

U.S. troops found four other big munitions and food stockpiles, three of them in the Saigon area.

Red Fleet Rub Out Matter of Minutes

HAMBURG (AP) — British Defence Minister Denis Healey said today that despite Russia's muscle flexing with her Mediterranean fleet, Western forces in the region could "sink all of the Soviet ships within minutes" if war came.

Interviewed in London by three editors of the West German magazine Der Spiegel Healey said he believes the main mission of the Soviet Mediterranean fleet is to "cover Western naval forces just as a soccer player covers his opponent."

"With her 20 battleships, which she had at one point, she posed no threat," Healey said. "Even at her maximal strength, the Soviet fleet is still considerably smaller than the Italian fleet."

In the event of a Soviet attack from the Mediterranean on such countries as Turkey or Greece, Healey said mobile forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "could land troops very quickly in the threatened countries."

Booths Hard to Find In Thailand Election

BANGKOK (Reuters) — The first general elections in more than 10 years were being held in Thailand today but many people could not find polling booths and failed to vote.

Voters in Bangkok and Thonburi, across the Chao Phya River, complained booths were inconveniently located and difficult to find and went home after failing to find their names in the registered voters' lists kept in the booths they did come across.

One voter said the booths were sited in small out-of-the-way lanes.

The voting was described by officials as quiet, leisurely and methodical in Bangkok, but in northeastern Kalasin province one polling official was reported killed and another wounded by Communist guerrillas.

Election results for Bangkok were expected to be known early Tuesday and for the whole country Wednesday.

More than 14,500,000 Thais were eligible to vote to choose 219 members of the House of Representatives.

The elections were the first since 1958 when the late prime minister, Field Marshal Sarit Thanarat, seized power in a bloodless coup and abolished democratic organizations.

The government's Saha-Pracha-Thai (United Thai People) needs to win only 70 to 80 seats to stay in power since the House must vote together with the 126 members of the Senate—all government appointed—on all vital issues.

Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn told reporters after casting his vote at a booth opposite his house that the party expected to win more than half the 219 seats.

THREE IN THE ATTIC
Restricted, of Course
Odeon Theatre

If you are resigned to sex in movies, and don't feel like signing a petition against it, you will enjoy Three in the Attic.

For here is a fast-moving sex farce which, despite its contrived nature, has more than a few moments of hilarity.

At a beer party in his fraternity house, Christopher Jones happens on Yvette Mimieux, a particularly tasty dish. He throws her one of his standard lines and, when she turns away in disgust, he quotes some famous philosopher on marriage.

In a flash she is on him, begging to know whether he made it up or the philosopher really said it. Soon they are together most of the time, reading philosophy, drinking coffee, making love.

Jones has long been regarded as the super stud of his college, and this damages his mighty reputation. If he lives with Mimieux, his reputation will be zero.

A quarrel ensues. They make it up, but Jones has a fear of being trapped. While driving his motorcycle through the woods, he runs into Judy Pace, a beautiful black "chick" with a strong southern accent.

Soon he is making love to her as well.

Later he encouters Maggie Thrett, a "beat chick" who turns him on with a marijuana brownie—a sequence copied from the Peter Sellers film, I Love You, Alice B. Toklas.

Jones still loves Mimieux but his reputation is at stake. He must "make it" with all three chicks without any one of them knowing about the others.

Many may ask, if these are college morals, why bother to go to college? The downtown brothel is more accessible.

Quick-Dial Phone For Emergencies?

Your house is on fire, there's a burglar downstairs or your husband has just had a heart attack —what do you do?

Pick up a phone and dial 911, an all-purpose, 24-hour emergency number.

The Greater Victoria Safety Council is investigating such a service now. Fire, police or ambulance assistance would be a mere three digits away.

At a meeting last week the council noted that similar emergency programs had been successful in Toronto (361-1111), Kitchener-Waterloo (911) and Windsor (999).

Discussions are now being held with B.C. Telephone and the Safety Council is trying to determine if there is public interest in such a service.

TURN-ON TURNED OFF BY NETWORK DECISION

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Broadcasting Co. said Sunday it has told the principal sponsor of "Turn-On" that the show is unacceptable to the network. The comedy program was first shown last Wednesday and was cancelled by some stations that thought it objectionable.

A network spokesman confirmed ABC had relayed its reaction to Bristol-Myers, primary sponsor of the half-hour show which featured spoofs on political figures, contemporary mores and sex.

School Bands Provide Interesting Contrast

By BERYL PROUDMAN

The Senior Band from Reynolds Secondary School and Mount View Senior Secondary School's Band, both under the baton of Howard Denike, each presented half a concert in the McPherson Playhouse Sunday afternoon.

The Reynolds' Band, which was making its first public appearance after playing together for only 18 months, showed great promise.

Its rhythmic sense was well developed and brighter numbers were played with commendable liveliness. Only in more sustained compositions did their lack of experience and security show in occasional intonation lapses.

ROUSING OPENER

Frere Jacque March provided a rousing opener and the Musette from Bach's Miniature Suite really sprang to life after a more labored passage through the difficult slow movements.

A well-matched trombone trio featured Derek Muir, Brian Hawkins and Mike Brunwell in a light, southern-flavored, Thombrero.

The reliable flute section provided apt baroque tone in a Handel miscellany and Kabalevsky's Suite in a Minor Mode ended this half of the concert on a successful modern note because its demands were not beyond the resources of the players.

Harry Elsdon was accompanied by this band in a selection of songs from South Pacific and later joined the Mount View Band in several numbers from Oliver.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS

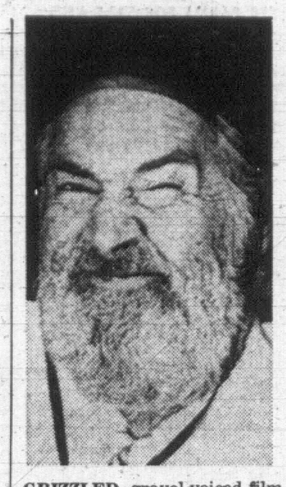
The more experienced band from Mount View, tackled a far more ambitious program and their clarity of tone and confident attack showed how much difference several years of playing together can make to a band.

Gossec's Classic Overture, an intricate complicated work with which to open a program, took a short time to settle, but, as it progressed, showed how the band could accomplish runs and interlocking rhythmic patterns with ease.

An excerpt from Rossini's William Tell showed several well-co-ordinated sections to advantage and was played with quite an heroic flair.

A pot pourri of percussive effects was brought into play in the unusual Percussion Espagnole while the band accompanied the various shakes, rattles and bongs in fitting style.

The concert closed with the contemporary work Pageant Op. 59 by Persichetti, and the last chord of this work produced an expert flourish from the well-trained band.



GRIZZLED, gravel-voiced film sidekick of Hopalong Cassidy, George "Gabby" Hayes, 83, died Sunday in Burbank, Calif., of a heart ailment. He retired from films in 1960.

Common Onion Clot Fighter

NEWCASTLE, England (Reuters) — The common onion may become a dramatic new weapon to fight one of the biggest killer diseases, coronary thrombosis, doctors here report.

A team of doctors at Newcastle University discovered that boiled or fried onions raised the blood's capacity to dissolve away deadly internal clots.

They began research after a chance remark by a patient that in France horses suffering from blood clots in the leg were treated with garlic and onions.

Tests on humans produced what appeared to be a previously unsuspected medical property of the onion. Doctors and drug firms now are working to isolate the chemical responsible.

Gas Overcomes 22

STOKE ON TRENT, England (Reuters) — Twenty-two girls were overcome today by gas and collapsed at a clothing factory here. They were taken to hospital and treated for gas poisoning. Five were held temporarily and the rest went home. The gas may have come from a leak in the factory, sources said.

Go-Go Girl Shows Talent At Wedding

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Blushing from the tips of her toes to her topless torso, Linda Lutz was married Friday on the stage of a go-go tavern where she fell in love.

Miss Lutz, 20, of Pittsburgh, Pa., wed Jim Stewart, 26, of Fort Smith, Ark., before a cheering crowd of 100.

After sealing the marriage with a kiss, she performed a solo go-go dance for the benefit of photographers. The new Mrs. Stewart is the topless go-go dancer at the tavern and Stewart is the bartender.

The new husband said he plans to keep working at the tavern but hopes his wife can quit work as soon as possible.

Lovers Fight Light

YATELY, England (Reuters) —Courting couples threw bricks at a new street lamp recently installed in a lovers' lane here, expressing their opinion of its unromantic glare. Some town councillors want to put up a shield to protect the bulb, but one considerate councillor suggested a light switch be put on the lamp instead.

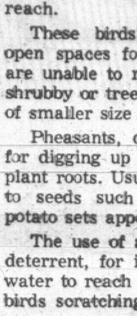
TIPS FOR HOME GARDEN

Foil Birds with Wire

Birds will sometimes persist in habits of behaviour most annoying to gardeners. Berries and fruits are fair enough game, and we are willing enough to share these bounties in return for insect eating in late winter and spring.



Hilda

But when birds persist in digging up the same bulbs day after day, gardeners become annoyed.

This happens with crocuses and crows one gardener tells us, and asks what can be done to prevent it.

The only solution that occurs to me is to use half-inch mesh chicken wire arched over the crocus beds and pegged down with wooden stakes.

In the reader's question, the crocuses were being grown in pots on a wall, but perhaps meshed wire could still be used effectively.

Alternatively, maybe the pots could be moved to a position where crows cannot reach.

These birds, like seagulls, prefer wide open spaces for landing and take-off. They are unable to reach food if it is placed in a shrubby or treed area, although ground birds of smaller size have no difficulty there.

Pheasants, quail and grouse are blamed for digging up and spoiling various kinds of plant roots. Usually these birds are attracted to seeds such as peas and beans; while potato sets appeal to pheasants.

The use of arched mesh wire is the best deterrent, for it permits sun, light, air and water to reach soil beneath, yet prevents the birds scratching around the seeds.

Once plants begin to grow, even two or three inches, the wire can be removed and kept for another year.

YOUR HEALTH

Artificial Sweeteners Said Safe

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Because several people have written, worried about recent articles that suggested that sweeteners may not be safe, I will say here that in the AMA (American Medical Association) News, for December 30, 1968, it is stated that experts again have reported that the amounts of saccharin or cyclamate that a person uses in tablet form in his coffee appear to be perfectly safe. Also the amount that is taken by an adult in a day, in five 12-ounce bottles of some "diet drink" should be safe. In some people it can cause diarrhea. The U.S. food and drug experts will keep studying the situation.

Alvarez

According to an article in "Time" for January 3, 1969, there still is a question if a chemical, produced in the body when cyclamate is consumed, might cause breaks in the chromosomes of the body cells. The chromosomes are the microscopic rods in our cells which have so much to do with making us what we are. Unfortunately, as the "Time" editors says, it may take years before we know whether or not the changes found in rats fed cyclamate will appear in children and adults, and will eventually do harm.

I read that the mother who wants to play safe should allow her small child only one or one and a half bottles of diet drink a day. We should remember that the dosage of a drug varies with the bulk of the person who takes it; hence a child who weights 60 pounds should take half of what his 120-pound mother takes. Again I will say that people who use only the tablets of artificial sweetener in their coffee need not worry — they don't take enough to do them harm.

* * *

Many persons suffer much from their too stormy emotions. They feel disagreements too strongly; they get "all steamed up" over little annoyances, and they make it hard for themselves to live with people.

Often a physician has to beg a woman to stop her daily debauches of emotion over some mistake of the past. Some of the women spend nights thinking of what they might have done to avoid some accident or illness which injured a loved one. They keep saying, "If only I had not let my sister go on that automobile ride, she would be alive today." If the woman would only think for a moment, she would realize that all her regrets and guilts will change nothing that has happened, and she is only poisoning her life and making herself a problem to the people around her.

* * *

I remember well a nice-looking, well-educated and interesting unmarried woman of 35 who kept herself ill by constantly regretting and brooding over her folly one day when she angered and puzzled the fine man who was planning to marry her. As she kept saying every day and night, "If I had only apologized immediately and explained that when I was premenstrual, for two days I was irritable and unreasonable — but I did not apologize or explain, and so the fine young doctor, much hurt, walked out of my life and never came back."

Ever since then I have said to many such women, "In marriage, the following words are all-important: 'I'm sorry, darling; please forgive me.'" Another bit of very good advice is, "Never let the sun go down on thy wrath." Don't carry your quarrel overnight.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

France Was Happy To Lose New World

By BOB BOWMAN

Although Britain had captured Canada in September, 1760, when Governor Vaudreil surrendered to General Amherst at Montreal, Canada did not belong to Britain officially until Feb. 10, 1863, when the Treaty of Paris was signed.

Bowman

France gave up all her territory in North America, even Louisiana which had been founded by the LeMoyne brothers from Montreal. France gave this to Spain, but Napoleon made Spain give it back years later, and then sold it to the U.S. after his plan to recapture Canada failed.

Britain allowed France to retain the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the coast of Newfoundland, but only as fishing bases and they belong to France today.

Actually France was glad to give up her possession in North America. Voltaire said that in yielding Canada, France had rid herself of acres of snow. Between 1608, when Champlain founded Quebec, and 1763 it is believed that not more than 10,000 people from France came to Canada with the intention of remaining.

After the capture of Montreal, Britain allowed French soldiers, officials and civilians to return to France if they wished. Hundreds of transports sailed up the St. Lawrence to take them home.

BONES SCATTERED

General Levis was among the first to go, and became a duke. However he died just before the French revolution and his body was torn from the grave and his bones were scattered. Two of his daughters were sent to the guillotine.

About 100 seigneurs returned to France, but were given a chilly reception, and it is said that some of them wished they had stayed in Canada. They probably would have been better off.

Britain gave her new French-speaking citizens full religious liberty (which was not given to Ireland) French civil law, and the privilege of using their own language although this was not guaranteed in the treaty. The right to speak French in Parliament and the courts came after the Act of Union in 1840.

Other events Feb. 10:

1794—Lord Dorchester, governor of Canada, told Indian leaders Britain would probably be at war again with the U.S.

1812—John Henry received $50,000 from the U.S. for revealing British spy activity in New England states.

1838—Lower Canada constitution was suspended.

1841—Union of Upper and Lower Canada was proclaimed.

1867 — St. Catherines, Ont., became a city.

Fascists in Riot

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Hundreds of Fascist youths battled police with fists and firecrackers Sunday. Twelve persons were reported injured. The fight broke out after a rally organized by the Fascists in a movie theatre.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Laurel Evans, age 12, of Peterborough, Ontario, Canada, for her question:

How do they get the sound onto records?

You can buy a super record for a few dollars. But 100 years ago, one could not be bought with all the world's gold. Very complex modern techniques are needed to make them. These up-to-the-minute processes are being improved all the time to make better and still better records.

Today's methods for making phonograph records may be out of date in a few months or years. Someone may invent a simpler method or one that produces superior quality records. So Andy consulted experts at a plant where records are being made by the most up-to-date methods at this moment. This last-minute information may vary somewhat with articles in some of your reference books — and next year it may be out of date.

Sounds are energetic air molecules, vibrating in different patterns that produce variations in pitch and volume. When you sing in the shower, the sounds fan out, grow weary and soon fade away. But experts in electronics know how to capture a song in the wind and freeze it solid to be repeated later. They change vibrating sound patterns into electrical impulses. Then they use these bursts of energy to cut a groove around a record. Wavy patterns in the groove are frozen duplicates of the sound patterns. The pickup on your phonograph retraces the jogging waves and converts them back again into the original audible sound.

The complete job is done in stages. Stage one is done in a sound studio, where the music and song are captured by well-placed microphones. These sensitive instruments change sound vibrations into electrical impulses. These duplicated patterns are captured on a roll of magnetic tape. Later, technicians transfer these silent sounds to a series of records.

The first is a blank disk of aluminum coated with soft lacquer. It is placed on a turntable and precision machinery is used to synchronize it with the unwinding tape. An arm, bearing a sensitive magnet that jogs a sapphire needle, is guided to cut a groove around the record. As it goes, the electronic impulses from the tape jog the needle. It cuts a wavy line in the groove that duplicates the original sound patterns. This lacquered disk is called a simple master record.

Stamps Records

It is electroplated with thin metal and used to imprint a master record. The imprinted grooves and ridges are reversed, and the master record is a negative. It could be used to imprint a few playable records, but much stronger negatives are needed to stamp them out in quantities. The master is used to imprint eight mother records. These are playable positives — but no use for imprinting more records. The eight mother records are used to imprint 40 negative stampers. Two masters are needed to make the final record, one for each side. A pair of stampers are fixed on opposite sides of a press. A blank plastic disk called a biscuit is sandwiched between them. When the press is squeezed shut, the negative stampers make positive imprints on both sides of the plastic biscuit. With a label and a neat package, the finished record is ready to go to market.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Globe to David Paulson, age 10, of San Bernardino, California, for his question:

Why is it lucky to carry a rabbit's foot?

Some people do not feel comfortable unless they carry a good luck charm. If their pet rabbit's foot or four-leafed clover is lost, these people get a feeling of foreboding disaster. Sometimes they are stuck with a bit of bad luck, even when they still have their lucky charms. This does not dismay them. They argue that things would have been a lot worse if they had not been carrying their good luck charms. Of course, this is not reasonable good sense. But as a rule, people who depend on good luck charms are not very particular about good sense.

It would, naturally, be very nice if each one of us could arrange everything that happens to suit ourselves. But as we grow up, we learn that this cannot occur. We accept the fact that happenings beyond our control will bring bits of good luck and bad luck into our lives. But some people never reach this grown-up stage. They continue to need their rabbit's foot to feel safe. However, they tend to forget the bunny who once owned it. That poor fellow was not very lucky when somebody took his foot for a good luck charm.

Central Provinces Press for Fiscal Debate

Premiers Ask More Revenue

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The central provinces told the federal government today it must give them the fiscal resources to carry out their responsibilities.

They made the demand at the first session of the constitutional conference as Prime Minister Trudeau vainly tried to steer the discussion to reform of the constitution.

But the prime minister said he is willing to rearrange the conference agenda if that is necessary.

The agenda was to be debated later today after all the opening statements were completed. There were five speakers at the first session: Mr. Trudeau and Premiers John Robarts of Ontario, Mr. Bertrand, G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia and Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick.

Mr. Trudeau told reporters there was "total unanimity" among the first four premiers to speak on language rights.

The prime minister went around the C-shaped conference table shaking hands with all premiers—except W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia—before the conference opened. Mr. Bennett was three minutes late and came in after Mr. Trudeau had started speaking.

PM WEARS CARNATION

Mr. Trudeau wore a dark suit and red carnation in his lapel. He was flanked at the start by Justice Minister John Turner and Paul Martin, government leader in the Senate.

Mr. Trudeau probably did his best job ever in reading a prepared text. Normally he has a great deal of difficulty giving a speech from iaper.

Mr. Robarts said that if Ontario cannot get a more equitable apportionment of tax rev-

Sharp Orders China Talks

OTTAWA (UPI) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said today he had instructed the Canadian embassy in Stockholm to launch negotiations toward an exchange of diplomats with Communist China.

"Our embassy in Stockholm has been instructed to get in touch with the embassy of the People's Republic of China in order to convey the Canadian proposal that talks concerning relations between the two countries be held at a mutually convenient time and place in the near future," Sharp said in a statement to the House.

He said he hoped that "before long we shall have a reply from the Chinese government and that representatives of our two countries can then begin to discuss the question of recognition . . . and the exchange of embassies between Ottawa and Peking."

Sharp said the government would explore with Chinese officials the "whole range of Sino-Canadian relations."

He hoped the discussions would include the possibilities for "expanding and developing" existing relations in a number of areas.

"Even without diplomatic relations, we have been able to develop our trade, exchange correspondents between Ottawa and Peking and increase contacts between Canada and China in a number of fields in recent years."

Sharp said there would be "a number of questions" for officials to discuss with the Chinese.

"It is not only a question of working out a satisfactory basis for recognition and the exchange of embassies, but of reaching agreement on a number of details relating to the operations of a Canadian embassy in Peking and a Chinese embassy in Ottawa," he said.

Sharp's statement did not refer to Canada's existing relations with the government in Formosa.

Crippling Blizzard Hits Eastern U.S. States

NEW YORK (AP) — New York was crippled and cut off from its suburbs today in the wake of a storm that dumped 15 inches of snow, piled into drifts whipped by high winds.

The Long Island Rail Road shut down, cutting off 90,000 commuters. The Penn Central and New Haven railroads drastically cut schedules, and buses were mired in huge traffic jams caused by stalled and deserted vehicles.

The State Thruway was closed from Albany to New York City —148 miles—for the first time in its history, and more than 1,000 cars were stranded on the Tappan Zee Bridge, a thruway span across the Hudson River at Tarrytown. The passengers took shelter locally.

Subways were running near normal. All public and parochial schools and colleges were closed, as were all branches of the public library.

Kennedy International, La Guardia and Newark airports were closed. More than 6,000 persons were stranded at Kennedy, where food supplies were being rapidly exhausted. Roads to the airport were blocked by stalled vehicles. One jetliner with 39 passengers was snowbound on a runway for nine hours Sunday before plows could free it.

Thirteen of New York City's 15 inches fell Sunday, a record for a single day.

Winds gusting to more than 40 miles an hour and temperatures in the 20s complicated the snow removal problem, as city officials declared a "snow emergency" and urged motorists to stay at home.

Northern New Jersey was equally crippled. Public schools in seven Northern New Jersey counties were closed, and many other areas reported partial closings.

TURNPIKE CLOSED

The New Jersey Turnpike was shut from New Brunswick to Newark, and other parkways were plagued by deserted autos.

Connecticut commuters had it no better, Canaan, in northwestern Connecticut, reported 35 inches of snow.

EARTH TREMOR SHOCKS ACCRA

ACCRA (Reuters) —Fifteen persons were taken to hospital Sunday night with shock and minor injuries after a short earthtremor briefly blacked out most of the Ghanian capital. The tremor, which lasted about three seconds, occured at 7:30 p.m.

Attendant Cries Wolf

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — Service station attendant Glen Keye was having a routine day Saturday until he lifted the trunk of a small foreign car to fill the tank and found himself looking at a snarling wolf.

After slamming the hood down he yelled to the car driver, Robert Campbell of Walkerton: "There's a wolf in your trunk."

Mr. Campbell explained he struck the wolf as it crossed the highway and thinking the animal was dead, tossed it into his trunk so he could collect the provincial bounty on the animal.

Bertrand Gets Trudeau Rebuke

(Times News Services)

Premier Jean Jacques Bertrand of Quebec told the constitutional conference that the problem of Quebec autonomy is more important "than human rights or the linguistic rights of minorities".

He spoke almost entirely in French, breaking into English briefly near the end of his speech.

He said:

"While the style may change, it should be obvious that the substance of that policy cannot vary much. Men may come and go but the reality of Quebec endures."

CANADA TWO NATIONS

He said equating Canada's constitutional problems with a question of personal or linguistic rights would be "merely scratching the surface."

He added:

"If there is a crisis in Canada, it is not because our country is made up of individuals who speak different languages. It is because Canada is the home of two communities, two peoples, two nations between which relations need to be harmonized."

Mr. Bertrand said Canadian duality arises because French- and English-speaking Canadians have "different ways of approaching, feeling and reacting when confronted by events."

"A French-Canadian is not the same as an English-Canadian, differing only as to the tongue he speaks. He speaks differently because he is different."

The statement brought a strong rebuke from Prime Minister Trudeau who said after the opening session that he found it "a little bizarre" that Quebec did not give bilingualism top priority.

Mr. Trudeau said Premier Bertrand pretended to speak for all French-Canadians but has "obviously no mandate to speak for French-Canadians outside Quebec."

Premier Bertrand, in a tough opening statement, warned the conference that he did not come to Ottawa "to water down" the ideas of the late Premier Daniel Johnson.

Mr. Bertrand reaffirmed his faith in the federal system of government but said the constitutional system should "reconcile the free growth of Canada's two cultural communities."

He said "the iron rule of democracy" dictates that the Quebec government identify itself with Quebec's French-speaking majority.

CITES PROBLEMS

He said a French-speaking Quebecer sees the constitutional problem this way:

"The important thing for French-Canadians from Quebec is not to be allowed as individuals to speak their mother tongue even in regions of the country where it has little chance of being understood.

WAC Happy —There Is No Crisis

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia said today he is glad his collegaues now realize Canada isn't in a condition of crisis.

"There is none of this talk about crisis at the conference now," Mr. Bennett told reporters as he emerged from the opening session of the federal-provincial constitutional talks.

"Things are on a more settled basis now, and the conference is going on very nicely."

The British Columbia premier recalled that he had "pointed out last year that there was no crisis," when he came to the 1968 federal-provincial conference.

"They laughed at me when I said there was no crisis," he said. "Now they've got the message."

He was especially glad that the premiers of Quebec and Ontario had stopped talking about "a crisis atmosphere."

BYELECTION VOTING STEADY

Polls opened at 8 a.m. today as voting got underway in 188 polling divisions in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

Of the 48,494 registered voters in the riding, 2,051 live in the Sooke-Metchosin area. Voters will elect a member of Parliament for the long-time NDP constituency that has been without an MP since the death of Colin Cameron July 28.

By noon today various party headquarters at Nanaimo, Duncan and Sooke described the turnout as steadier than expected. Most party spokesmen estimated the turnout would be higher than in the June federal elections due to the interest sparked during the by-election campaign.

No Justification for Restrictions

BERLIN (CP) — The three Western allies declared today there is no justification for East Germany to impose restrictions on surface routes to West Berlin. (See story Page 3.)

The electors are expected to fly to the Communist-encircled city in order to evade the new restrictions.

The United States, Britain and France noted in a joint statement that the assembly had met on three previous occasions in West Berlin.

"The three governments consequently hold that there is no justification for the East German announcement on Feb. 8," the statement said.

"This announcement is moreover inconsistent with the fact that the Soviet Union, not East Germany, is responsible for free and unhindered access to person and goods to Berlin. The three governments have in the past reminded the Soviet Union of this responsibility. Their position has not changed."

The statement said the West German decision to hold the presidential election in West Berlin was taken "after due consultation with the three powers within the framework of their responsibilities for Berlin.'

ADN, the East German news agency, said Sunday the restrictions become effective Feb. 15. It made no mention of the air links to West Berlin, 110 miles inside East Germany, since the air lanes are controlled by the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, the four postwar occupation powers.

The ban affects the 1,036 delegates to the Federal Assembly, about 300 aides and assistants and all members of the West German armed forces. The assembly is to elect a successor to West German President Heinrich Luebke, who is retiring.

Representatives of the United States, Britain and France, whose occupation of West Berlin is still technically in force, were expected to issue a protest to the Soviet Union. A spokesman in Bonn said it would be "firm but low-key."

●

EAST BERLIN (Reuters) — Marshal Ivan Yakibovsky, supreme commander of the Warsaw pact forces and a first deputy Soviet defence minister, arrived here today on a surprise visit. The purpose of the visit was not announced, but a Soviet embassy spokesman said it was connected with "the current situation."

Tongue Rights Crucial And Misunderstood—PM

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau opened the federal-provincial constitutional conference today with a firm restatement of his belief that language rights are essential to Canadian unity.

"Our policy of bilingualism has been widely misunderstood," the prime minister said in his opening statement.

"It does not mean that every English-speaking Canadian must learn to speak French any more than it means that every French-speaking Canadian must learn to speak English.

"It means that every Canadian will have access to public education in either official language, and will be free to use either language in dealing with other public bodies, in all areas of the country where the size of the minority justifies it.

"Only when this has been achieved will all Canadians, of both languages, feel that the whole of Canada is their country."

Mr. Trudeau said both French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians must enjoy the fullest rights of citizenship. "Wherever they live, they must feel at home."

WILL NOT RETREAT

The federal government had come to recognize language rights as fundamental in Canada. There could be no retreat from that position.

Either language rights would be recognized throughout the country, or mutual suspicion and mistrust would push the country to the point of disintegration. "That is Canada's challenge, and together we must answer it," the prime minister said.

He acknowledged that extension of language rights across Canada could cause technical and financial problems. However, "we are ready to discuss these problems with the provinces, and to consider any proposals for assistance in solving them."

Before Paliament now is the federal government's official languages bill, which would establish bilingual districts where federal services would be available in both official languages. Action on the bill has been delayed pending the outcome of the current conference.

Mr. Trudeau noted that several provinces have adopted measures to extend language rights since last February's federal-provincial conference. The all-important matter of education comes under provincial jurisdiction.

MUST BE PROTECTED

"Now that we have taken the first steps in this direction, we cannot afford to hesitate or fall back," Mr. Trudeau said. "Language rights are too important to too many Canadians to be left without adequate protection in our law.

"We must place them beyond question and beyond attack by guaranteeing them to all Canadians in our revised constitution."

The prime minister said he knows that constitutional reform and language rights aren't the only problems demanding the government's attention.

The country had many economic and social problems crying for solution, and it had been suggested that the conference should deal with them and set constitutional issues aside for the present. But the time had passed for such stop-gap action. The underlying problems of Candaian nationhood had to be examined.

"Canadian unity, and federal-provincial co-operation, have been called in question too often for us to think that another temporary expedient will do. We must discuss the fundamental problems — the constitution, which defines the framework of Canadian unity and sets the rules of federal-provincial co-operation."

MAKES STRONG PLEA

Mr. Trudeau made a strong plea on behalf of the bill of rights that he wants to insert in a revamped Canadian constitution. There was no question of the federal government encroaching upon provincial jurisdiction, "since it is not a matter of transferring legislative powers from one government to another."

"It is only necessary that we be in agreement to restrict the power of all governments, so that they will no longer be free to prevent the exercise of individual rights which we would all agree to guarantee."

On the question of regional economic disparity, which some of the provinces are anxious to discuss, Mr. Trudeau said he, too, wants "to find more equitbale ways of distributing opportunities throughout Canada, and we welcome a full discussion of the best constitutional means of achieving this goal."

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures declined 1½ cents on the board of trade today. All other grains and soybeans also trended lower. Trade was mixed but the pace was slow. The lack of export business and the strike of longshoremen on the east and Gulf of Mexico coasts, now in its eighth week, were major factors in the liquidation.

Wheat prices also came under selling pressure on the opening and as selling increased in the corn pit wheat liquidation picked up momentum. Prices were at nearly lows for the day on the close. Rye prices early in the session showed some relative strength but gave way under light selling near the close.

The bulk of the trade was in the hands of locals and commission houses, with some exporter buying by an international house.

Oats and barley were a light trade and prices were mostly steady on moderate domestic shipper buying for eastern feeders. Rye trade was confined to inter-month spreading.

MacMillans Cleared On Fraud Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto mining promoters George and Viola MacMillan today were acquitted of charges of defrauding the public through trading in the stock of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., a company they controlled in 1964.

Judge Harry Deyman, handing down his decision in county court, said he could not find that the market activity in Windfall stock, which rose to $1.01 from 56 cents in a single day in July, 1964, was caused by the action of the MacMillans.

"Such activity was just as likely to be caused by the earlier discovery by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., that same year, which caused activity among a number of companies with holdings in the area," Judge Deyman said.

He also said that he did not agree with the Crown's contention that the public was defrauded through the MacMillans' promotion of Windfall stock and their delay in making results of a drill core assay public.

"A press release sent out under the signature of G. A. MacMillan on July 7 regarding the property was no doubt factual," Judge Deyman said. "I can find nothing amounting to fraud in it."

Judge Deyman also said that he did not think Mr. MacMillan's decision to wait until the drill hole on the Windfall property was finished before releasing a drill report was wrong.

Crown counsel Rod Cormack said that the attorney-general's department must decide within 30 days whether to appeal the decision.

"But as far as I am concerned this is it — there will be no appeal," he said.

Mrs. MacMillan, 65, was convicted in 1967 of wash trading in the share of another company she controlled, Consolidated Golden Arrow Mines Ltd. She was given a nine months indeterminate sentence, but released after serving several weeks of it.

Wash trading is a term used to describe an attempt to affect the market price of a stock by creating a false impression of public activity in its shares.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Vancouver Booming

Vancouver Stock Exchange was booming along at a strong pace today, with 4,500,000 shares traded before noon.

Trading was running close to the record-breaking pace set on Jan. 27 when a total of 7,038,896 shares changed hands.

Largo was the heaviest trader at 473,900 shares to gain .15 at .85. Buttle Lake added .20 at $9.70 and Bethex added .15 at $6.

Other gainers were Ace, up .55 to $2.75; Alwin, Consolidated Gem, Calico, Golden West, Madrona, National Nickel, Northwest Ventures, Paramount, Silver Standard, Trojan and Western Mines.

Among the losers were Calta and Silver Arrow.

Stampede gained .25 to $15 in the oils and Allied Roxanna added .05 at $2.70.

The market as a whole has been hovering around its record for more than a week without much movement one way or the other.

Erie Diversified gained 3⅛ to 21¾, Versafood 2½ to 26½, Dylex Diversified 2½ to 26½, Shully Industries 2¼ to 20, and B.C. Sugar 2 to 54.

Among the heaviest traders, Hardee Farms rose 25 cents to $2.55 and Interprovincial Commercial Discount 20 cents to $4.80. Manoir Industries fell 35 cents to $3.80

Trading was delayed in Canadian Pacific Investment warrants because of an imbalance of buy-and-sell orders. The warrants closed Friday at $7.85, up 45 cents on the week.

Among mines and western oils, Falconbridge rose 2¼ to 120, McIntyre Porcupine 2 to 119 and Great Plains Development ½ to 34½.

The Royal Bank was down ⅝ to 23, the Bank of Nova Scotia ⅜ to 24¼ and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ⅜ to 21⅛.

Aquitaine fell ⅜ to 18¼, Calgary Power ½ to 26 and CAE Industries ¼ to 10.

Great Lakes Paper advanced ¾ to 26¼, Alcan ⅜ to 32⅝, Canadian Pacific ⅝ to 81⅞, Cominco ½ to 40⅜.

In the industrial section of the Canadian Stock Exchange, St. Lawrence Diversified Lands, an active issue, was up 25 cents to 3.30. Wabasso was up 1¼ to 16¼.

Volume for both markets at 1 p.m. was 1,400,900 shares, compared with 1,241,500 at the same time Friday.

Marking-down among leading industrials resulted in falls ranging to 2s by EMI, Rank and Unilever. Reed and Bowater fell and Hollinger and Power Corp. also were down.

However, Canadian Pacific added three points to 236 on the Montreal-Toronto advance.

SNOW CLOSES N.Y. EXCHANGE

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York and American Stock Exchanges were closed today because of the heavy snowfall.

All commodity markets were also closed because of the weather.

U.S. to Probe TV, Radio Ownership

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Federal Communications Commission announced Saturday that it will make a study of the ownership of television and radio stations by giant corporations—and simultaneously awarded licences to three such corporations without holding hearings.

The study will deal with "all possible social, economic and political aspects" of broadcast ownership by conglomerate corporations, the commission said in a press release. Generally, such a corporation is a mix of firms that have neither a buying nor a selling relation to each other.

STUDY 'IRONIC'

Chaiman Rosel H. Hyde and four colleagues—Robert T. Bartley, Kenneth A. Cox, Nicholas Johnson and H. Rex Lee—voted for the study, which also will deal with ownership by firms "with large-scale business interests." Commissioners James J. Wadsworth and Robert E. Lee, dissented.

Terming the order for a study "ironic," Johnson said that the major position on ownership "is now so bankrupt that past errors must serve as the structural braces for actions in the public interest."

The licence assignments, which involve transfers from previous holders:

In Los Angeles, KBIG AM and FM radio stations to the Bonneville International Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon).

In Columbus, Ga., WTVM-TV, and in Chattanooga, Tenn., WTVC-TV, both to FUQUA Industries, a conglomerate which is aiming for sales in 1969 of 500 million and currently is investigating possible mergers with 25 companies.

The award to Bonneville, the Mormon church subsidiary, followed by a couple of weeks another controversial case in which the FCC—also without a hearing—renewed the licence of the church's TV station, KSL, in Salt Lake City.

The church owns a $20 million, 4.79 per cent share of the Times Mirror Corp., publisher of the Los Angeles Times, TV-AM-FM stations in Seattle and Idaho Falls, radio stations in New York City and Kansas City, Mo., AM and FM stations in Salt Lake, one of that city's daily newspapers, a department store, hotels, life insurance firms, and farms, mills and factories.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank today at $1.07 1/16 for cheques, $1.06⅞ for cash, $1.05⅞ for silver. Sales were $1.07¾ for cheques and $1.07¾ for cash.

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 1/32 at $1.07 5/16. Pound sterling was up 1/16 at $2.56 9/16.

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar down 1/64 at 93 3/16 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling unchanged at $2.39 1/16.

Experts Must Check Repairs to Turbines

LONDON (CP) — Sir Basil Smallpiece, chairman of the Cunard Steam-Ship Co. told reporters Sunday the company will not acept the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth II unless an independent expert is allowed to check repair work on the ship's turbines.

John Brown Engineering Ltd. of Clydebank, which made the turbines, has said it will not allow such a check.

During the trial acceptance run of the QE2 in December, Cunard said it refused to accept delivery of the $72,000,000 vessel because of turbine difficulties and 86 unfinished cabins. The maiden cruise of the ship, originally scheduled for Jan. 19, was postponed.

Sir Basil said that without his own expert's report, he "dare not take the risk" of accepting the luxury cruise vessel.

Sir Basil plans to meet Technology Minister Anthony Wedgwood-Benn tonight to seek government support for the investigation.

Hepper said Sunday that John Brown had the best experts possible and felt that if a commercial competitor were brought in for the investigation, it would be damaging to their company. But Sir Basil said not all experts involved agree fully with the John Brown diagnosis of what basically caused the engine trouble which had forced cancellation of four planned cruises.

GOING UP is the new provincial government vocational school which will serve southern Vancouver Island. Construction on the $2,285,000 school began late last year in Saanich municipality, near the Wilkinson Road jail. Present construction, by C. J. Oliver, Ltd., is the first stage of what will be a $4.5 million school. Included in first stage is a single-storey workshop and classroom building occupying 125,800 square feet, about one city block. Three outbuildings of about 5,800 square feet, and services, roads and landscaping make up the rest of the project, first announced six years ago by the provincial government. School has long been sought by local school boards and trade unions. The large school structure will feature mezzanine-style classrooms and series of workshops for variety of trades.

First Patients By Mid-Summer In New Hospital

By PETE LOUDON

The new $6 million 170-bed Eric Martin Institute for treatment of mental illnesses will be completed by the end of next month.

But it may be mid-summer before it admits its first patients, it was indicated today. The delay would be required for staffing, (psychiatric nurses are in short supply) for furnishing and inspections.

It was also learned, in interviews with provincial and municipal hospital officials, the new Victoria institution will fill its beds gradually.

Patients now in the 43-bed Bay Pavilion at Royal Jubilee Hospital are expected to be the first to be transferred. But there are no plans to bring patients from Essondale even though their families may reside on Vancouver Island.

Provincial public works department reported today there is a committment from the contractor to complete the project on Lee Avenue by April 1, but there is hope for an earlier date.

"Essentially the work is all done and about all that remains is the cleaning up," said a department spokesman.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark recently announced that negotiations for handing the administration of the mental hospital to Royal Jubilee are in their final stages.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, Royal Jubilee executive director, today said he could not report on progress of these talks, although an announcement might be possible within a week or 10 days.

He said no decisions had yet been reached on staffing of the new hospital, and this will "depend on who is going to be running it."

A spokesman for the provincial mental health department said he thought staffing would be up to the hospital.

SHORT TERM

He agreed the Eric Martin Institute would be geared for short-term treatment of mental illnesses which would preclude transfer here of cases now being treated at Essondale.

The new centre would take over Bay Pavilion patients and would incorporate the provincial mental health centre on Fort Street which concentrates on out-patient treatment. Therapy work shops would be part of the new operation as well as a program of home care and co-operation with the Canadian Mental Health Association volunteer program.

The department spokesman said that although the hospital would be available in about a month, inspections and equipment installations would delay its use probably until the middle of summer.

The availablity of 43 beds in the present Bay Pavilion at that time would be of assistance to Royal Jubilee in reducing current waiting lists, most doctors hope.

Rape Charge Hearing Set

Two 19-year-olds charged with raping a 17-year-old girl Saturday were remanded today in magistrate's court to March 4 for a preliminary hearing.

Bail was set at $3,000 each for Alexander Jacob, 3745 Tillicum, and Alvin Strandlund, 510 Dunedin. They were represented by lawyers Robert Price and Alan Bigelow.

Scientists to Leave For Japan March 17

By W. RALPH THOMAS

Canada's second major oceanographic research project planned this year will begin March 17 when the research vessel Endeavour departs for Japan with a group of marine scientists.

Oceanographers and marine biologists from the federal fisheries research department, the University of Oregon and the University of Tokyo will participate in a three-week research program en route to Japan before attending an oceanography conference April 8 in Tokyo.

Dr. Geoff Robins, of the federal fisheries biological station in Nanaimo, told the Times today it will be "primarily a biological oceanography trip."

"The extent of the area of coverage chosen for this cruise has been determined by the need to appreciate real conditions and also from the need to examine waters entering the Gulf of Alaska from the west," he said.

CAUSE CHANGES

"Regarding the latter point, the general flow of water from the coast of Asia across the Pacific is believed to carry with it plankton organisms which cause changes in the standing stock of plankton in oceanic areas more directly associated with Canadian interests."

He said the scientists are scheduled to arrive in Tokyo April 6 and will participate in the annual meeting of the Oceanographic Society of Japan.

They will leave Tokyo April 11 and arrive in Hakodate, Japan, April 13 where they will attend a symposium entitled "North Pacific Fisheries and Oceanography."

Following the conferences, the Endeavour will leave Japan on April 15 and carry out further research before arriving back in Esquimalt May 10.

The 11 marine scientists, including a microbiologist and a marine chemist, will concentrate on zooplankton and chemical samples during the 11,000-mile cruise.

On Jan. 30 the federal government announced the Canadian research ship Hudson will circumnavigate the Americas next fall, making extensive chemical, biological and geophysical studies along its route.

Repainting Starts On Streets

After the whitewash comes the painting.

City crews were repainting traffic lines on Fort Street today in the wake of one of the longest snowy periods in the city's history.

White markings on many streets were all but obliterated by a combination of icy conditions and abrasive sand used to keep traffic moving.

Traffic engineer David Campbell said lines on one-way streets will be repainted first.

Spokesman for Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and the provincial department of highways said they are awaiting slightly improved weather conditions before repainting.

Archivist Chairman Of Governors

Willard E. Ireland, provincial librarian and archivist, has been elected dhairman of the University of Victoria's board of governors.

Vice-chairman of the board for the past three years, Mr. Ireland was chosen administrative head at the board's January meeting. His appointment was officially released this morning.

Chancellor Richard B. Wilson, said it marks the beginning of a policy to separate the functions of chancellor and board chairman.

Mr. Wilson held both posts last year, but stipulated the chairmanship for 1969 should be given another board member.

The board of governors is the financial governing body of the university.

SPOKESMAN

The chancellor will continue to be the official spokesman for the board, and the university's ceremonial head. The chairman will preside over board meetings, with responsibilities in committee work and other administrative functions.

Lloyd G. McKenzie, a Victoria lawyer and member of the board, was elected vice-chairman.

Mr. Ireland previously held the position of vice-chairman since it was introduced three years ago. He was appointed to the board when Uvic became a university in 1963, after serving for 12 years on the Victoria College Council.

He has been provincial archivist since 1940 and holds degrees in history from the University of B.C. and University of Toronto. He attended Victoria College in 1928 and 1929.

'Write Ottawa' To Protest Vatican Move

Oak Bay clergyman Alex Calder urged his parishioners Sunday to write Ottawa opposing recognition of the Vatican through formal Canadian diplomatic mission.

"I cannot see a single thing for this and I can see so much against it," Mr. Calder told the early morning congregation at Oak Bay United Church.

He was referring to an exchange of ambassadors as proposed by Prime Minister Trudeau, who recently visited Pope Paul in Rome.

Recognition of the Catholic state would be a dividing influence rather than help to unite Canadians, Rev. Calder said.

He said he could not see whether the proposal is a political move or "a straw in the wind," but he felt that existing Canadian diplomatic representation in Rome is adequate for all citizens.

EQUALITY

"I'm neither anti-Roman nor anti-Catholic, but I hate to see any church given private or privileged position. We should all be equal."

He said: "Canadians must live together. An envoy at the Vatican would do much to divide the country."

Mr. Calder had first referred to his position as a minister in the province of B.C., a person with rights limited by statute, living where there is complete division of church and state.

Although the Vatican is granted the status of an independent state it is so small—just over 100 acres and around 1,000 persons—that it performs few functions of a state, existing in the role of a "propaganda centre" for the Roman Catholic Church, the minister said.

He recommended that people write to their member of Parliament and the prime minister or leader of the opposition, or both, saying, "I am opposed."

"I am concerned about this erosion of our liberty, and we lose it simply by doing nothing."

Sportsfest Next Year

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan announced today the provincial government will sponsor an annual British Columbia Festival of Sport starting in 1970.

The event will be held the last 10 days of May, bridging both the Victoria Day and the United States Memorial Day holidays.

Mr. Kiernan said all communities in B.C. will be encouraged to participate.

He said it is hoped the event will develop into a cultural one as well.

The department of travel industry will organize the festival, assisted by members of the British Columbia Sports Federation, municipal councils, chambers of commerce and tourist organizations in all communities.

Man Admits Endangering His Child

A man who pleaded guilty today to endangering his child by leaving him in a cardboard box at the rear of a city hotel was remanded a week for sentence.

Allen H. Bourns, 2535 Blanshard, left his three-year-old son, Brian, outside the hotel Jan. 25 while he went inside to have a few drinks, police said.

The temperature was 26 degrees and there was a 25-mph wind.

The box, about two feet high by 18 inches square, was closed and the child appeared cold and frightened. He was then taken inside the beer parlor to identify his father.

Bourns told police he was caring for the boy for the day while his wife was shopping. He had already been to another beer parlor where the boy was left in the hallway.

Police said the box could have easily rolled or have been knocked from the stairs to an alley where traffic was passing.

A pre-sentence report is being prepared.

Servants Knock Two-Policy Pay

Cabinet Salaries Compared

The British Columbia government has two wage policies—one for the cabinet and the other for civil servants.

This charge was made today by E. P. O'Connor, of Vancouver, general secretary of the British Columbia Government Employees' Association.

He was commenting on Friday's provincial budget which set aside $10 million for "fun and games" (in various funds) and $6.5 million for "bread and butter" for government employees.

Last April, the association filed salary appeals based on comparable wages with similar positions within industry and public service in B.C.

The cabinet rejected the appeals later, stating that it agreed with comparability with an average of the wages paid by other provincial governments in the country.

"The government is obviously playing the role of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," said Mr. O'Connor.

"If they are honest and believe in their policy, why do they pay the premier and cabinet ministers wages and indemnities substantially higher than the average of wages and indemnities paid in other provinces?"

43 PER CENT SPREAD

The average salary paid to premiers (excluding B.C. and Quebec) is $13,987.50, while Premier Bennett gets $20,000, a differential of 43 per cent, he said.

(Quebec was excluded because its figures were not available to the association.)

The average salary paid to cabinet ministers in other provinces (excluding B.C. and Quebec) is $11,300, whereas in B.C. it is $17,500.

Janitors employed by cities, school boards and hospitals are paid an average of $469 a month. The government rate is $400, or $428 with a 7 per cent raise.

Orderlies in outside hospitals receive a maximum of $526 a month. Government orderlies get $448. Adding 7 per cent brings this to $479.

Practical nurses in outside hospitals get $398, the government pays $330, adding 7 per cent brings this to $353.

"Can anyone other than the government doubt the justification of government employees unfortunate position in the light of these facts," asked Mr. O'Connor.

DENIED MUCH

"They are denied bargaining rights, reference of disputes to the Mediation Commission and also are denied the right to strike."

"Average pay of premiers in all provinces, other than Quebec and B.C., is $22,437.50, whereas our premier enjoys $28,000, a differential of 25 per cent.

"Average earning of cabinet ministers is $19,937.50, whereas the average of B.C. ministers is $25,500, a differential of 25 per cent."

Mr. O'Connor said public employees wonder if the provisions of Bill 33, the Mediation Act which prohibits strikes by civil servants, were "designed primarily to act as an enforcer of their cheap labor policy."

He said the $6.5 million for civil service wage adjustments represents about 7 per cent of the payroll of the classified service.

SAVED FOR POSTERITY are delicate ceramic, fairy tale tiles around fireplace in historic Fernwood House. Mrs. Reg Porter, of 3874 Cedar Hill Road, rushed to buy them when she heard demolition was slated. Some Victorians trespassed Sunday and helped themselves to the souvenirs. An entire fireplace with marble mantel was spirited away. Now there is hope 109-year-old home may be saved.

Home Demolition Delayed But Thieves Don't Wait

By DON VIPOND

Demolition of historic Fernwood House—scheduled for today—has been stayed briefly while local historians scramble to see if the 109-year-old manor can be saved.

Meanwhile bits and pieces of the 15-room fieldstone mansion are already disappearing—by sale and theft.

Since 1860, Fernwood has watched over Victoria's growth from a hilltop at Oak Bay junction. Built by Benjamin William Pearse, a Devonshire civil engineer who later became surveyor-general for B.C., it now stands on a 3.5-acre site for a 200-unit apartment project.

City police got a call Sunday evening reporting a crowd of about 30 people in the vacant building. They later reported an entire fireplace, including a marble mantel, had been removed.

ALREADY SOLD

Fireplaces, some with decorative tile, are among showpiece items in the house. Some of the tiles and a few other items have already been sold by the demolition contractor.

The apartment project is being undertaken by Reeson Investments Ltd. but principal in the firm, Gordon Reeson, is visiting in the U.S. Until he can be reached for a final decision, the demolition contractor has agreed to hold off.

H. C. Charlesworth, president of the Greater Victoria Historic Buildings Foundation, said today Fernwood is "a very special little building," part of Victoria for 109 years, timeless in its design and a handsome classical example of good construction.

UP TO HIM

Its fate lies entirely in Mr. Reeson's hands, he said, but it is possible the developer is not aware of Fernwood's historic significance.

Mr. Charlesworth, who is an architect, said the apartment project's architect and the demolition contractor have co-operated in getting the work stopped until Mr. Reeson can be reached for a final decision.

The foundation tries to steer a course between the need for development in a community and the desire to preserve its historic buildings, said Mr. Charlesworth. It limits its efforts to just a few of the more important structures but Fernwood is one of them.

Victoria's Mayor Hugh Stephen said today it was regrettable but the city was powerless to do anything about saving Fernwood.

WOULD HAVE REMAINED

The tragedy is that a few years ago a development firm proposed a garden apartment project on the site which would have incorporated Fernwood, restored it and had it serve as a sort of recreation centre, said the mayor.

While the area is zoned for apartments, a garden apartment development required a zoning amendment and public opposition at a hearing led to delays and the developers pulling out.

Neighbors were told at that time that the zoning has permitted apartment construction since 1956 and something not as attractive might some day be built on the site. But they were adamant.

The house and site were acquired by adjacent St. Margaret's School in 1958 but Fernwood and about four acres were later sold to help finance development of the school. The historic house was on the market for at least two years with a price tag close to $250,000.

Mayor Stephen said the provincial government should grant municipalities power to declare buildings of historic importance and participate financially in buying them.

Trustees Meet On Kuper Fund Distribution

The fund, about $5,000, is the surplus from a public campaign almost two years ago to pay for the Kuper Island fife and drum band's trip to Expo 67 in Montreal.

Interest earned by the surplus last year was used on five awards for outstanding Indian students on lower Vancouver Island.

They were chosen on the basis of all-round activity and received a medal, $10 in cash and a $35 bank account.

Next Monday's meeting at S. J. Willis School will include a financial report, decision on this year's awards and will provide an opportunity to hear from any donor.

Ronald said he was standing on a wharf on the Saanich side of the Gorge Bridge talking to two friends when he saw the kayak heading toward the swfit current.

"I told my friends they were going to flip as soon as they hit the current sideways," he said. "They had to—I've flipped over myself before."

When they turned over he took off his coat, shirt and boots, dove in and helped Mrs. Zalinger.

Temperature of the water, about 10 feet deep in places, was about 35 degrees.

Over the years there have been numerous boat accidents, some of them fatal, near the bridge where a treacherous current can pull an unsuspecting boater into the rapids.

GOING UP is the new provincial government vocational school which will serve southern Vancouver Island. Construction on the $2,285,000 school began late last year in Saanich municipality, near the Wilkinson Road jail. Present construction, by C. J. Oliver, Ltd., is the first stage of what will be a $4.5 million school. Included in first stage is a two-storey workshop and classroom building occupying 125,800 square feet, about one city block. Three outbuildings of about 5,800 square feet, and services, roads and landscaping make up the rest of the project, first announced six years ago by the provincial government. School has long been sought by local school boards and trade unions. The large school structure will feature mezzanine-style classrooms and series of workshops for variety of trades.

First Patients By Mid-Summer In New Hospital

By PETE LOUDON

The new $6 million 170-bed Eric Martin Institute for treatment of mental illnesses will be completed by the end of next month.

But it may be mid-summer before it admits its first patients, it was indicated today. The delay would be required for staffing, (psychiatric nurses are in short supply) for furnishing and inspections.

It was also learned, in interviews with provincial and municipal hospital officials, the new Victoria institution will fill its beds gradually.

Patients now in the 43-bed Bay Pavilion at Royal Jubilee Hospital are expected to be the first to be transferred. But there are no plans to bring patients from Essondale even though their families may reside on Vancouver Island.

Provincial public works department reported today there is a committment from the contractor to complete the project on Lee Avenue by April 1, but there is hope for an earlier date.

"Essentially the work is all done and about all that remains is the cleaning up," said a department spokesman.

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark recently announced that negotiations for handing the administration of the mental hospital to Royal Jubilee are in their final stages.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, Royal Jubilee executive director, today said he could not report on progress of these talks, although an announcement might be possible within a week or 10 days.

He said no decisions had yet been reached on staffing of the new hospital, and this will "depend on who is going to be running it."

A spokesman for the provincial mental health department said he thought staffing would be up to the hospital.

SHORT TERM

He agreed the Eric Martin Institute would be geared for short-term treatment of mental illnesses which would preclude transfer here of cases now being treated at Essondale.

The new centre would take over Bay Pavilion patients and would incorporate the provincial mental health centre on Fort Street which concentrates on out-patient treatment. Therapy work shops would be part of the new operation as well as a program of home care and co-operation with the Canadian Mental Health Association volunteer program.

The department spokesman said that although the hospital would be available in about a month, inspections and equipment installations would delay its use probably until the middle of summer.

The availablity of 43 beds in the present Bay Pavilion at that time would be of assistance to Royal Jubilee in reducing current waiting lists, most doctors hope.

Rape Charge Hearing Set

Two 19-year-olds charged with raping a 17-year-old girl Saturday were remanded today in magistrate's court to March 4 for a preliminary hearing.

Bail was set at $3,000 each for Alexander Jacob, 3745 Tillicum, and Alvin Strandlund, 510 Dunedin. They were represented by lawyers Robert Price and Alan Bigelow.

Scientists to Leave For Japan March 17

By W. RALPH THOMAS

Canada's second major oceanographic research project planned this year will begin March 17 when the research vessel Endeavour departs for Japan with a group of marine scientists.

Oceanographers and marine biologists from the federal fisheries research department, the University of Oregon and the University of Tokyo will participate in a three-week research program en route to Japan before attending an oceanography conference April 8 in Tokyo.

Dr. Geoff Robins, of the federal fisheries biological station in Nanaimo, told the Times today it will be "primarily a biological oceanography trip."

"The extent of the area of coverage chosen for this cruise has been determined by the need to appreciate real conditions and also from the need to examine waters entering the Gulf of Alaska from the west," he said.

CAUSE CHANGES

"Regarding the latter point, the general flow of water from the coast of Asia across the Pacific is believed to carry with it plankton organisms which cause changes in the standing stock of plankton in oceanic areas more directly associated with Canadian interests."

He said the scientists are scheduled to arrive in Tokyo April 6 and will participate in the annual meeting of the Oceanographic Society of Japan.

They will leave Tokyo April 11 and arrive in Hakodate, Japan, April 13 where they will attend a symposium entitled "North Pacific Fisheries and Oceanography."

Following the conferences, the Endeavour will leave Japan on April 15 and carry out further research before arriving back in Esquimalt May 10.

The 11 marine scientists, including a microbiologist and a marine chemist, will concentrate on zooplankton and chemical samples during the 11,000-mile cruise.

On Jan. 30 the federal government announced the Canadian research ship Hudson will circumnavigate the Americas next fall, making extensive chemical, biological and geophysical studies along its route.

Repainting Starts On Streets

After the whitewash comes the painting.

City crews were repainting traffic lines on Fort Street today in the wake of one of the longest snowy periods in the city's history.

White markings on many streets were all but obliterated by a combination of icy conditions and abrasive sand used to keep traffic moving.

Traffic engineer David Campbell said lines on one-way streets will be repainted first.

Spokesmen for Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich and the provincial department of highways said they are awaiting slightly improved weather conditions before repainting.

Archivist Chairman Of Governors

Willard E. Ireland, provincial librarian and archivist, has been elected chairman of the University of Victoria's board of governors.

Vice-chairman of the board for the past three years, Mr. Ireland was chosen administrative head at the board's January meeting. His appointment was officially released this morning.

Chancellor Richard B. Wilson, said it marks the beginning of a policy to separate the functions of chancellor and board chairman.

Mr. Wilson held both posts last year, but stipulated the chairmanship for 1969 should be given another board member.

The board of governors is the financial governing body of the university.

SPOKESMAN

The chancellor will continue to be the official spokesman for the board, and the university's ceremonial head. The chairman will preside over board meetings, with responsibilities in committee work and other administrative functions.

Lloyd G. McKenzie, a Victoria lawyer and member of the board, was elected vice-chairman.

Mr. Ireland previously held the position of vice-chairman since it was introduced three years ago. He was appointed to the board when Uvic became a university in 1963, after serving for 12 years on the Victoria College Council.

He has been provincial archivist since 1940 and holds degrees in history from the University of B.C. and University of Toronto. He attended Victoria College in 1928 and 1929.

'Write Ottawa' To Protest Vatican Move

Oak Bay clergyman Alex Calder urged his parishioners Sunday to write Ottawa opposing recognition of the Vatican through formal Canadian diplomatic mission.

"I cannot see a single thing for this and I can see so much against it," Mr. Calder told the early morning congregation at Oak Bay United Church.

He was referring to an exchange of ambassadors as proposed by Prime Minister Trudeau, who recently visited Pope Paul in Rome.

Recognition of the Catholic state would be a dividing influence rather than help to unite Canadians, Rev. Calder said.

He said he could not see whether the proposal is a political move or "a straw in the wind," but he felt that existing Canadian diplomatic representation in Rome is adequate for all citizens.

EQUALITY

"I'm neither anti-Roman nor anti-Catholic, but I hate to see any church given private or privileged position. We should all be equal."

He said: "Canadians must live together. An envoy at the Vatican would do much to divide the country."

Mr. Calder had first referred to his position as a minister in the province of B.C., a person with rights limited by statute, living where there is complete division of church and state.

Although the Vatican is granted the status of an independent state it is so small—just over 100 acres and around 1,000 persons—that it performs few functions of a state, existing in the role of a "propaganda centre" for the Roman Catholic Church, the minister said.

He recommended that people write to their member of Parliament and the prime minister or leader of the opposition, or both, saying, "I am opposed."

"I am concerned about this erosion of our liberty, and we lose it simply by doing nothing."

Sportsfest Next Year

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan announced today the provincial government will sponsor an annual British Columbia Festival of Sport starting in 1970.

The event will be held the last 10 days of May, bridging both the Victoria Day and the United States Memorial Day holidays.

Mr. Kiernan said all communities in B.C. will be encouraged to participate.

He said it is hoped the event will develop into a cultural one as well.

The department of travel industry will organize the festival, assisted by members of the British Columbia Sports Federation, municipal councils, chambers of commerce and tourist organizations in all communities.

Man Admits Endangering His Child

A man who pleaded guilty today to endangering his child by leaving him in a cardboard box at the rear of a city hotel was remanded a week for sentence.

Allen H. Bourns, 2535 Blanshard, left his three-year-old son, Brian, outside the hotel Jan. 25 while he went inside to have a few drinks, police said.

The temperature was 26 degrees and there was a 25-mph wind.

The box, about two feet high by 18 inches square, was closed and the child appeared cold and frightened. He was then taken inside the beer parlor to identify his father.

Bourns told police he was caring for the boy for the day while his wife was shopping. He had already been to another beer parlor where the boy was left in the hallway.

Police said the box could have easily rolled or have been knocked from the stairs to an alley where traffic was passing.

A pre-sentence report is being prepared.

Servants Knock Two-Policy Pay

SAVED FOR POSTERITY are delicate ceramic, fairy tale tiles around fireplace in historic Fernwood House. Mrs. Reg Porter, of 3874 Cedar Hill Road, rushed to buy them when she heard demolition was slated. Some Victorians trespassed Sunday and helped themselves to the souvenirs. An entire fireplace with marble mantel was spirited away. Now there is hope 109-year-old home may be saved.

Cabinet Salaries Compared

The British Columbia government has two wage policies—one for the cabinet and the other for civil servants.

This charge was made today by E. P. O'Connor, of Vancouver, general secretary of the British Columbia Government Employees' Association.

He was commenting on Friday's provincial budget which set aside $10 million for "fun and games" (in various funds) and $6.5 million for "bread and butter" for government employees.

Last April, the association filed salary appeals based on comparable wages with similar positions within industry and public service in B.C.

The cabinet rejected the appeals later, stating that it agreed with comparability with an average of the wages paid by other provincial governments in the country.

"The government is obviously playing the role of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," said Mr. O'Connor.

"If they are honest and believe in their policy, why do they pay the premier and cabinet ministers wages and indemnities substantially higher than the average of wages and indemnities paid in other provinces?"

43 PER CENT SPREAD

The average salary paid to premiers (excluding B.C. and Quebec) is $13,987.50, while Premier Bennett gets $20,000, a differential of 43 per cent, he said.

(Quebec was excluded because its figures were not available to the association.)

The average salary paid to cabinet ministers in other provinces (excluding B.C. and Quebec) is $11 300, whereas in B.C. it is $17,500.

Janitors employed by cities, school boards and hospitals are paid an average of $469 a month. The government rate is $400, or $428 with a 7 per cent raise.

Orderlies in outside hospitals receive a maximum of $526 a month. Government orderlies get $448. Adding 7 per cent brings this to $479.

Practical nurses in outside hospitals get $398, the government pays $330, adding 7 per cent brings this to $353.

"Can anyone other than the government doubt the justification of government employees unfortunate position in the light of these facts," asked Mr. O'Connor.

DENIED MUCH

"They are denied bargaining rights, reference of disputes to the Mediation Commission and also are denied the right to strike."

"Average pay of premiers in all provinces, other than Quebec and B.C., is $22,437.50, whereas our premier enjoys $28,000, a differential of 25 per cent.

"Average earning of cabinet ministers is $19,937.50, whereas the average of B.C. ministers is $25,500, a differential of 25 per cent."

Mr. O'Connor said public employees wonder if the provisions of Bill 33, the Mediation Act which prohibits strikes by civil servants, were "designed primarily to act as an enforcer of their cheap labor policy."

He said the $6.5 million for civil service wage adjustments represents about 7 per cent of the payroll of the classified service.

Home Demolition Delayed But Thieves Don't Wait

By DON VIPOND

Demolition of historic Fernwood House—scheduled for today—has been stayed briefly while local historians scramble to see if the 109-year-old manor can be saved.

Meanwhile bits and pieces of the 15-room fieldstone mansion are already disappearing—by sale and theft.

Since 1860, Fernwood has watched over Victoria's growth from a hilltop at Oak Bay junction. Built by Benjamin William Pearse, a Devonshire civil engineer who later became surveyor-general for B.C., it now stands on a 3.5-acre site for a 200-unit apartment project.

City police got a call Sunday evening reporting a crowd of about 30 people in the vacant building. They later reported an entire fireplace, including a marble mantel, had been removed.

ALREADY SOLD

Fireplaces, some with decorative tile, are among showpiece items in the house. Some of the tiles and a few other items have already been sold by the demolition contractor.

The apartment project is being undertaken by Reeson Investments Ltd. but principal in the firm, Gordon Reeson, is visiting in the U.S. Until he can be reached for a final decision, the demolition contractor has agreed to hold off.

H. C. Charlesworth, president of the Greater Victoria Historic Buildings Foundation, said today Fernwood is "a very special little building," part of Victoria for 109 years, timeless in its design and a handsome classical example of good construction.

UP TO HIM

Its fate lies entirely in Mr. Reeson's hands, he said, but it is possible the developer is not aware of Fernwood's historic significance.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures declined 1½ cents on the board of trade today. All other grains and soybeans also trended lower. Trade was mixed but the pace was slow. The lack of export business and the strike of longshoremen on the east and Gulf of Mexico coasts, now in its eighth week, were major factors in the liquidation.

The bulk of the trade was in the hands of locals and commission houses, with some exporter buying by an international house.

Oats and barley were a light trade and prices were mostly steady on moderate domestic shipper buying for eastern feeders. Rye trade was confined to inter-month spreading.

Friday's volume: Flax, 707,000 bushels; rapeseed, 237,000; rye, 283,000.

MacMillans Cleared On Fraud Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto mining promoters George and Viola MacMillan today were acquitted of charges of defrauding the public through trading in the stock of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., a company they controlled in 1964.

Judge Harry Deyman, handing down his decision in county court, said he could not find that the market activity in Windfall stock, which rose to $1.01 from 56 cents in a single day in July, 1964, was caused by the action of the MacMillans.

"Such activity was just as likely to be caused by the earlier discovery by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., that same year, which caused activity among a number of companies with holdings in the area," Judge Deyman said.

He also said that he did not agree with the Crown's contention that the public was defrauded through the MacMillans' promotion of Windfall stock and their delay in making results of a drill core assay public.

"A press release sent out under the signature of G. A. MacMillan on July 7 regarding the property was no doubt factual," Judge Deyman said. "I can find nothing amounting to fraud in it."

Judge Deyman also said that he did not think Mr. MacMillan's decision to wait until the drill hole on the Windfall property was finished before releasing a drill report was wrong.

Crown counsel Rod Cormack said that the attorney-general's department must decide within 30 days whether to appeal the decision.

"But as far as I am concerned this is it — there will be no appeal," he said.

Windfall Oils held claims in the Timmins area of Northern Ontario, near where Texas Gulf Sulphur has since brought the Kidd Creek Copper Mine—one of the world's richest base metal deposits—into production.

Trading activity in Windfall shares was the subject of a royal commission investigation.

Mrs. MacMillan, 65, was convicted in 1967 of wash trading in the share of another company she controlled, Consolidated Golden Arrow Mines Ltd. She was given a nine months indeterminate sentence, but released after serving several weeks of it.

Wash trading is a term used to describe an attempt to affect the market price of a stock by creating a false impression of public activity in its shares.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Vancouver Booming

Vancouver Stock Exchange was booming along at a strong pace today, with 4,500,000 shares traded before noon.

Trading was running close to the record-breaking pace set on Jan. 27 when a total of 7,038,896 shares changed hands.

Mining issues were doing a terrific business with gains outnumbering losses by a wide margin.

Largo was the heaviest trader at 473,900 shares to gain .15 at .85. Buttle Lake added .20 at $9.70 and Bethex added .15 at $6.

Other gainers were Ace, up .55 to $2.75; Alwin, Consolidated Gem, Calico, Golden West, Madrona, National Nickel, Northwest Ventures, Paramount, Silver Standard, Trojan and Western Mines.

Among the losers were Calta and Silver Arrow.

Fields Stores added $2 at $27 and Pacific Western gained .37 at $16.87.

Stampede gained .25 to $15 in the oils and Allied Roxanna added .05 at $2.70.

Final volume was 5,909,000 shares compared with 5,713,000 Friday.

In industrials, Versafood gained 3 to 27, B.C. Sugar 2¾ to 54¾, Shully's Industries 2½ to 21 and Erie Diversified 2⅝ to 21. Atco fell 3¾ to 19¼ and Universal Sections 1⅝ to 21¾.

Canadian Superior Oil lost ⅞ to 62⅝ and French Pete 25 cents to $8.70. Great Plains Development was up ¾ to 34¾.

The Royal Bank was down ⅝ to 23, the Bank of Nova Scotia ⅜ to 24¼ and the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ⅜ to 21⅛.

Aquitaine fell ⅜ to 18¼, Calgary Power ½ to 26 and CAE Industries ¼ to 10.

Great Lakes Paper advanced ¾ to 26¼, Alcan ⅜ to 32⅝, Canadian Pacific ⅝ to 81⅞, Cominco ½ to 40⅜.

In the industrial section of the Canadian Stock Exchange, St. Lawrence Diversified Lands, an active issue, was up 25 cents to 3.30. Wabasso was up 1¼ to 16¼.

Volume for both markets at 1 p.m. was 1,400,900 shares, compared with 1,241,500 at the same time Friday.

Marking-down among leading industrials resulted in falls ranging to 2s by EMI, Rank and Unilever. Reed and Bowater fell and Hollinger and Power Corp. also were down.

However, Canadian Pacific added three points to 236 on the Montreal-Toronto advance.

SNOW CLOSES N.Y. EXCHANGE

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York and American Stock Exchanges were closed today because of the heavy snowfall.

All commodity markets were also closed because of the weather.

Experts Must Check Repairs to Turbines

LONDON (CP) — Sir Basil Smallpiece, chairman of the Cunard Steam-Ship Co. told reporters Sunday the company will not acept the luxury liner Queen Elizabeth II unless an independent expert is allowed to check repair work on the ship's turbines.

John Brown Engineering Ltd. of Clydebank, which made the turbines, has said it will not allow such a check.

During the trial acceptance run of the QE2 in December, Cunard said it refused to accept delivery of the $72,000,000 vessel because of turbine difficulties and 86 unfinished cabins. The maiden cruise of the ship, originally scheduled for Jan. 19, was postponed.

Sir Basil said that without his own expert's report, he "dare not take the risk" of accepting the luxury cruise vessel.

Hepper said Sunday that John Brown had the best experts possible and felt that if a commercial competitor were brought in for the investigation, it would be damaging to their company. But Sir Basil said not all experts involved agree fully with the John Brown diagnosis of what basically caused the engine trouble which had forced cancellation of four planned cruises.

U.S. to Probe TV, Radio Ownership

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Federal Communications Commission announced Saturday that it will make a study of the ownership of television and radio stations by giant corporations—and simultaneously awarded licences to three such corporations without holding hearings.

The study will deal with "all possible social, economic and political aspects" of broadcast ownership by conglomerate corporations, the commission said in a press release. Generally, such a corporation is a mix of firms that have neither a buying nor a selling relation to each other.

STUDY 'IRONIC'

Chaiman Rosel H. Hyde and four colleagues—Robert T. Bartley, Kenneth A. Cox, Nicholas Johnson and H. Rex Lee—voted for the study, which also will deal with ownership by firms "with large-scale business interests." Commissioners James J. Wadsworth and Robert E. Lee, dissented.

Terming the order for a study "ironic," Johnson said that the major position on ownership "is now so bankrupt that past errors must serve as the structural braces for actions in the public interest."

The licence assignments, which involve transfers from previous holders:

In Los Angeles, KBIG AM and FM radio stations to the Bonneville International Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon).

In Columbus, Ga., WTVM-TV, and in Chattanooga, Tenn., WTVC-TV, both to FUQUA Industries, a conglomerate which is aiming for sales in 1969 of 500 million and currently is investigating possible mergers with 25 companies.
